SENATE GETS ONLY LESS SENSATIONAL PART OF DRY DATA

Demands More Information After Wickersham Office Says but Half of Facts Have Been Submitted.

INSISTS ON REPORT FROM 16 STATES

Enforcement in Six Assailed as Extremely Bad—"Flood of Intoxicants" in Wisconsin.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—A demand upon the Wickersham Commission for more of its prohibition enforcement data came today from a Senate already supplied with a conflicting mass of testimony as to conditions in 32 states.

The Senate adopted without debate a resolution by Senator Tydings (Dem.), Maryland, an opponent of prohibition, demanding the commission's reasons for withholding any information as to prohibition in the 16 other states and the District of Columbia.

Earlier, word had come from commission headquarters that less than half the information upon which its conflicting prohibition report was based had been submitted to the Senate and that the portion transmitted was the less sensational part.

One Commissioner explained this as arising from a natural inclination on the part of some witnesses to paint a rosier picture in public statements than in private affidavits. The commission was requested in the previous Senate resolution only for its "non-secret" data.

Flood of Liquor in Wisconsin.

Meanwhile, a survey of the material already before the Senate disclosed a bewildering variety of reports upon conditions in the 32 states touched upon. Prohibition enforcement conditions in six states were assailed as extremely bad, with one, Wisconsin, pictured as provided with a "flood of intoxicants."

Eleven of the states, however, were described as having almost entirely satisfactory enforcement, with liquor available, but in an apparently disminishing quantity.

Reports to the commission on 15 states showed a confusing difference of opinion as to conditions, with all subject to some form of criticism as to conditions under the dry laws.

Big Wet States Not Included.

Among the states not included in the syrveys are several generally conceded to be wet in sentiment, including New York, Maryland, Massachusetts and New Jersey.

The most sensational report submitted was that concerning Wisconsin. It stated flatly liquor has always been plentiful there, and listed hotels and shops near Milwaukee where it said large scale gambling was conducted, "which police undoubtedly do not dare molest"; corruption among officials and the permitted existence in some cities of open "red light districts." The report was prepared by Frank Buckley, attorney for the Prohibition Bureau before its transfer to the Department of Justice.

"Sheriff Usually Intoxicated."

"The Sheriff of Milwaukee County has the best intentions in the world," the report said, "and furnished assistance whenever required. The latter officer, however, is not regarded as dependable because of being himself almost constantly intoxicated. During the Republican celebration at Nippon two persons out of 20,000 were drunk, one of whom was the Sheriff."

"Most towns and cities throughout the State contain their allotment of 'soft drink parlors', duly licensed as such by local authorities. Beer, whisky or 'shine' may be obtained in practically any of such resorts."

Former Governor Assailed.

A report upon Oklahoma charged former Gov. Holloway directly with responsibility for lax enforcement, adding that the attitude of officials in some sections was vicious, while in other counties there were stills in operation and bootlegging flourishing.

The Kentucky report told of widespread drinking among young people, while one witness charged the wealthy classes with offensive drinking.

A similar report of general dry law-breaking among the wealthy came from Florida, where it was said that a free-spending sporting class in these places creates a profitable liquor market, and, notwith-

HERO'S WIDOW DIES

MRS. GEORGE DEWEY.

ADMIRAL DEWEY'S WIDOW, 80, DIES IN WASHINGTON

Succumbs Suddenly in House Where Husband, Hero of Manila Bay, Expired 14 Years Ago.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Mrs. George Dewey, widow of Admiral Dewey, hero of Manila Bay, died unexpectedly at her home here today. Her health had been poor for some time. A stroke of paralysis, early this afternoon, caused death.

Mrs. Dewey was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Washington McLean of Cincinnati, and a sister of the late John R. McLean, owner and publisher of the Cincinnati Inquirer and the Washington Post, for many years. She first was married to Gen. W. B. Hazen, U. S. A., who distinguished himself in the Civil War. In 1899, after the Spanish-American War, she was married to Admiral Dewey.

Admirers of Admiral Dewey, in their enthusiasm, for his brilliant service at Manila Bay, contributed funds for the purchase of a home on Rhode Island avenue. Soon after his marriage to Mrs. Hazen, Admiral Dewey gave the newly donated home to his bride. This caused severe criticism from many of the persons who had helped to buy the place. Later, the Deweys moved to a larger house at Sixteenth and K streets, where she lived until her death.

Admiral and Mrs. Dewey entertained extensively during the last years of his life, and were popular in Washington society. Mrs. Dewey was ambitious for her distinguished husband and, it is said, she was responsible for several movements to have him nominated for the presidency.

She died in the home where Admiral Dewey died 14 years ago—the home that was a surprise gift from her father on the occasion of her first marriage during the Grant administration. It had become almost a museum of the Spanish-American War, with the rarest of the Dewey relics on display.

Always regal, but a semi-invalid, the Admiral's widow had ceased her social activities when the Prince of Wales requested an audience on his last visit here in 1924. She had trotted him on her knee as a child in Buckingham Palace. And for him she broke her rigid retirement rule, in a very stately and very exclusive party—just the Prince and his escorts to tea. On that occasion, she described to him the knee-trotting episode, informing him that when she had complimented his fine clothes he had airily answered: "We're not always this dressed up."

Mrs. Dewey would never dress in the mode, but chose instead always to wear the tight basque tapering to a point in front and the bouffant skirts of an earlier day of fashion. Often her diamond necklaces were worn under the rare laces of her collars.

Her closest friends, Mrs. U. S. Grant, Mrs. Potter Palmer and Mrs. Jack Gardner of Boston, all died before her.

She was 80 years old last April. She is survived by a nephew, Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post; by a grandnephew, Frederick McLean Bugher of Washington and by a stepson, George Dewey of Chicago.

The funeral arrangements have not been completed. Admiral Dewey was buried at Arlington, but the body later was removed to a vault in Bethlehem Chapel, in the Washington Cathedral.

MAN IS SHOT DEAD WHEN RIDING WITH ESTRANGED WIFE

Mrs. Wilma Snodgrass Says Husband, Martin, Killed Himself—Pistol Found on Floor of Auto.

FORCED INTO CAR, WOMAN ASSERTS

Friend Follows With Policeman in Another Machine but They Overtake First Car Too Late.

Martin Snodgrass, 26-year-old driver for the Pevely Dairy Co., forced his estranged wife into an automobile at the point of a pistol last night, Mrs. Snodgrass told police, and driving to Grand boulevard and Chouteau avenue, shot and killed himself.

A policeman, attracted by Mrs. Snodgrass' screams, jumped to the running board of the rented coupe, which was moving slowly across Grand boulevard on Chouteau avenue, and steered it to the curb. He found Snodgrass dead and slumped over the wheel.

He had been shot through the heart. A small caliber pistol, with a single discharged cartridge, lay on the car floor.

Snodgrass drove up beside his wife and Miss Viola Frank, 16 years old, 4605 Delor street, at Gravois avenue and Delor street, Mrs. Snodgrass told police. He stopped, she said, alighted and pointed a pistol at her explaining: "Get in and don't make a crooked move or I'll shoot you."

She Gets in Car.

"I didn't want to get in," she continued, "but I did. He didn't say anything more. He drove down to Grand and Chouteau and shot himself."

Just at the time of the shooting, Miss Frank arrived at the scene in an automobile, the driver of which she hailed when Mrs. Snodgrass was abducted, telling him: "Follow that car. There's a man in it who's threatened to kill his wife and he's got her with him."

A policeman whom they picked up at Boyle and Manchester avenues, jumped out of the car and ran up to Snodgrass' rented coupe, arriving just a moment after the shot was fired. He was Patrolman Clyde Rawlings, of the Central District.

Friend Tells of Threat.

Miss Frank told police that she and Mrs. Snodgrass, who also had been living at the Delor street address, were taking Miss Frank's 9-year-old niece to a motion picture show when Snodgrass drove up. They gave the child some money and told her to go on, Miss Frank said, promising to meet her later.

She also said that several days ago when she went to the Caroline street address to get Mrs. Snodgrass' clothes, Snodgrass told her: "You can tell Wilma I'm going to kill her the next time I see her."

Mrs. Snodgrass said she and her husband were married three years ago in Chester, Ill., and formerly lived in Coulterville, Ill. They have been separated several times, she said, the most recent separation occurring last Saturday night when Snodgrass struck her in the course of a quarrel.

GERMAN UNIVERSITY STUDENT IS KILLED IN FENCING BOUT

Slips and Falls Onto Opponent's Sword; His Chest Pierced by Weapon.

BERLIN, Feb. 21.—The death of a student at Darmstadt as a result of a fencing bout has drawn attention to the fact that while such meetings are forbidden by law, they still go on. The student, named Tomcak slipped and fell on his opponents' sword and bled to death as the result of a deep chest wound. The opponent and his second surrendered and authorities ordered an investigation.

The fencing bout was like the many that are fought regularly in German universities, as required under the rules of certain fraternities. In Berlin alone there are more than a dozen corps that meet once a week secretly for regular duels. They are social bodies and membership in them is an honor.

The criminal code, adopted after the 1918 revolution, holds dueling an assault with lethal weapon, but few courts have construed it in this way. Opponents of fencing have agitated for its abolition. Recently a court at Munich sentenced a student who had killed a colleague in a duel to two years in a fortress.

ARMY OFFICER PAYS TRIBUTE TO HEROIC MOTHER

Lieut.-Col. Weeks' Obituary of Her Wins Praise of Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The War Department today commended officially one of its officers for his tribute to his dead mother. The officer was Lieutenant-Colonel Harold J. Weeks, Chattanooga, Tenn. His mother was Julia Shoemaker Weeks, daughter of an army officer, who went to the frontier in 1871 as the wife of an army Lieutenant.

Col. Weeks after his mother's recent death wrote a brief obituary of her life for a publication devoted to service activities. It came to the attention of Secretary of War Hurley.

"Never in her life did I hear the word 'can't' come from her lips," Col. Weeks wrote. "Tears, yes, but only tears that mourned the dead, who could not be with her to watch over the growing brood. . . . She sent the only son old enough away to serve in the Philippines. When next her country called she sent two sons to France and four were in army camps at home. No heroics, no pictures of 'the gallant mother,' no looking for sympathy, just duty as the tradition . . . May the sons be worthy of the life Julia Shoemaker Weeks gave to her country."

Secretary Hurley wrote the Colonel that the tribute made a deep impression upon him.

SON ASKS TO BE EXECUTED IN PLACE OF HIS FATHER

Employe of Florida State Insane Hospital Writes Appeal to Gov. Carlton.

By the Associated Press.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Feb. 21.—The son of a man condemned to death for murder appealed to Gov. Carlton today to let him die in the electric chair at the Florida State Penitentiary instead of his father, Claude Laramore, an employe at the Florida State Hospital for the Insane at Chattahoochee, made the request. The executive was not at the Capital and office attaches doubted the appeal would come to his attention before Monday.

J. Webb Laramore, a farmer and former Deputy Sheriff, was sentenced to death last Wednesday for killing Leslie Harrell and Alex Porter, youths of his community.

Claude's letter to the Governor read: "I am asking you to let me take my dear daddy's place in the electric chair. The others in our family need father and I will gladly go for his sake."

28 BURMESE VILLAGERS REPORTED KILLED IN FIGHT

Clashes with Police Occur in District Where British Put Down Revolt Last Month.

RANGOON, Burma, Feb. 21.—Twenty-five Burmese villagers were killed Thursday in a clash between 40 military police and 400 residents of Zaingthwe, near Tharawaddy, according to dispatches received here today.

Another report said three villagers were killed in the Henzada district when a party of 50 made an attack upon an official accompanied by armed policemen. Several other clashes have been reported from various points in Burma during the last fortnight.

Tharawaddy was the center of an insurrection which was put down by the British authorities at the beginning of January. The disaffected area is about 80 miles northwest of Rangoon.

SENATORS MAKE FUNDS AVAILABLE FOR PAYING BONUS

Neither an Increase in Taxes Nor an Extra Session Will Be Necessary, Leaders Agree.

$112,000,000 ADDED TO NAVY SUPPLY BILL

Not a Single Penny Lacking to Meet Loan Plans, Says Vandenberg—Johnson Comments.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Confident of enacting the veterans' loan bill over the forthcoming veto of President Hoover, Senate advocates today made available additional funds to safeguard against complaint that the cost of the legislation could not be met.

Senator Vandenberg (Rep), Michigan, told the Senate a reservoir of $785,000,000 already was available in the Treasury for meeting the obligations of the loans. However, he obtained an amendment to the naval supply bill making an addition $112,000,000 already voted to the Government insurance fund available by July 1.

Rumors that the President in his veto message on the bill might declare an extra session of Congress necessary to raise funds for meeting the obligation stirred the advocates to action.

In the debate, Chairman Smoot of the Senate Finance Committee who opposed the veterans loan measure told the Senate he did not think the legislation would involve an increase in taxes or make necessary an extra session of Congress.

"In Some Official Quarters."

Vandenberg in proposing his amendment to the naval bill said "a new myth is growing up to the effect that Congress has authorized loans without adequate reservoir for paying them."

Replying to Senator Johnson (Rep.), California, the Michigan Senator asserted "not a single penny is lacking to meet all the loan plans."

"Then I take it," said Johnson, "there has been utter gross misrepresentation in some official quarters and in the press regarding the mathematics of this legislation."

Vandenberg added that in his judgment the loan bill, allowing World War veterans to borrow half the face value of their adjusted service certificates would not involve a bond issue by the Treasury nor an increase in taxes.

The $112,000,000 which the Senate voted to make available on July 1 was money appropriated to the insurance fund in the Veterans' Bureau and would have became available the beginning of next year.

With the over $785,000,000 in securities on deposit in the Treasury for the adjusted service fund, Senator Vandenberg estimated this would be more than twice enough to meet the cost of the legislation.

Doubtful of Extra Session.

Senator Reed (Rep.), Pennsylvania, who yesterday was informed by the President that he would veto the loan bill said nothing had been indicated to him of an intention by Hoover to call an extra session. He went further and stated he did not think an extra session would be necessary if the measure was enacted.

Convinced that the overwhelming majorities for the bill in both the Senate and House would show a two-thirds majority on over-riding the veto, leaders sent word to the Veterans' Bureau to prepare for administering the law.

The measure allows World War veterans to borrow half the face value of their bonus insurance certificates—an average of $500 to each of the 3,400,000 former service men.

UNION ELECTRIC DAM AT BAGNELL NOW HOLDING WATER

Completion of the Union Electric Light and Power Co. dam across the Osage River at Bagnell, Mo., has so far progressed as to permit the impounding of water, it was announced yesterday by Frank J. Boehm, vice president of the company. The dam is the nucleus of a $33,000,000 power project soon to be completed.

During the slow process of filling the extensive lake which the dam will create, and the rise of the water to a level where it will make possible the generation of power, equipment of the producing plant will be installed.

The completed lake will be about 125 miles long, with a shore line of about 1500 miles. Power generated at the dam will be carried by transmission lines to St. Louis and will be used to operate the mines of the St. Joseph Lead Co. in St. Francois County.

GRAND BANK LOOT RETURNED TO LEMON IN ILLINOIS EARLY IN JANUARY, LAWYER SAYS

Recovered Stolen Bank Bonds

He Declares He Did Not Represent Burglars and Refuses to Affirm or Deny to Police He Had a Client.

ROBBERS CLEARED TOTAL OF $260,000

"New Racket Here," Gerk Comments—Anonymous Phone Call Opened Negotiations to Restore Plunder.

BAR ASSOCIATION CALLED TO CONSIDER LEMON'S PART IN RESTORING BANK LOOT

ATTORNEY JOSEPH L. LEMON'S action in restoring the stolen bonds to the Grand National Bank will be considered by the executive committee of the St. Louis Bar Association at a meeting at 12:30 p. m. tomorrow at the American Hotel.

In calling the meeting Edward J. McCullen, president of the Bar Association and chairman of the executive committee, said:

"I feel it is proper for the executive committee to consider what action, if any, should be taken by the Bar Association in the matter of the return of stolen bonds through an attorney to the Grand National Bank."

Obviously the only action which the Bar Association could consider would be the disbarment of Lemon, his expulsion from the Bar Association, or both.

Members of the Executive Committee of the Bar Association, besides Chairman McCullen, are James J. Seeley, Edward Ferrenbach, Robert Burkham, Fred L. English, Daniel N. Kirby, A. B. Frey and Jacob M. Lashly.

A well-known lawyer, who would not permit his name to be used, told the Post-Dispatch yesterday that Joseph L. Lemon, a member of the State Legislature, who recovered $822,000 in stolen bonds for the Grand National Bank, acted as attorney for the bank's insurance company.

He said further that Lemon began negotiations for recovery of the loot about two months ago and received the bonds about Jan. 8 at a point in Illinois less than an hour's ride by automobile from the First National Bank, where the bonds were placed in a safety deposit vault pending completion of the transaction.

Lawyer's Fee Said to Be $15,000.

The Post-Dispatch also learned from a reliable source that Lemon received as his fee $15,000 of the $140,000 reward paid by the Grand National Bank. The bonds were delivered Friday to Ed Mays, president of the Grand National, by Emmett M. Myers, resident vice president of the Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland who received them from Lemon.

The story of the essential facts is simply this, said the lawyer, talking to a Post-Dispatch reporter:

"A long time before Christmas, the Fidelity and Deposit Co. of Maryland, which had paid $125,000 insurance to the Grand National Bank on its loss in the robbery of last May, received an anonymous telephone call from a man who said he had possession of the stolen bonds or was able to arrange for their return to the bank.

"This man asked the insurance company to designate a lawyer to

POSING AS DRY AGENTS ROBBERS STEAL $1900

Hold Up Saloonkeeper and Companion on Street in Madison.

George Evangeloff, saloonkeeper at 1244 Madison avenue, Madison, was robbed of $1900 in cash yesterday by three men who held up Evangeloff and a companion at Thirteenth and G streets, Madison, and drove them to an abandoned amusement park three miles away.

With N. V. Marcovsky, a grocer, Evangeloff was returning from a Granite City bank with money to cash payroll checks for customers, when his automobile was crowded to the curb by another car.

Two of the three men alighted from the robber's car. One displayed a badge and announced he was a prohibition agent as they drew revolvers and ordered Evangeloff and Marcovsky to the rear seat.

They then drove to Eagle Park, south of Madison, where they took Evangeloff's money and automobile keys.

Farmer Robbed of $45 by Pretended Prohibition Officers.

Edward Weise, a farmer, residing six miles north of Edwardsville, was robbed of $45 Friday night by four armed men, posing as prohibition agents.

The men beat him, tied a rope around his neck and poured kerosene on him, threatening to set him afire, before he disclosed where the money, including several gold coins, was hidden. The robbers escaped.

LINER NAMED FOR COOLIDGE IS CHRISTENED BY HIS WIFE

Former First Lady Uses Bottle of Water for Launching Ceremony at Newport News.

By the Associated Press.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Feb. 21.—With a bottle of water from a little river that flows through the farm at Plymouth, Vt., where Calvin Coolidge played as a boy, the liner President Coolidge, one of the two largest ships ever built in this country for the American Merchant Marine, was christened by Mrs. Coolidge today.

As Mrs. Coolidge crashed the bottle against the prow the ship's huge hull slipped smoothly and silently out of its cradle into the James River, and several thousand persons, including a special trainload of guests from New York, Philadelphia and Washington, cheered.

Mrs. Coolidge was accompanied by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Coolidge, New Haven, Conn., and a friend, Mrs. R. B. Hills, Northampton, Mass.

R. Stanley Dollar, president of the Dollar Steamship Lines, owners of the ships, presented a platinum and diamond clasp to Mrs. Coolidge.

MEXICALI IS OVERRUN BY HUNGRY PEASANTS

Demands for Food Partly Granted; Police Quell Outbreaks; American Shot.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICALI, Lower California, Feb. 21.—Hungry men, women and children, peasants of the cotton fields, driven from their work by a week of rain, milled through this border city today crying for food.

Along the rough dirt streets squads of soldiers and police watched constantly to keep a tense situation in check. Up in the rambling palace of Gov. Louis Trejo y Lerdo de Tejada, executives cast an anxious eye upon the mutterings of the populace and sought relief for the penniless throng.

Fears of violence were aggravated by three spasmodic demonstrations which battalions of soldiers quelled quickly. An American, Pearly Matthews, suspected of an attempt to steal food, failed to obey a police command to halt and was shot down. A Mexican was wounded. Both will recover.

A crowd of the hungry gathered before a large grocery and demanded food. Three hundred packages of beans were distributed. The cry for "more" spread and soldiers hastened to the scene.

Later, a number of the crowd picked out another store, and shouted loud demands for something to eat. The frightened proprietor gave out food until the throng became too large and he called for military aid.

Gov. de Tejada issued an ultimatum requiring all ranches, bars, gambling halls, mills and other businesses to discharge American employes and replace them with Mexican help. Numerous Americans were thrown out of work and American owners of businesses in the city were stopped at the border and refused entry from Calexico, sister city in the United States.

At Hechicera, 35 miles east of Mexicali, an acute situation developed. Two hundred and fifty men, reports said, had lived for a week on milo maize.

The crowd was in strange contrast to the usual groups of revelers. The city with about 15,000 population, is a week-end retreat for many from the United States.

Orders Babies Named Guadalupe.

By the Associated Press.

GUADALAJARA, Mex., Feb. 21.—The Catholic Archbishop of this diocese has decreed that all children born in his jurisdiction this year shall be named Guadalupe, after the patron Saint of Mexico. Guadalupe is a girl's name, but it will be applied also to boys, also with "Jose" prefixed.

HOOVER EXPECTED TO VETO BILL ON MUSCLE SHOALS

Approval of Compromise Measure by Senate by Tomorrow Night or Tuesday Predicted by Leaders.

PASSAGE CONCEDED BY ITS OPPONENTS

Republican Chiefs Plan to Call Up Conference Report, Asking for Limitation on Debate.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The compromise Muscle Shoals bill, proposing Governmental manufacture and distribution of, hydroelectric power, will be in the hands of President Hoover by Monday night or Tuesday under plans formulated today by Senate leaders.

Senate approval of the measure, which passed the House yesterday, 216 to 153, was virtually conceded by its opponents.

Despite assertions from the White House that the President has not yet studied the bill, however, the belief prevailed among members of Congress that he will veto it.

In its provisions for manufacture and sale of power, the bill is similar to the one which was pocket-vetoed by former President Coolidge. President Hoover could pocket veto the present measure by taking no action on it prior to the adjournment of Congress March 4.

Much Discussion Unlikely.

Republican leaders planned today to call the conference report up Monday and if necessary ask for limitation on debate. They felt the limitation might not be necessary, however, in view of an apparent disposition on the part of opponents to let the measure go to the White House without much discussion.

The pending bill is a compromise proposal for operation of the Government's $150,000,000 power and nitrate plants at Muscle Shoals which has been under discussion in Congress for more than a decade.

The Government would operate the power plant and distribute the electricity through it own transmission lines, selling it preferentially to municipalities.

400,000 Primary Horsepower.

The Government also would construct a new dam at Cove Creek on the Clinch River in Tennessee at an estimated cost of $35,000,000, which, in addition to improving navigation and aiding in flood control, would make the capacity of Muscle Shoals between 400,000 and 500,000 primary horsepower.

The compromise feature of the bill provides for lease of the nitrate plants for production of fertilizer if a lessee can be found within a year. Otherwise the Government would use the plants for experimental manufacture of fertilizer.

ALBANIAN KING FIRED BACK AT ASSASSINS IN VIENNA

Chauffeur Tells How Monarch Braved Assailants; Aid Killed, Another Shot.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, Feb. 21.—King Zog of Albania today was pictured as a hero in the attempt on his life last night when one of his aids was killed and another wounded.

The King's chauffeur said tonight the monarch shot at the assailants as they fired, while Paskal Saracci, a friend who was with Zog, said the King cooly eyed his attackers and swayed his body from side to side to dodge the bullets.

There were reports tonight that King Zog of Albania intended to cut short his visit to Vienna, fearing another attack on his life. Police caught the assassins and arrested 60 other persons found in the vicinity who were released when proved they were not connected with the plot. The attempt was attributed to the King's political enemies .

Messages from Tirana by way of Belgrade today said the elders of the family of Maj. Topollaj, who was killed, had issued a summons to all men bearing the Major's name, to attend a clan council at Tirana to swear to a family blood feud. 34-YEAR-OLD PUBLISHER BUYS CHICAGO EVENING POST

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—The Chicago Evening Post was sold for $132,000 today to a company headed by Knowlton L. Ames Jr., the 34-year-old publisher of the Chicago Journal of Commerce.

Immediately after Ames' bid was announced the highest and the sale had been confirmed in the United States District Court, the young publisher announced that the Post would continue publication and would retain its identity.

He added that later he expected to publish both the Post and the Journal of Commerce, a morning daily, from the same office, but that they would be separate publications. The liabilities of the Post were estimated at $2,000,000 and the physical assets at $73,395. No estimate was placed on the Associated Press membership, the name or the good will.

How Grand Bank Loot Was Returned

represent it, who, upon investigation, would be determined to be a 'square shooter,' and who would not 'use the double-cross.'

"This man by telephone informed the insurance company that the robbers did not have a lawyer.

"The anonymous telephone caller was directed by the insurance company to call again in about a week, in the course of which time a 'awyer would be chosen. However, eight weeks elapsed before the insurance company received another call about the stolen bonds.

"In the meantime Lemon had been retained by the insurance company as its legal representative. When the man who said he could arrange for return of the bonds telephoned again, the insurance company gave the name of Lemon as that of its lawyer.

"Shortly after that Lemon received a telephone call, apparently from the same anonymous source. Instructions as to further contacts were given, the nature of which I do not know. I do know that delivery of the stolen bonds was made across the river in Illinois, in a place not more than an hour's ride from St. Louis by automobile. The bonds were delivered about Jan. 8.

"The robbers got $125,000 for the bonds."

Police Chief Questions Lemon.

Lemon, a former Assistant Circuit Attorney, known to his law associates as "Dick" Lemon, has steadfastly declined to affirm or deny that he had a part in the recovery of the loot. He voluntarily appeared before Chief of Police Gerk yesterday and reiterated his previous statement that, if he had anything to do with the transaction, he would be bound to silence because of the secrecy that surrounds the relationship of attorney and client.

He was questioned by Chief of Police Gerk in the presence of Chief of Detectives Kaiser and Detective-Lieutenant Coakley, but supplied no information which might lead to the identification of the intermediaries between him and the burglars who looted the bank's safety deposit vault last May 25, taking bonds, cash, jewelry and stocks worth approximately $1,000,000.

Denies Representing Burglars.

When Chief Gerk asked Lemon who his client was, the lawyer replied: "I will not say I had a client or did not have a client. If I had a client I would not be at liberty to divulge who he was." He told the Chief he might be free to answer questions later, possibly today, and repeated his assertion that he did not and would not represent criminals.

The result of the interview bore out Chief Gerk's prediction earlier in the day that "Mr. Lemon will tell me everything but what I want to know."

"He will cloak himself in the protective mantle of the confidential relationship between lawyer and client—and he will get away with it," the Chief had said.

Gerk Calls It "A New Racket."

"The return of stolen property for cash through intermediaries is a new racket in St. Louis, but an old story in the East and other places. The thief or thieves go to another person, perhaps not as crooked as the thief is, but in whom the thief has confidence, and who is unscrupulous enough to deal with thieves. Then that man will negotiate with a lawyer and the lawyer will consummate the deal."

Lemon, who has law offices in the Telephone building, was elected in November as State Representative for the Third St. Louis district. He resides at 7553 Byron place, Clayton, and maintains a voting residence at 4167 West Pine boulevard. Shortly after President Mays announced the recovery of the bonds Friday, Lemon boarded a train at Jefferson City and returned to St. Louis.

Police reports of the questioning of Mays, Myers and Lemon concerning the recovery of the bonds were turned over to Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller yesterday afternoon for his perusal.

Circuit Attorney's Position.

Miller has taken the position that there is nothing illegal in paying a reward for the recovery of stolen property, pointing out, however, that a promise to protect the thieves or withhold information would constitute compounding a felony. "However," he said, "in order to proceed before a grand jury, I would have to have evidence that such promises were made and evidence that the promises were made in the City of St. Louis, inasmuch as the prosecution must be conducted in the jurisdiction in which the crime was committed. At present I have no such evidence."

Miller said he planned to confer tomorrow with Assistant Circuit Attorney Lennon to study the police reports and review the statutes which might concern the case, after which he would decide whether or not the grand jury would be asked to investigate the circumstances surrounding the recovery of the stolen bonds.

Lennon said last night that he had talked with Lemon but had refrained from questioning him in detail because he expected to summon him for formal questioning under oath.

Myers declared yesterday he had told the Circuit Attorney's office all he knew of the transactions which resulted in the return of the bonds. "I didn't know much and I wouldn't mind if the whole world knew what I know," he said. "I told the Circuit Attorney and the police, because they have a right to know. If they want to make it public, it's up to them."

In the conversation, Myers disclosed that "it was represented that the robbers were a bunch of Chicago men, and it was suggested that the bonds be delivered here. Whether they changed their plans, I don't know."

"The details are not of public interest, although they might satisfy the morbid curiosity of some people," he remarked. "The important thing is that this big bunch of bonds is back and it has been demonstrated that you can't sell stolen bonds."

Myers declared that Alonzo A. Alexander, counsel for his company, knew nothing about the return of the bonds, but declined to state whether or not Lemon had been employed. He asserted he would pay a reward of $1000 for apprehension of the bank burglars "for the personal satisfaction of seeing them caught," but commented on the difficulty of conviction with no one but a Negro porter to identify them.

When it was pointed out that by tracing each person who had the bonds, the authorities finally would arrive at the burglars, Myers said: "Well, they might do that, but I don't think the bonds have been in the hands of the robbers for several months."

Myers said that at one time the insurance company agreed to pay 10 per cent of any reward paid for return of the stolen securities, inasmuch as it had paid the bank $125,000 under a burglary insurance policy. About a third of this amount would be returned, he said, since the bank's securities had been recovered.

President Mays, however, estimated in an interview that about $75,000 would be refunded. The insurance company, he said, had never agreed to pay any part of the reward and the entire expense of this would be borne by the bank.

Why Facts Were Withheld.

Asked if he had withheld announcement of the return of the bonds in order to set a trap for the robbers, Mays replied: "Well, to set a trap for anybody, for any crook that might be in between the robbers and the bonds. We wanted to see if anybody was talking. From your paper it appeared that somebody was talking. That was good information and we thank you for it."

The Post-Dispatch on Jan. 28 published exclusively the news that negotiations were nearing a successful conclusion with an arrangement whereby the bonds would be placed in a safe deposit box in a downtown bank and the Grand National would pay a reward of 15 per cent, approximately $120,000, through Myers. Mays at that time admitted negotiations were in progress but denials were made by others involved.

Chief Gerk said yesterday that he had heard a month ago that negotiations were under way and had his men interview Myers, Mays and attorneys for the insurance company and the bank, receiving only denials. The first information of the recovery of the bonds was received at Police Headquarters Friday when Mays telephoned requesting the service of policemen to accompany him from the First National Bank to his own bank, at 3615 Olive street, "with some bonds." Detectives, who were assigned to the work, ascertained the nature of the bonds and notified Chief of Detectives Kaiser.

Mays Discusses Methods.

A reporter asked Mays: "Do you think, now that it's all over, that you might have done better to take the police into your confidence and try to catch the robbers as well as to get the bonds back?"

Mays replied: "We did and the police wouldn't take us into their confidence. They got a letter from a man who said he saw the robbers coming out of the alley behind the bank. They didn't tell us anything about it and we didn't know about it until it was published in the newspapers, six months later."

Chief Gerk, asked if he thought the Police Department could have trapped the robbers if they had been taken secretly into the negotiations, said he did not know.

What the Robbers Got.

During the weeks that the recovery of the bonds was concealed, it was rumored in the underworld, as published in the Post-Dispatch, Feb. 11, that the bonds had passed out of the hands of the robbers and were in a safe place, and that the robbers had been paid. It was told at that time that the robbers had retained the stolen cash, about $74,000 and the stolen jewelry, worth about $61,000, destroying stock certificates which can be replaced with duplicates with the $125,000 reward paid for the recovery of the stolen bonds the robbers got about $260,000 by the arrangement.

Officers of the Grand National Bank approached the heaviest losers of bonds, asking them to agree to pay a 15 per cent "restoration charge" and abandon suits which had been filed on the grounds that the bank was negligent in failing properly to safeguard its safe deposit vault against burglary. One or two losers accepted these terms and others refused, so that this plan was dropped and the bank decided to pay the reward.

On the basis of 15 per cent of $822,000 in bonds, the reward would have been $123,300, which was $1700 less than the robbers actually received. Shortly after the burglary the bank had offered a 10 per cent reward for the return of all or part of the loot.

$956,000 LOSS CUT TO $275,000 BY RECOVERY OF STOLEN SECURITIES

WITH the recovery of bonds stolen in the Grand National Bank burglary, the net loss to the bank, its insurance company and its customers is reduced from $956,800 to $275,000, according to figures now available.

Tabulation of estimates fixes the bank's net loss at approximately $133,000; customers' losses at $92,000, and the Fidelity & Deposit Co.'s loss at $50,000.

The bank lost $43,000 in cash in the burglary and paid $140,000 as a reward for the return of the bonds. It expects to retain $50,000 of the $125,000 which the Fidelity & Deposit Co. paid on a burglary insurance policy.

The bank's customers lost $31,000 in cash and $61,000 in jewelry.

The robbers apparently got about $260,000, divided $74,000 cash stolen in the burglary. $125,000 cash from the reward and jewelry valued at $61,000. Joseph L. Lemon, who acted for the insurance company in recovering the bonds, is said to have received $15,000 of the reward as his fee.

standing efforts of Coast Guard, Customs and Prohibition forces, foreign liquors are available in large quantities.

Conditions in Indiana were described as "very bad," with "liquor violations constituting the largest class numerically of any one other class of violation" and with drinking prevalent among minor boys and the so-called middle or better class of adults.

The report upon Arkansas said illicit distilling was general throughout the Ozarks and that conditions along the Mississippi River were most unwholesome.

It was in these six states that the reports before the Senate pictured by far the worst conditions arising under the dry laws. In the remaining 26 states, although the presence of large quantities of illicit liquor was noted, there was little caustic comment as to the results of prohibition.

The 11 states, in which conditions generally were described as satisfactory, were Virginia, Arizona, Alabama, Michigan, Maine, North Dakota, Idaho, West Virginia, Georgia, New Mexico and South Carolina.

Virginia Forces Co-Operate.

Of Virginia, it was said that, with the exception of the police chiefs of two cities, officials were agreed that their forces work in harmony and co-operate about 100 per cent.

In Arizona the commission investigator was told by one prohibition official that the State was bone dry, but others testified some liquor was being smuggled in from Mexico.

Another report said Alabama conditions were improving and that the state was progressing under prohibition.

Maine was said to have excellent dry law conditions, with the exception of Bar Harbor, where society people were said to create an attractive market.

15 States Listed as Lax.

The 15 states in which reports described conditions as ranging from generally satisfactory to generally lax were Missouri, Iowa, Connecticut, Rhode Island, North Carolina, Wyoming, Mississippi, Ohio, Vermont, Texas, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Kansas, Minnesota and Utah.

In Texas conditions in the northern districts were labeled "generally satisfactory," but those in some Southern sections were characterized as extremely bad, with liquor plentiful and enforcement organizations inadequate.

"Plenty of good moderate priced liquor is available both in Fort Worth and Dallas," the report said. "Foreign liquor is likewise available, but in small quantities and at higher prices."

Somewhat similar conditions were described as existing in the other states.

PERUVIAN GARRISON SCENE OF NEW REVOLT

Part of Troops at Arequipa in Uprising, Seeking Leguia's Return to Power.

By the Associated Press.

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 21.—The Government announced tonight that a revolutionary movement, which was suppressed yesterday at Callao, had ramifications through other parts of the republic, with part of the military garrison revolting at Arequipa and now facing an attack by loyal forces.

An official statement declared that the movement was headed by officers seeking a return to power of Augusto B. Leguia, the deposed President, now in the national penitentiary, and some civilians also affiliated with the Leguiaistas.

Troops from Tacna, Cuzco and Puno are said to be marching against Arequipa, while Mollendo, the fort controlling Arequipa's trade, and the Arequipa airport have been closed.

In the meantime, 39 prisoners are held for their part in the short-lived revolt that broke out in Lima and Callao yesterday, and the Government declared tonight the authors of all uprisings would be punished severely.

An uprising at Arequipa lends interest to the picture of revolt, for it was an outbreak at this city that placed Provisional President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro in power last year.

Sanchez Cerro at that time was a Lieutenant-Colonel in the army and many times had been in conflict with the Leguia regime. When he began a revolt at Arequipa the movement quickly spread to Lima and there a military junta threw out the President, assuming power.

Sanchez Cerro was offered a post in this Government but he scorned it and threatened trouble if the leaders of the revolt in the south were not given a chance to finish the job they started.

The junta yielded and Sanchez Cerro flew north in an airplane, receiving a wildly enthusiastic reception. He went in almost immediately as Provisional President.

Since then there have been sporadic outbreaks against his rule but none has been successful.

American Killed in Outbreak Was Son of Texan.

PARIS, Tex., Feb. 21.—R. A. Scidmore, American, killed in the Peruvian revolt yesterday, was the son of J. T. Scidmore, who lives three miles east of here. Several other relatives live in this section. Mrs. Scidmore, formerly Kathleen Sims of Bethlehem, Pa., and their 3-year-old son will return with Scidmore's body, arriving in New York March 9 on the S. S. Santa Barbara.

Scidmore enlisted in the United States navy in 1911 and served through the World War. In 1919 he became connected with the Grace Steamship Lines. Three sisters are among the survivors.

Woodcock's Home Option Liquor Plan As Outlined to Wickersham Board

Before Becoming Prohibition Director He Approved Possession in Houses If Persons Were Otherwise Law-Abiding.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Among the mass of material submitted to the Senate by the Wickersham Commission, from which it made up its recent prohibition report, are the following comments and recommendations:

Home option was the solution of the prohibition problem advanced by Prohibition Director Woodcock to the commission in concluding his report as its special investigator. That was before he became prohibition enforcement director.

"It could be put into effect," said Woodcock, "by a simple administrative policy—to make no effort to overcome the difficulties that legally exist in getting evidence as to violations in the home.

"The citizen could not claim the right to buy or sell liquor. But if he possesses liquor, or makes liquor in his home, and in such way as not to be observed by the public, and if he properly supports his family, this policy would require that he be not disturbed.

"If he fails in a single public duty, if he breaks the peace in any way, if he fails to take care of his family, if he fails to keep himself fit to perform any public duty, the state steps in and punishes.

Pleasing Wets and Drys.

"This plan makes unlawful all commerce in liquor, does not compel the dry to support a state dispensary, leaves the wet in full enjoyment of any rights he believes he has, which may be exercised without affecting any one else.

Woodcock expressed conviction that the Government could not shift the burden of enforcement to the states. He quoted Federal Judge A. S. Van Valkenburgh at Kansas City as asserting that 50 years would be required for a fair trial of prohibition.

As to the effectiveness of enforcement Woodcock said beer consumption was only 23 per cent of what it would have been; homemade wine has increased "indeterminably" and consumption of distilled spirits had decreased.

"Unquestionably," he reported, "conditions can be improved. All leaks from industrial alcohol can be stopped substantially. All smuggling can be stopped. The amount of unlawful distilling can be reduced with more careful, intelligent and determined investigating and prosecution is a question of good men."

Swedish Plan Praised.

The Swedish system of liquor control was highly recommended by John Motley Morehead, American Minister to Sweden. The Swedish plan formed the basis for the substitute program recommended in Commissioner Anderson's report and indorsed by five other commissioners.

Morehead testified the Bratt system in Sweden had reduced drinking, virtually abolished bootlegging and was popular with the people. He said he thought it would work in this country with some modifications.

Morehead testified he had voted as a dry in this country, and if he had a chance to vote on keeping what we have or going back to what we had before prohibition he would vote dry again.

The Bratt system is different from the Volstead system, he said, in that under the Volstead system "all liquor drinking is bad, whereas under the Bratt system they say that only a part of liquor is objectionable."

Private Profit Eliminated.

"The success of it," he said, "is built on the fact that it takes away from the private individual any profit."

The prices of liquor under the system, Morehead testified, are about the same as before the war.

"Is the working man pretty well satisfied with that 4 per cent beer in Sweden?" Commissioner Kenyon asked.

"Oh, yes," Morehead replied. "And it is not any real hardship if you can get the beer that you want and two drinks of hard liquor a day—that ought to satisfy a man."

He said there was no complaint of graft or corruption. "The only complaint is undue severity," he said.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "it is the one system in the world that does work and it works. It produces revenue for the country. The people are satisfied."

Nationwide Police System.

An outline of one of the most thorough police systems in existence was proposed for the consideration of the commission in report of its two chief investi tors, Henry S. Dennison and Al Sawyer.

The Dennison-Sawyer re urged the creation of a nationw system of criminal information change, a border patrol force plemented by a sizeable pl clothes squad, and a coast gu intelligence unit to work in c junction with the prohibition fo

In addition, the report urged increase of 60 per cent in the nu ber of prohibition agents, the lection of more coast guard a custom officers, and better b for the former service.

Among other recommendati was one that agents should not required to drink in order to evidence.

In discussing the state of pro bition enforcement before transfer of the prohibition bure from the Treasury to the Just Department, the report said mu lax enforcement resulted from ternal friction among the th Treasury bureaus—customs, co guard and prohibition.

Frequent changes in the admi istrative personnel and in the ge graphical limits of the prohibiti districts of the nation was cited the report as indicating "the unse tled state of the administration prohibition."

Mrs. Willebrandt's Views.

In defending the legality grape concentrates before the com mission, Mrs. Mable Walker Wi lebrandt, former Assistant Atto ney-General, said representative of the industry were assured the Treasury and Justice depar ments as far back as 1925 th the product was legal.

Her statement cited Senate de bate to support her contention th wine made in the home can con tain legally more than one-half one per cent alcohol, the limi fixed in the Volstead act. She now counsel for the Californi Fruit Industries, Ltd.

"It was the intent of Congress said Mrs. Willebrandt, "to give t the householder all the leniency as to fermented beverages in con tra-distinction to brewed or dis tilled beverages, that properl could be given."

"The thought of Congress bac of Section 29 was to lift the heav hand of the Volstead act from interfering with family habits s far as possible under the eight eenth amendment. In spite of th fact that much newspaper confu sion, misstatement and controversy has arisen over Section 29, a stud reveals that Congress was just a liberal and as plain as it could be."

L. E. ANDERSON CO. RECEIVERSHIP SUIT DISMISSAL SOUGHT

With Creditors Agreeing, Liquidation Plan Is "In Effect" Subject to Approval of Court.

PAYING OF CLAIMS IN FULL FORESEEN

If Brokerage House Wishes to Re-Enter Exchange, Certain Loan Practices Must Be Abandoned.

With the successful conclusion yesterday of the first step in the proposed voluntary liquidation of the suspended brokerage firm of Lorenzo E. Anderson & Co., the receivers are prepared to go into Circuit Court Thursday and ask that the receivership be dismissed and the plan approved. It is expected that under this plan creditors eventually will be paid in full, but that the six partners in the firm and others who contributed to its capital through the Anco Investment Co. will lose their investment.

The Reorganization Committee, in a formal statement yesterday, declared the liquidation plan, heretofore fully described, to be in effect, subject to the approval of the Court.

The status of the firm in relation to its membership in the New York Stock Exchange is still that of suspension, the question of reinstatement or further action of any nature being in the hands of the Exchange's Committee on Admissions.

Explanation of Suspension.

In this connection the Post-Dispatch learned from the Exchange, in response to telegraphic inquiry, that the suspension was ordered by the president of the Exchange "under article 16, section 2 of the constitution (of the Exchange) providing that when the president is advised by the Committee on Business Conduct that a firm is in such financial condition that it cannot be permitted to continue in business with safety to its creditors or to the Exchange, he shall announce to the Exchange the suspension of such firm."

The Exchange withdrew its original announcement on Jan. 22 that the suspension was for "insolvency," but had not offered any further explanation until that given in response to the Post-Dispatch's inquiry.

A Post-Dispatch correspondent in New York was informed that if the firm applies for reinstatement, which it may do if it meets its obligations within a year, the Committee on Admissions will scrutinize carefully its business practices, some of which have been questioned as a result of the failure.

One practice which has been widely discussed in financial circles in St. Louis relates to the disposition by the company of securities carried by it for the accounts of its trading customers as collateral for its own loans. It is admitted that some such securities were sold out by banks with which they had been pledged without opportunity to redeem them having been given customers to whom they were credited.

Release Agreement Signed.

The pledging or hypothecating of the customers' securities by the broker was provided for under the authorization signed by all customers with trading accounts. This form of authorization, substantially the same as is used by all members of the New York Stock Exchange, gave blanket permission to the firm to use the securities for the amount due it thereon "or for a greater amount," and thus strictly speaking, was a release to the broker from any legal liability for use of the securities to whatever extent.

A resolution of the Governing Committee of the Exchange, however, as has already been told, states that the legal authorization "does not justify the Stock Exchange house in pledging or loaning more of such securities than is fair and reasonable in view of the obligations of the customer to the broker."

From two of the oldest and most outstanding brokerage firms in St. Louis the Post-Dispatch learned that "fair and reasonable" is generally interpreted by the Governing Committee to mean not more than 20 per cent in excess of the advance made to the customer by the broker.

Thus if the customer owed the broker $100,000 and had securities with a value of $300,000 credited to his account, the broker would be justified in using $130,000 of those securities for his own protection.

St. Louis Examination Made.

The Stock Exchange guards this provision zealously, the two brokers informed the Post-Dispatch, and makes examinations of the members from time to time without notice.

In this connection, it was learned that following the suspension of the Anderson company, auditors of the Stock Exchange examined all Stock Exchange members in St. Louis.

The question of the Anderson company's practice with respect to customers' securities was raised by the statement of Charles Nagel, attorney for Frank C. Rand, chairman of the Board of the Interna-

With Creditors Agreeing, Liquidation Plan Is "In Effect" Subject to Approval of Court.

PAYING OF CLAIMS IN FULL FORESEEN

If Brokerage House Wishes to Re-Enter Exchange, Certain Loan Practices Must Be Abandoned.

With the successful conclusion yesterday of the first step in the proposed voluntary liquidation of the suspended brokerage firm of Lorenzo E. Anderson & Co., the receivers are prepared to go into Circuit Court Thursday and ask that the receivership be dismissed and the plan approved. It is expected that under this plan creditors eventually will be paid in full, but that the six partners in the firm and others who contributed to its capital through the Anco Investment Co. will lose their investment.

The Reorganization Committee, in a formal statement yesterday, declared the liquidation plan, heretofore fully described, to be in effect, subject to the approval of the Court.

The status of the firm in relation to its membership in the New York Stock Exchange is still that of suspension, the question of reinstatement or further action of any nature being in the hands of the Exchange's Committee on Admissions.

Explanation of Suspension.

In this connection the Post-Dispatch learned from the Exchange, in response to telegraphic inquiry, that the suspension was ordered by the president of the Exchange "under article 16, section 2 of the constitution (of the Exchange) providing that when the president is advised by the Committee on Business Conduct that a firm is in such financial condition that it cannot be permitted to continue in business with safety to its creditors or to the Exchange, he shall announce to the Exchange the suspension of such firm."

The Exchange withdrew its original announcement on Jan. 22 that the suspension was for "insolvency," but had not offered any further explanation until that given in response to the Post-Dispatch's inquiry.

A Post-Dispatch correspondent in New York was informed that if the firm applies for reinstatement, which it may do if it meets its obligations within a year, the Committee on Admissions will scrutinize carefully its business practices, some of which have been questioned as a result of the failure.

One practice which has been widely discussed in financial circles in St. Louis relates to the disposition by the company of securities carried by it for the accounts of its trading customers as collateral for its own loans. It is admitted that some such securities were sold out by banks with which they had been pledged without opportunity to redeem them having been given customers to whom they were credited.

Release Agreement Signed.

The pledging or hypothecating of the customers' securities by the broker was provided for under the authorization signed by all customers with trading accounts. This form of authorization, substantially the same as is used by all members of the New York Stock Exchange, gave blanket permission to the firm to use the securities for the amount due it thereon "or for a greater amount," and thus strictly speaking, was a release to the broker from any legal liability for use of the securities to whatever extent.

A resolution of the Governing Committee of the Exchange, however, as has already been told, states that the legal authorization, "does not justify the Stock Exchange house in pledging or loaning more of such securities than is fair and reasonable in view of the obligations of the customer to the broker."

From two of the oldest and most outstanding brokerage firms in St. Louis the Post-Dispatch learned that "fair and reasonable" is generally interpreted by the Governing Committee to mean not more than 30 per cent in excess of the advance made to the customer by the broker.

Thus if the customer owed the broker $100,000 and had securities with a value of $300,000 credited to his account, the broker would be justified in using $130,000 of those securities for his own protection.

St. Louis Examination Made.

The Stock Exchange guards this provision zealously, the two brokers informed the Post-Dispatch, and makes examinations of the members from time to time without notice.

In this connection, it was learned that following the suspension of the Anderson company, auditors of the Stock Exchange examined all Stock Exchange members in St. Louis.

The question of the Anderson company's practice with respect to customers' securities was raised by the statement of Charles Nagel, attorney for Frank C. Rand, chairman of the Board of the International Shoe Co., describing his client as "one of the largest unsecured creditors." It was learned that Rand, as a customer of the company, had against him a debit charge of about $242,000, but had to his credit, in the audit prepared for the receivers, an "equity" of some $645,000.

The partners in the firm have made no statement on this or any other phase of the company's business for publication. The senior partner, Arthur C. Hilmer, has been ill and can not be interviewed.

Partner Gives Illustration.

One of the partners, who would not permit his name to be used, explained how under the stress of such circumstances as preceded the suspension of the firm, when banks were calling loans or demanding additional collateral, it might be impossible for a brokerage house to keep strictly within the limits prescribed by the Exchange rules. He would neither affirm nor deny, however, that such a condition existed in the Anderson company, stating that the illustration he gave was merely hypothetical.

If it should be found that customers' securities were used by the Anderson company to a greater extent than is generally approved under the Stock Exchange rule, this would explain why some customers who sought to pay their debits and obtain delivery of their securities shortly preceding the suspension, were put off. It also would explain the fact that securities posted for Rand's account were not there, thus putting Rand in the position of having no direct security for his credit balance.

Slayers of Highway Patrolman Who Will Be Executed Tomorrow

EDWARD B. M'LEAN CITED FOR CONTEMPT OF COURT

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21. — Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post, was ordered today to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of the District of Columbia Supreme Court for seeking a divorce in Mexico after being directed by the Court to pay his wife $7500 monthly.

The publisher was ordered to show why his estate should not be impounded and the income applied to support of his family, and also why he should not be imprisoned.

Several weeks ago Justice Adkins ordered the monthly payments. On Feb. 4, McLean started divorce proceedings at Cuernavaca, Morelos, against his wife, Evelyn Walsh McLean, and she was required to answer by next Tuesday.

LOCAL DROUTH RELIEF CAMPAIGN TO END FRIDAY

The local drouth relief campaign will close next Friday, the St. Louis Red Cross Chapter announced yesterday, urging prompt contributions by those who are able and have not yet given to the fund.

The quota is $220,000. Contributions yesterday stood at $157,483, including $500 from G. A. Radford. Donations go to the Red Cross through Oliver F. Richards, treasurer, Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co., Eighth and Locust streets.

Maude Parker Child to Wed.

SOUTHERN PINES, N. C., Feb. 21.—The engagement of Mrs. Parker Child of New York and Southern Pines to Edmund William Pavenstedt of New York was announced at a dinner given here tonight by Mr. and Mrs. Struthers Burt. They will be married in New York City March 31. Mrs. Child, who writes under the name of Maude Parker, obtained a divorce from Richard Washburn Child, former Ambassador to Italy, in Paris in 1926. She has resided here with her two daughters for several years. Pavenstedt is a banker and broker.

IRENE SCHROEDER TO GO TO ELECTRIC CHAIR TOMORROW

With Companion, Walter Dague, She Will Be Executed for Killing Pennsylvania Patrolman.

By the Associated Press.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Feb. 21.—Over the State's highways Mrs. Irene Schroeder and Walter Glenn Dague rode in an automobile this morning from New Castle to Rockview penitentiary, near here, where they are to be electrocuted Monday morning for the killing of Corp. Brady Paul of the State Highway Patrol.

The woman stepped smiling from the Lawrence County jail while the inmates within sang hymns. To a person in the crowd about the jail who said "Goodbye, Irene," Mrs. Schroeder replied:

"Goodbye, honey."

Dague also was calm as he and his companion climbed into the automobile to begin the several hours' ride to Bellefonte, the last of many trips they have made together, first as robbers and then as fugitives from the law.

Those in the car with the condemned pair said they had never seen Mrs. Schroeder in better spirits. She laughed and joked almost continually, they said. Dague, while not showing the same lighthearted attitude as the woman, did not appear at all depressed.

Speeding from New Castle under a guard of county officers and an escort of State police and highway patrolmen, the condemned pair passed the place where Corporal Paul was shot in a spectacular fight Dec. 27, 1929. Paul was slain when he stopped the automobile in which Mrs. Schroeder and Dague were fleeing from a grocery store robbery at Butler.

Mrs. Schroeder will be the first woman ever put to death in the electric chair in Pennsylvania. The prisoners will be kept in the prison death house until they are taken to the chair, the woman probably first, at 7 a. m. Monday.

Mrs. Schroeder bade her 5-year-old son, Donie, a last good-by this morning. Her father, Joseph Crawford, and a brother-in-law, John Schroeder, left New Castle in an automobile for Bellefonte, the father saying:

"I want to be out there with Irene, and we are going."

When admitted to the death house Mrs. Schroeder was asked, in the course of a routine set of questions, what was her occupation.

"Nothing," she replied. "One of my troubles has been that I never knew how to do anything."

TIGHTENS PADLOCK DRY LAW

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21. — Another Wickersham proposal to aid prohibition enforcement was approved today when the House passed the Christopherson bill to strengthen the padlock law.

The measure now goes to the Senate. It is the last of the proposals submitted a year ago by the Wickersham commission to be approved by the House. It permits the institution of proceedings by serving notice through publication, on absentee owners of property used for liquor law violation. Under the existing law, Federal authorities have to serve the individual personally.

DR. C. L. SELLERS KILLS HIMSELF WITH SHOTGUN

Physician Found Shot Through Head in Bathroom of Apartment on Pershing Avenue.

Dr. Claude L. Sellers, a physician with offices in the Carleton Building, shot and killed himself at 10 o'clock last night with an automatic shotgun in the bathroom of his apartment at 5608 Pershing avenue.

His wife, Mrs. Mildred McCasland Sellers, had left the apartment about 15 minutes before to visit Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Murch, neighbors across the hall. They heard the shot and ran to the Sellers apartment where they found the physician unconscious.

Dr. Sellers was shot through the head, the charge having struck him in the face. Mrs. Sellers told police she knew of no reason why he should take his own life. He frequently examined the weapon with which he shot himself, she said, and was planning a hunting trip for today.

Dr. Sellers, who was 46 years old, came to St. Louis as a young man and studied medicine at St. Louis University, sharing a room in the 3600 block of Pine street with Mayor Miller, then a law student at Washington University. His widow has two daughters by a previous marriage, one married and one living at home.

Mrs. Sellers formerly was the wife of Fred E. McCasland, an East St. Louis real estate dealer. They were divorced in 1914.

12 MEN REPORTED KILLED IN POWDER PLANT EXPLOSION

Airplane With Physicians Sent to Investigate Possible Disaster at Gold Mine in Ontario.

NORTH BAY, Ont., Feb. 21.—A glaring flash, a terrific explosion felt nearly 20 miles away and a pall of smoke were the only evidences late today of a possible tragedy at the powder plant of the Hollinger gold mines, 17 miles from Timmins, shortly before noon today.

A report that 12 men were killed had not been verified. There is no telephone within five miles of the mine property. An airplane carrying two physicians was sent to investigate.

Nine officials said not more than three men were working at the property removing old machinery and destroying old dynamite. They are inclined to think the old explosive too weak for a serious blow-up.

ST. LOUIS TO KEEP BIRTHDAY OF WASHINGTON TOMORROW

Holiday in Schools, Banks, City Offices and Courts; Business Houses and Stores Open.

Various civic institutions will be closed tomorrow in observance of Washington's birthday, which falls today.

Following the custom of past years, the day will be observed as a holiday in public schools, city and Federal offices, and the Courts. Banks and financial houses, with the St. Louis Stock Exchange and the Merchants' Exchange will be closed, but department stores and a number of business houses will remain open.

No delivery of mail will be made during the day, except of mail bearing special delivery stamps.

WEALTHY BALTIMORE WOMAN FOUND BEATEN TO DEATH

Recluse Attacked in Basement Apartment of Building She Owned in Negro Section.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 21. — Miss Anna Herrara, wealthy 48-year-old recluse, was found tonight by police, beaten to death in the basement apartment of a building she owned in the Negro section of Baltimore. A physician said she had been criminally attacked.

$500,000 for Missouri River Work.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Allotment of $500,000 to meet payments on continuing contracts and carry on stabilization operations on the Missouri River projects from Kansas City to the mouth was made today by the War Department. Construction operations are being pushed with a view to obtaining a navigable channel six feet in depth up to Kansas City, as provided for in the project for the improvement of the river at the earliest practical date.

MRS. THOMASSON DISMISSES LAWYERS, GETS CONTINUANCE

Appears in Court Herself in Connection With Annulment Suit Litigation.

A continuance until Tuesday of the hearing on two motions filed by attorneys of Hugh W. Thomasson, 73-year-old capitalist, in connection with the litigation growing out of his annulment suit, was granted to Mrs. Grace Carolyn Thomasson by Circuit Judge McElhinney at Clayton yesterday.

Mrs. Thomasson appeared in court and asked for the continuance herself, stating she had dismissed her attorneys "because they are suing me for fees." She said she wanted time in which to employ more lawyers. Attorneys who have represented her in the litigation thus far are Edward W. Foristel, Claude W. McElwee and Marion X. Morris. McElwee and Morris were in court and Morris admitted, in answer to Judge McElhinney's question, that he had been dismissed.

The motions, which were to have been heard yesterday, ask that Mrs. Thomasson be required to answer certain questions in depositions taken by her husband's attorneys and that she be compelled to surrender a certain property settlement contract entered into by Thomasson and his 28-year-old wife upon their marriage last August.

Notice of a suit for an injunction to restrain her from disposing of $600,000 in property given to her by her husband was served on Mrs. Thomasson as she left the courtroom. The suit was filed by Thomasson's attorneys, Stephen C. Rogers and Walter Wehrle, several weeks ago but deputy sheriffs had been unable to obtain service.

HOLDUP MAN OBTAINS $70 AT DOWNTOWN CANDY SHOP

At Oil Station Robber Gets $100; Shoe Dealer Loses $25, Fires at Thieves.

The Mavrakos Candy Shop at 724 Locust street, was held up at 7:45 o'clock last night by a man with a revolver who took $70 from Miss Florence Signaigo, clerk in charge, and escaped on foot.

Donald McKenzie, oil station proprietor, was held up in front of his home, 4827 Wabada avenue, by a man who took $100 in cash.

William Kramer, shoe dealer at 2703 South Jefferson avenue, was robbed of $25 by two men. Kramer fired six shots with a revolver as the robbers fled from the store.

PEORIA, Ill., Feb. 21.—George Henthorne, 84 years old, one of the oldest Masons in Illinois, was killed here tonight when alighting from a street car, he was hit by an automobile that did not stop. He would have celebrated his sixtieth anniversary as a Mason May 3.

TWO CHILDREN, SISTERS, KILLED IN FIRE IN VENICE

May and Irene Calbert, 4 and 2 Years Old, Die in Blaze That Destroys Frame Cottage.

Margaret May Calbert, 4 years old, and her sister, Irene, 2, were burned to death shortly after 7 o'clock last night, when the 3-room frame home of their parents on the river bank in Venice, Ill., north of McKinley Bridge, was destroyed by fire.

The parents escaped from the burning house, after an unsuccessful attempt to rescue the children. The cause of the fire was not learned by the volunteer firemen who went to the scene from Venice.

There is no fire plug in the neighborhood, which is known as Carr Island, though it is part of the mainland.

The loss of the house was estimated at about $500. The father, John Calbert, is unemployed.

ROMAN RITES AT INSTITUTION OF EPISCOPAL RECTOR PLANNED

Bishop Manning to Preside at Ceremony in Honor of the Rev. Granville Mercer Williams.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—With full Roman ceremonial at the service of Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, the Rev. Granville Mercer Williams will be instituted rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church of St. Mary the Virgin tomorrow night.

Bishop Manning, long criticised by churchmen of his diocese as leaning too strongly toward Rome, will be the preacher at the service and will officiate at the ceremony of the institution. All this will constitute a very delicate situation for low churchmen, who labeled benediction an "illegal" service for the Episcopal Church, and it may open a controversy even more serious than those that have raged around Bishop Manning recently.

It is certain, low church clergymen said today, to renew much of the bitterness and friction that arose last summer over the conversion to Romanism of the former St. Mary the Virgin rector, the Rev. Selden P. Delany.

SENATE VOTES $10,000,000 FOR BUILDING DESTROYERS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The Senate today added $10,000,000 to the Navy Department appropriation bill to start work on 11 new destroyers authorized 15 years ago.

The vote, 63 to 10, gave Senate approval to the first increment of destroyers allowed the United States under the London naval treaty, which limited this country's destroyer strength to 150,000 tons.

A little later the House rejected the Senate amendment and sent the $358,000,000 bill to conference.

The Senate passed two other amendments. One would authorize the commissioning of the entire 1931 graduating class at the Naval Academy regardless of whether this exceeded the authorized officer personnel. Chairman Hale of the Naval Committee said commissions would be denied 175 of this class unless the amendment was approved. The other would permit each Senator and Representative to appoint four men to Annapolis every year instead of three as at present and as provided by the bill as it came from the House.

PRINCIPAL SHIFTED IN DRUM CORPS ROW

Head of Mason School Sent to Peabody Due to Dispute With Parents.

Miss Margaret Gartenbach, central figure in the Mason School Patrons' Association controversy over the school Drum Corps, has been transferred from the principalship of the Mason School, 6031 Southwest avenue, to that of the Peabody School, 1606 South Eighteenth street.

The controversy reached public attention last spring, when Miss Gartenbach said the Drum Corps had assumed an importance in school affairs beyond proper proportion. She refused to recognize it as a school activity and Fred J. Dreyer, president of the patrons' organization and drum major of the corps, was ousted at a meeting which his friends claimed was "packed."

The corps, it was said several months ago, had been made a function of the Central Twenty-Fourth Ward Improvement Association and no longer remained an issue, but a committee of the patrons' group, whose spokesman was a Dreyer ally, asked Superintendent of Instruction Gerling last December to remove Miss Gartenbach. The committee asserted that Miss Gartenbach was too arbitrary in her administration and too vigorous in her discipline, and would not permit pupils to form baseball or basketball teams. Miss Gartenbach declared her decisions were justified.

Miss Gartenbach's transfer is effective tomorrow and subject to ratification by the Board of Education next month. Explaining it yesterday, Supt. Gerling said:

"It seemed better to make the change than to retain Miss Gartenbach at the Mason School. Assistant Superintendent F. M. Underwood, in charge of the district, and I thought the change would be better for all concerned. We are making it without any reflection on Miss Gartenbach, we're not blaming her at all. There has been so much antagonism among the people out there that we thought this was the best way to end it."

In order to make the transfer, H. L. Moreland, who has been principal of the Peabody School, has been shifted to the Grant School, 3009 Pennsylvania avenue, and E. A. Hood from the Grant to the Mason.

FANNIE HURST ASSAILS VISITING BRITISH AUTHOR

Attacks John Boynton Priestley for His "Half-Baked" Criticisms of America.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Fanny Hurst, novelist and short story writer, has assailed critical visiting foreigners in general and John Boynton Priestley, British author of "Angel Pavement" and "The Good Companions," in particular. After reading a newspaper interview with Priestley after he arrived on the Olympic, she declared:

"America once more awakens to the crack of a whip across her cheek by a foreign visitor and this time, hopefully, the welt seems a little higher and redder than usual. A few more judgments like Mr. Priestley's against us may succeed in awakening the long and gladly suffering American public to a proper, if amused, resentment of these half-baked and highly underdone judgments which are constantly and loudly being uttered against us by foreign visitors before they have much more than set foot on the first cobblestone of America.

"If Mr. Priestley's broadside against our skyline, our women, our national capacity for ugliness, serves to awaken the American people to some consciousness of their ridiculous snobbery, then his machine-stitched indictments have not been hurled in vain.

"The visiting foreigner, who, one hour after he has set foot in America for the first time, states that Babbitt is the only true picture of America, deserves court-martial by laughter, and one is moved to concede no greater degree of authenticity to Mr. Priestley's hot-off-the-griddle appraisal of America in general than was found in his reference to the uncut volumes of 'Main Street' languishing on British library tables when the only editions of that book boast machine-cut leaves."

For Sale—A Real Buy, at Half Price

An unusual opportunity to purchase a profitable business with no liabilities on a no profit basis.

The sole owner desires to sell a business that has been established for 12 years, because of taking over another business which requires more money, his entire interest and time. Net profits have averaged $25,000.00 per year for 12 years and in 1930 showed a profit of $22,000.00.

Sales have averaged $500,000.00 per year for 12 years and amounted to $800,000.00 in 1930. This business can be bought for $35,000.00, which is $35,000.00 less than it is actually worth. This concession is made for a quick thinker. A large percentage of this business is done on a cash basis. The month of December 1930 alone showed a profit of $...?...?...? (this will be furnished later). Only actual cash will be accepted and is up for sale—today (now) and not tomorrow. The purchase alone will net $85,000 profit to buyer, in addition to an approximate earning of $20,000 for 1931.

The owner will guarantee to furnish another party who can take ½ interest if you are not prepared to purchase entire business. This is a time for a man with some money to prove to himself whether he is intelligent or not.

Dry Enforcement in Missouri Far From Satisfactory, Agent Of Wickersham Board Reported Judge Faris "Woefully Disappointed;" Mayor Miller Said to Have Declared It Was Almost Impossible to Get Convictions.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Conflicting views on prohibition enforcement conditions in Missouri were reported to the Wickersham Commission by investigators of the old Prohibition Bureau, according to data submitted to the Senate by the Commission in compliance with the Tydings resolution.

In general, the investigators reflected conditions as far from satisfactory. The high lights of the reports follow:

1—Judge Faris of St. Louis was quoted as saying that he was "woefully disappointed" in the prohibition law and as questioning the wisdom of the Jones act.

2—Mayor Miller was reported as saying that it was almost impossible to get juries to convict persons making liquor in St. Louis. The Mayor was characterized as a "wet."

3—The United States Commissioner at Kansas City stated that the Federal Courts there upheld liquor seizures on "smell" and that he issued search warrants against residences without requiring evidence of a sale of intoxicants.

4. Virtually all interviewed were in agreement that drinking among young people was increasing. The Prosecuting Attorney at Jefferson City was quoted to the effect that drinking among young people had reduced morals "below par."

Kansas City Driest In Years.

5. Judge Reeves reported Kansas City as being the driest it had been in years.

6. The Kansas investigator reported that Kansas City was flooding Eastern and Northern Kansas with liquor.

7. Missouri investigator reported that 20 to 25 per cent of houses on "The Hill" in St. Louis contained stills.

8. Poor farmers in Southeast Missouri were said to be in distilling business.

9. All Federal officials condemned the proposed creation of Commissioners' Courts to try minor prohibition cases.

10. Commenting on the Missouri report, Congressman John J. Cochran of St. Louis said if reports for other States contained no more authentic information than that furnished by St. Louis officials it was no wonder that the Wickersham Commission's final report to Congress was ridiculed.

The Missouri report was dritten by Frederick C. Dezendorf, a senior attorney in the Treasury Department Prohibition Bureau. The Kansas report was made by Philip N. Davison, a special investigator for the Commission. Both surveys were made in March, 1930, apparently by personal interviews and observations.

Haley's Administration Praised.

Commenting on the situation in St. Louis, the investigator said, "Administrator Haley has done more to demand respect than any other administrator and has warned his agents against illegal and improper actions."

The report, while without conclusions, drew a dark picture of drinking among young people. Mayor Miller told Dezendorf that, although the young people were not drinking so very much, there was more drinking than formerly by those between 17 and 20. The police chief at Jefferson City said that young people were drinking more in automobiles. It was a common thing, he said, for a bunch of boys and girls to go out and get drunk.

Judge Reeves of Kansas City said there was less drinking among young people and school children than the propaganda of bootleggers made out, and Judge Otis of Kansas City said that, while it might be true that in high society in large cities the young people were drinking a great deal, he didn't think the same conditions obtained in the small towns or the country.

The Kansas investigator apparently got around more than his Missouri colleague.

In "dry Kansas" the investigator found that most of the supplies came from the "little Italy" section of Kansas City, Mo.

Judge Pollock "Unsympathetic."

The Kansas investigator said that Federal Judge John C. Pollock was reported "as very unsympathetic in respect to liquor laws," and "as failing to give adequate sentences."

Congressman Cochran ridiculed the Missouri report in a statement issued today.

"The District Attorney," he said, "expresses the opinion that drinking is decreasing day by day; that there is less drunkenness; fewer cases made by prohibition agents, and that he hears less about young people drinking, and thinks it is decreasing.

"If there is less drinking, it is due to the economic depression. People do not have the money to buy liquor. Who would think for one minute that citizens would drink in the presence of a District Attorney or a Federal Judge? In all kindness I challenge their right to qualify as expert witnesses on the subject.

Drinking of Young Sad Part.

"Chief of Police Gerk and the former Prosecuting Attorney have made statements that cannot be controverted. The sad part is the drinking by young men and women. All interviewed, with the exception of Judge Davis, referred to the young element drinking. The unanimous reference to children indulging in intoxicating liquors should convince even the most outstanding dry that prohibition has done harm.

"Millions of gallons of home brew, wine, and even distilled liquor are made in St. Louis, not for sale but for home consumption. The Wickersham investigator should have learned the amount of raw materials sold in the large cities and in the country for use in the manufacture of beer, wines, gin and whisky, and he could have submitted something worth while.

"In the center of our State, Jefferson City, the United States Commissioner tells us high school children are drinking. Do you think he would have made such a statement if he was not sure of his ground? How long prohibitionists will deceive themselves remains to be seen."

Conditions at Jefferson City.

At Jefferson City the investigator said he found considerable complaint about the liquor traffic there. He was told by the Governor, he said, that those conditions would be taken care of when the next Legislature met. The Governor was further quoted as Beautiful domestic raised open and closed mouth wonderful full song singers. Written guarantee they will sing beautifully in your home within a few days—not over ten days—birds that will delight you. Year old—and may we say this again—not young, cheap, doubtful imported birds but year-old jazz serenaders—the birds with the musical songs, not pitiful whiners or droners.

The money that is spent for these birds—will be spent in America again—it will not be immediately returned to Europe after you release it. It will help bring back prosperity to America.

400 STRIKERS CAUSE MILLS TO CLOSE THROWING OUT 8000

Invade Lawrence, Mass., Woolen Plants Shutting Off Motors and Machinery.

By the Associated Press.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Feb. 21.—Striking employes of the American Woolen Co. today invaded the Wood and Washington mills, exhorting operators to quit their posts. Motors and machines were shut off by the strikers, and to prevent further activities, the mill agents ordered work suspended until next Tuesday.

About 8000 employes are affected by the suspension order. The number of strikers is estimated at about 400, all of them combers who objected to an increase in the number of machines to be handled by each workman.

Squads of policemen were sent to the mills after the strikers had gained entry. By the time they arrived, however, the strikers and other employes had left the mills. No damage to property was reported.

SENATE TEST ON GARY TAX BILLS DUE WEDNESDAY

Ways and Means Committee, Reported Closely Divided, to Decide on Its Recommendations Then.

By BOYD F. CARROLL,
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 21.—The first test of sentiment in the Senate on the Gary-Becker bills increasing the State income and corporation franchise tax rates will be made Wednesday afternoon, when the Ways and Means Committee, which has been holding hearings on the bills, will meet to determine what recommendations it will make to the Senate.

Supporters of the bills have insisted there be no modification or compromise of the proposed tax increases, which would produce revenues, estimated as high as $471,000,000 in a 12-year period, for the State Survey Commission's proposed $192,000,000 spending program for the State institutions and schools.

Opponents have attacked the bills on the ground they would exact in taxes about $232,000,000 more than the Gary-Becker group has represented they would yield in 12 years, and would impose unnecessary and unfair additional burdens upon the cities which would pay most of the tax increases. They have urged modification of the program.

Pressure From Both Sides.

Strong pressure has been brought to bear on Senate members by both sides, particularly since the success of the Gary-Becker group in driving the tax bills through the House this week, without a change in them. The bills were put through the House by overwhelming majorities, despite the fact the House has not considered any definite proposal for expenditure of the money, and had before it proof that the bills would yield a vastly greater sum than required for the entire program of the Survey Commission.

In the face of this pressure, a majority of the 12 members of the Senate committee have been slow to state their positions definitely, before the committee takes up the bills in executive session.

Senator Dearmont of Cape Girardeau, chairman of the committee, who is counted a fixed supporter of the program, today said he had not made a poll of the committee but believed the division was close between reporting out the bills without proposed amendments, and modification of the proposed rates. Several other members, while not committing themselves definitely on their positions, expressed the same view. One predicted a "warm session" when the bills are taken up.

Lineup in Committee.

Of the 12 Senators on the committee, five are considered strong supporters of the Survey Commission bills. They are Dearmont, Rollins, Columbia; Bales, Eminence; Gunn, Otterville, and Hildreth of Macon. Senators Casey of Kansas City and Warner and Brogan of St. Louis are counted as definitely opposed to the bills. The other four committee members, Clark, Richmond; Luther, Memphis; Morgan, Unionville, and Henry of Butler, are thought to favor some modification of the rates.

The Gary-Becker bills double the present corporation franchise tax of 50 cents on each $1000 of the par value of outstanding stock and surplus of corporations, increase the present individual income tax rate of 1 per cent to a graduate scale ranging from 1½ per cent to 5½ per cent, and increase the present corporation income tax of 1 per cent to a flat 2½ per cent.

Another income tax bill, introduced by Senator Clark of Richmond, pending in the committee, would double the present individual and income tax rates, making them 2 per cent on net income.

Follows Governor's Plan.

Clark's bill conforms to recommendations by Gov. Caulfield in his message to the Legislature. The Governor recommended expenditure of an additional $4,000,000 a year for 10 years for the institutions and schools, or about one-fifth the program of the Survey Commission. The Governor said doubling of the income tax and more intensive enforcement of the present tax laws would produce the required revenue.

A majority of the Survey Commission, under the leadership of the chairman, Theodore Gary of Kansas City, has disregarded the action of the Governor in modifying the Commission's recommendations, and has insisted upon adoption of the entire program.

The Senate Committee will have before it both the Senate bills and the duplicate bills which have been passed by the House. Senator Dearmont said the committee might take action Wednesday on reporting out the House bills along with the Senate bills.

Senator Clark said he would ask the committee to report out his bill increasing the income tax rate to 2 per cent, along with whatever report is made on the Gary-Becker bills. If this is done, he said, the Senate then would have before it for consideration both proposed tax programs.

The so-called tax equalization provision of the Survey Commission plan, which its supporters say would reduce some of the local school district taxes, if the districts choose to make reductions, and transfer the cost of the Survey program to income taxpayers has been used effectively in lining up rural support for the Gary-Becker bills. Members from rural sections of the State control the House by a two-thirds majority. City members also are in the minority in the Senate. Opponents of the plan say the equalization plan actually will result in negligible tax reductions.

COSMIC SUNSET AMONG THE STARS IS TAKING PLACE

Astronomer Explains Phenomenon Many Hundred Trillion Miles From Earth.

By the Associated Press.

PASADENA, Cal., Feb. 21.—A cosmic sunset is taking place among the stars several hundred trillion miles away, Dr. Frederick H. Sears, assistant director of Mount Wilson Observatory, has disclosed.

The sunset is that of 750 stars in the region near the great star Alpha Cygni, which illuminates the strange nebulae called "North American" because its shape resembles the continent of North America. This sunset is revealed on the fringe of a great cloud of obscuring matter between the earth and the stars.

Dr. Sears told how the colors had been measured and it was found that 20 per cent of these stars in the area measured had a much richer and redder light than the normal. This was also traced in spectrum measurements by Milton Humason, one of his assistants.

This sunset is due to the scattering of dust particles forming a great cloud several hundred light years from the earth. A light year, in astronomical measurements is 6,000,000,000,000 miles. The ordinary sunset seen on earth is the light reflections on clouds only a few miles distant from the earth.

Analysis of this great cloud revealing the cosmic sunset has been made by Dr. Sears and Miss Mary C. Joyner, an assistant at the observatory. Their work indicates this cloud among the stars is composed, in order to effect the change of color making the sunset, of minute dust particles each smaller than the wave length of light.

DRY ENFORCEMENT IN MISSOURI REPORTED FAR FROM SATISFACTORY

saying that conditions at Jefferson City were improving.

"The Governor said," the investigator stated, "that before he was elected it was notorious that there were several saloons downtown. He said these went out of business after the passage of the Jones law. The Governor said that conditions were better than they had been in Kansas City, that sentiment outside of St. Louis was predominantly dry, and that to be elected to any important State office one must be on the dry ticket."

The investigator reported that Kansas City, unlike St. Louis, was comparatively dry and that the United States Courts there were applying the penalties under the Jones act.

"There are a good many stills operated in the residences of Kansas City," the report says, "though the Federal Courts uphold seizures based on "smell" and even search residences on 'smell' without search warrants, if lights are burning and there is good reason to believe that a felony is being committed.

Liquor in Springfield and Joplin.

"In the western part of that district, in Osage and Cole counties, there are many stills, there is a great deal of liquor in the Springfield and Joplin districts.

"The United States Attorney at Kansas City said he would like to have the prohibition agents catch not only the pocket retailers of liquor but also the main operators. He said one of the main operators, at Springfield, had been hauling liquor since 1921, and had been caught only once, but not lately. He has handled 10,000 gallons of illegal liquor and the District Attorney thinks he could be caught at transportation, as everybody knows him and what he is doing.

"The District Attorney at Kansas City said there is a big operator there called 'King of the underworld,' who is not only head of the liquor ring there but also at Minneapolis and St. Paul. A confederate of his is up for trial and the District Attorney hopes to send him to the penitentiary.

"The United States Commissioner at Kansas City says he thinks liquor conditions there are better than they were before the agents were put under Civil Service. He is satisfied that the city is not as wide open as it was, but says that it is far from perfect. He is strong for prohibition but is for modification of the padlock order. He cited several instances of hardship on the owners of padlocked property. One was a preacher's widow with a small income. She did not know and the agent did not inform her of the use being made of her property.

State Enforcement a Farce.

"The commissioner said the enforcement of the State liquor laws in Kansas City and other large cities is a joke or farce."

A special section of the Missouri report is devoted to the Jones law and its effects. Judge Faris at St. Louis told the investigator, according to his report, that for a while after the law went into effect there was a falling off of violations, but that this conditions did not last.

"Judge Faris was questioned whether the Jones law has had much of a deterrent effect," says the report. "He says it has had the effect of placing the liquor business in the hands of toughs and thugs, while before it was in the hands of men who were more law-abiding in other respects. He says it undoubtedly closed a few of the fairly wide open places, run by men who did not desire to go to the penitentiary, and caused the opening of more secret places by men who did not care particularly whether they went to the penitentiary or not.

"Judge Faris said the Jones law, so far as he could observe, did not drive out the wholesaler but only some of the retailers. He said the bootleggers in the wholesale business were men of foreign birth mostly (Italians and Slavs), who did not care how they got a dollar so long as they got it.

"His usual sentences under pleas of guilty send about one-half to the penitentiary and one-half to jail from nine to 11 months. Most of them are bartenders. He criticises the prohibition officers for getting too many bartenders and too few big fellows (owners).

Judge Faris Woefully Disappointed

"Judge Faris said he voted for prohibition thinking it was going to do some good, but he has been woefully disappointed. He thinks the effect of prohibition has been to place fabulous sums in the hands of such men as Al Capone and the like in St. Louis with which to bribe officials.

"District Judge Reeves at Kansas City said the effect of the Jones law in that district had been splendid.

"The United States Attorney at St. Louis said the last grand jury indicted more than 100 under the Jones act, though they did not believe in it.

"The majority of the juries feel that the Jones law is harsh and do not think a man should be charged with a felony for casual sale, but the juries indict and convict. They very seldom acquit in that district (St. Louis) if given the proper testimony upon which to convict.

"Judge Faris said the attitude of the last grand jury was very good. As to petit jurors, he told of a jury, 11 of whose members were opposed to the Jones law, but which after a few minutes' deliberation on a case delivered a verdict of guilty. Judge Faris said there were fewer than five cases in 10 years in which the juries turned violators loose where he thought they should have been convicted.

Reflects Sentiment of St. Louisans.

"The Prosecuting Attorney of St. Louis said that a majority of cases resulted in acquittal when tried by jury, though some of them were strong cases on legal search warrants. He said this condition reflected the sentiment of the community.

"Judge Otis of the Western District said he thought juries convicted just as well as before the Jones law.

"In the Eastern Missouri District the usual sentence before the Jones act was two or three months. Since the Jones law the Court imposes sentences running up to a year and a day. Judge Davis of the Eastern District said he thought a sure sentence better than a severe one. His usual sentence is a year and a day.

"Judge Reeves said that long sentences were a deterrent and the same opinion was expressed by Judge Otis of that district."

In a statement on the Missouri report, Senator Hawes said:

"All the evidence is conclusive that there should be a change in the law. Everyone in St. Louis knows that liquor is being sold in more places than in the days of the saloon. The more we get the facts from the Wickersham Commission, the more quickly practical people will realize that something has to be done."

Statistics for St. Louis.

Statistics furnished by the St. Louis Chief of Police for the period from Jan. 17 to Dec. 31, 1929, showed 677 arrests for driving an automobile while intoxicated; 3579 for violations of the Missouri bone dry law; 490 for violations of the Volstead act, and 11,660 for drunkenness. His records showed 9483 arrests by St. Louis police for State dry law violations during the fiscal year ended March 31, 1929. In these cases only 227 warrants were issued.

Here are some of the other items in the report on St. Louis and vicinity:

"The City Council, the president and one other member of the Police Board, the Acting Mayor and the bar association, have all declared for repeal and do not support Federal officers in prohibition enforcement.

"The former United States Commissioner is now defending bootleggers.

"The deputy prohibition administrator said the worst violations in the southeastern part of the State were at Poplar Bluff, New Madrid and Cape Girardeau, where small stills are operating in swamps and marshes. Whisky is made on the islands in the Mississippi River.

"Mayor Miller of St. Louis said there are thousands making home brew in that city, largely for their own use; that there are 75 speakeasies in the city; that he had seen only one drunk on the streets in about two years and had knocked down this drunk for insulting a lady; that on New Year's eve there was a big celebration with liquor in all the hotels; that most of the liquor comes from Canada; that there are no syndicates or rings controlling the liquor; that alcohol is made in Illinois and transported to St. Louis.

"The Mayor says there is no such thing as prohibition, and he has seen evidences of that fact in Florida, Washington and other places. He says the drug stores in St. Louis are another source of supply of illicit liquor."

100 WOMEN ORGANIZE TO HELP UNEMPLOYED

Citizens' Relief Committee to Promote Repair. Work in Residence Districts.

More than 100 women, representing social, civic, political and religious organizations, have been organized by the Citizens' Public Relief Committee to promote repair and maintenance work in residential districts as an aid to unemployment relief.

Mrs. W. T. Donovan, who presided at a meeting of the women Friday, said the committee hopes to obtain approximately 1000 neighborhood chairmen to canvass the block in which each one resides for work for an unemployed man. Home owners will be urged to begin improvements and repairs, which ordinarily would be left until later in the year. In some instances it may be possible to find steady work for a general maintenance man, Mrs. Donovan said.

In all 15,000 persons have applied for work through the employment bureau operated by the Citizens' Committee at 2033 Washington boulevard. The applicants represent practically every type of worker. Records of previous employment and qualifications of the applicants are investigated before they are sent out. Persons having work to offer are requested to telephone the bureau, CEntral 3363.

An appeal for volunteers with automobiles to aid workers from relief organizations in making calls has been issued. About 70 persons with machines who can give their services a half day a week or more are needed. Persons wishing to volunteer should call Miss Rodgers, CEntral 6900.

Several hundred volunteers are working with the Provident Association in the relief program. Other organized charities also have temporary workers who are assisting the regular representatives. Many of the volunteers are doing the necessary clerical work incident to the relief activities, while others are doing field work.

BULLISHNESS MARKS WEEK'S TRADING ON STOCKMARKET

Abrupt Downturn Early in Period Is Followed by Recovery and Advance to Level Not Seen Since the Middle of Last October.

CLOSE IS STRONG IN ACTIVE TRADE

Largest Saturday Turnover Since Last Spring, 2,434,640 Shares—List of Issues Up 1 to 3 Points Embraces All Groups—Extreme Range 12 Points.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Bullishness bloomed afresh in the stock market this week.

Although the market was nipped by a frost of selling last Tuesday, it put forth fresh shoots during the latter sessions of the past week, and reached a level not seen since the middle of last October.

The speculative fraternity angled persistently for help from the general public.

The business news during the week included further gains in automobile and steel production, and an upturn in building activity.

Nevertheless, some conservative banking circles were said to feel that bullishness might very well be overdone at this time. The vigorous upbidding of stocks on Saturday was presumably governed in part by a desire to give the market a strong appearance before the Sunday-Monday closing. A sharp decline might cause some deterioration of enthusiasm before trading is resumed on Tuesday.

Reassuring Bond Market.

The action of the bond market was reassuring, for despite the passage of the soldier bonus bill by Congress with a majority indicating that it would be carried over a veto, Government securities steadied, and even worked a little higher. Apparently financial interests were gratified that the indicated demands for Government financing are no larger. Furthermore, the diminishing likelihood of an extra session of Congress was put forward as a bullish argument.

The foreign bond issues actually turned upward with substantial buying here and there. Sterling exchange, however, has shown little improvement after its sudden drop on Chancellor Snowden's pessimistic remarks on the budget, and is again close to the levels where New York might take gold from London.

Foreign trade figures for January showed another sharp drop.

Money market conditions were changed but little, although there was an upward revision of acceptance rates, and time money was a little firmer. Bankers state that plentiful credit is assured for some time, which makes the longer-range outlook for the bond market distinctly favorable.

Active Trade Saturday.

In the largest Saturday turnover since last spring—2,434,640 shares—the stock market today refused to be disturbed by profit-taking and closed the week with a flourish of strength.

The list of issues up 1 to 3 points net embraced all groups, including the rails. Specialties asserted their leadership in no uncertain manner, with rallies of 4 to nearly 12 points in some instances. United States Steel, American Can, American Telephone, Anaconda, General Electric, Radio, Bethlehem Steel and New York Central were a few of the prominent stocks that went through their previous 1931 highs.

At the close, the average for 90 equities was 142.4, an advance of 1.8 points for the day, and the highest since October 15. The volume was the best for a week-end since May 3, when prices were breaking badly.

Those who follow the market statistics had seen an important sign post in yesterday's advance of the industrials to a new high for the year, and they derived further comfort from the support given to this move by the rails this morning. Carrier shares, quiet all the week, averaged nearly a point higher, thereby confirming, in market parlnace, the rise in industrial equities. The Dow theory of averages holds that such a sequence means a further advance.

Prices were strongest in the last half hour, when 900,000 shares changed hands. There had been considerable realizing earlier in preparation for the two-day vacation, but firmer quotations for cop-

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Copper prices showed further firmness today on trade circle report that custom smelter was quoting 10½ cents, delivered, for the metal, an advance of one-quarter of a cent.

Producers, however, were said till to be willing to accept orders rom regular customers to 10¼ ents a pound, but otherwise were eported naming the higher price n domestic inquiries.

World copper output continued o decline in January, the Amerian Bureau of Metal Statistics reports, production last month totalng 129,290 short tons, against 135,252 tons in December and 157,548 tons in January, 1930. The daily rate of world output last month was 4174 tons, against 4395 n December and 5952 in January f last year.

The bureau now places total world production for 1930 at 1,806,642 short tons, compared with 1,769,635 tons given in a previous report, the difference being explained by the exclusion of secondary production in the figure previously reported. World production for 1929, excluding secondary, amounted to 2,106,900 short tons.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Raw sugar was quiet today, and as no sales were reported, prices were unchanged at 3.30c for spots, duty paid.

Price changes in raw futures were narrow and business comprised principally evening-up in the March position in advance of first notice day on Tuesday. The steady spot market seemed to discourage any aggressive selling and, after opening 1 point lower to 1 point higher, prices showed little variation throughout the remainder of the session, with the market closing net unchanged to 1 point lower. There was liquidation in March, with the sellers of this month replacing by purchases in other positions, while trade interests bought the near months and sold the more distance deliveries. All told, 32,500 tons changed hands, with over half in the form of exchanges. March closed 1.20, May 1.30, July 1.38, September 1.46, December 1.53, January 1.56.

Although no price changes were announced in refined from 4.50 for fine granulated, the undertone was unsettled by the announcement of the California & Hawaiian that they would offer special grade granulated sugar in burlap bags for manufacturers' use only at 20c less than basis price.

Dry Goods Market Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Cotton goods markets were firm today, with a steady demand for finished and some lines of unfinished goods. The continuation of unchanged prices on sheets and pillow cases has increased confidence in the status of domestic prices generally. Wool goods continued in moderate call, with more interest developing in fall lines. Worsted yarns were firmer. Raw silk was slightly higher. Burlaps were steady. Weavers were buying more rayon yarns.

METALS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Metals nominally unchanged.

FOREIGN BONDS ARE FEATURE OF TRADE

Australian and German Issues Improve Markedly at Week End.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—There was a fair inquiry for domestic bonds today but the quiet movement was overshadowed by activity in the foreign section with Australian and German issues improving markedly.

Continuing their recovery after slumping to the lowest price in recent years, Australian Government loans were buoyant. The two 5 per cent issues advanced 3⅛ points and the 4½s were up 2. Queensland State 6s advanced 7 and the 7s rallied two points.

The demand for German Government and municipal loans was even larger and the 5½s touched a new year's high at 77½. Frankfort City 6½s, German Central Agricultural Bank 6s of 1960, Berlin City Electric 6½s, Bremen State 7s joined the advance.

The strong tone of shares appeared to divert attention from domestic bonds and aside from a little buying interest in several of the investment rails, advances were confined to issues that are influenced by the movement of stocks.

Atchison 4½s and St. Paul Adjustment 5s rose more than a point each and Goodrich 5s, Baltimore & Ohio 4½s, Missouri Pacific 5½s, Shubert Theater 6s were active and firm. Some of the liens such as Postal Telegraph 5s, Wabash 5s D, St. Paul 5s of 1975, Erie 5s of 1975 and Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s advanced.

United States Governments were little traded. The small volume of business was confined to liberties which displayed a firm tone and were slightly higher.

COTTON CLOSES HIGHER AFTER EARLY DECLINE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—An early decline in cotton under further realizing and near-month liquidation was promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables today, but offerings were readily absorbed and, after selling off to 11.15c, May contract rallied to 11.25c on renewed covering. That delivery closed at 11.23c, with the general market closing very steady at net advances of 1 to 3 points. Spot steady; middling, 11.05c.

The opening was steady, 5 to 8 points lower in response to the relatively easy ruling of Liverpool and pre-holiday realizing or liquidation. With Monday a holiday and Tuesday the first March notice day here, there was considerable further near-month liquidation, mostly in the form of switching to the later deliveries. March sold off to 10.86c and October to 11.66c, making net declines of about 6 to 8 points, but there seemed sufficient demand to absorb offerings at these figures and the market steadied up later on continued trade buying and covering. March advanced to 10.97c and October to 11.75c and the close was within a point or two of the best on most positions.

Trading was moderately active at the opening and again toward the close, but otherwise consisted largely of switching from March to the later deliveries. No definite estimates of Tuesday's probable notices were heard in the trade, but the opinion was quite generally expressed that considerable cotton might be tendered. This was coupled with an impression that notices would be quite promptly stopped at the late month premiums.

There was very little change in the differences between months during the day's trading, with the closing quotation for March 100 points under the price of December.

Liverpool cable reported hedging, with local and foreign liquidation absorbed by trade calling at the decline in that market and said there were moderate sales of cotton cloth for shipment from Manchester to Egypt and South America.

Trade buying reported in the market here was said to be less active than recently, but it was in evidence on a scale down during the early trading and there was a spurt of covering toward the close. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 87,000 bales, against 121,000 last year.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Bond sales on the New York Stock Exchange today were $5,600,000, compared with $8,100,000 yesterday, $5,500,000 a week ago and holiday a year ago. Total bond sales from Jan. 1 to date were $124,690,000, compared with $368,821,000 last year and $395,186,000 two years ago.

Quotations on all Liberty bonds are in dollars and thirty-seconds of a dollar. That is, for instance, a sale printed 99—24 means $99 and 24 thirty-seconds of a dollar, and not $99.24.

Following is a complete list of bonds traded in on the New York Stock Exchange today, giving sales, highest, lowest and closing prices. In sales, 000 omitted.

WEEK'S METAL MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—The undertone of copper was firm, reflecting good export demand and limited offerings. While electrolytic was quoted at 10.25c delivered in the Connecticut Valley, custom smelters and producers were said to be reluctant sellers at this level and some withdrew from the market. The bulk of recent offerings has been absorbed by foreign buying, but domestic consumers have not been active. Demand for finished products has improved somewhat, but volume of orders is still said to be limited.

Tin was firm in anticipation of British governmental approval of the proposed Malayan and Nigerian production and export restriction proposals, official announcement of which was received toward the end of the week. After the sharp advance, however, a slightly easier tone developed and consuming demand remained dull.

Lead advanced on quite active demand and a stronger tone abroad.

Zinc was easier under increased selling pressure in nearby positions, with consuming demand moderate.

A quiet tone was reported for antimony. Far East markets were generally steady.

SELECTIVE ADVANCE ON CURB EXCHANGE

Bullish Activity in Some Utilities and Specialties Makes Big Market.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Strong arm bullish activity in some of the utilities and specialties gave the curb market one of its most pronounced upturns of the new year today.

The advance was decidedly selective, however, and was concentrated in the Electric Bond & Share group of utilities. Transactions for the two-hour session aggregated 528,600 shares, not far below the turnover for five hours of trading yesterday, but more than a fifth of the total transfers were in two stocks alone—Electric Bond & Share and American Superpower.

Electric Bond & Share surged up four points to a new high for the year at 58. American Gas & Electric and American & Foreign Power warrants closed 3 and 2½ higher. American Superpower rose 1 points. Oils were virtually at a standstill, and coppers did little despite further firmness in metal prices. Noranda, in fact, lost a point, but Newmont gained ¾.

In the high priced issues, Quaker Oats rose 10 points in a few odd lot sales, in response to declaration of the regular extra dividend of $3. Aluminum Co. rose 6½, but slipped back to close only 3¼ higher.

There was considerable speculative activity in some of the low priced specialties. Tubize Cantillon shot up 7⅜ points to 11¼, then lost a point of its gain, but virtually tripled in quoted value. Silica Gel rose more than four points to 12.

Motor and aviation issues generally turned upward, although Stutz fell back 3¾ in realizing on its recent advance. Cord and Fraklin each gained about 1. Western Air and Aviation Corporation of the Americas gained 2, General Aviation 1, and there were fresh signs of life in Dayton Engine and Detroit Aircraft, although they closed unchanged.

Investment trusts were generally firm, Shenandoah preferred rising 2. The Prince & Whitely issues turned upward.

SILVER ADVANCES A CENT IN NEW YORK MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Bar silver today scored one of the sharpest rises in recent months of depressed prices, by advancing one cent an ounce in New York to 27¼ cents.

Although there were other bullish factors, the trade credited the rise principally to adoption by the United States Senate of a resolution suggestion that President Hoover enter into negotiations with other Governments looking to the restoration of the price of the metal.

Production figures for 1930 showed a sharp drop from totals of recent years, and another market factor mentioned was the action of the International Chamber of Commerce in Paris in proposing a silver conference to meet the economic crisis in China.

Heavy buying orders from India and China reached the New York market, where the supply of the metal was limited. In fact bidding here as much as one-eighth above London failed to bring out more than comparatively meager offerings.

The metal also was strong in London, where it advanced one-quarter pence to 12 7-16 pence.

$1,250,000 Canadian Mill Offer.

By the Associated Press.

CALGARY, Alberta, Feb. 21.—The English firm of Spillers, Ltd., will offer to purchase the East Calgary plant of the Spillers Canadian Milling Co. for $1,250,000 next Monday, according to a notice of the motion filed here. Notice was given by counsel for the Royal Trust Co., plaintiff, against the Spillers Canadian Co., defendant. The trust company is trustee for the bondholders of the English firm. The Alberta Flour Mills Co. started construction of the mills and the English company completed the work, becoming first mortagagees.

GENERAL DOWNWARD COURSE TO WHEAT AT CHICAGO

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—Almost heedless of soaring prices for stocks, the grain markets pursued a general downward course today. Reports of rain and snow in Oklahoma, Kansas and Colorado, together with predictions of moisture for the greater part of the grain belt, had a decided bearish influence. Besides, general export demand for North American wheat and Eastern shipping call for corn were apparently at a standstill, although talk was heard that stabilization agencies had disposed of some export wheat at the Gulf of Mexico.

Wheat closed heavy, unchanged to 1c lower, corn ⅝@⅞c off, oats unchanged to ⅝c decline and provisions a shade to 5c up.

Not only was buoyancy of stocks disregarded by grain traders, but evening up transactions to prepare for a double holiday were also minus any lasting level.

Word of better weather in Argentina counted also as a bearish factor. Assertions that British millers had satisfied their immediate requirements for wheat, and were holding off from purchasing, acted as an additional market handicap. Paris rumor of moves toward increased European wheat tariffs were not received here until after trading had ended.

World's available supplies of wheat were announced as having increased 18,325,000 bu last month, compared with 42,192,000 decrease in December and a decrease of 6,379,000 during January, 1930. Liverpool reported heavy Russian offerings despite assertions from Berlin that severe cold prevailed almost everywhere in Russia and that procuring of grain was virtually at a standstill. Advice also current that the Japanese market for American wheat had been unsettled by lower offers from Russia, Canada and Australia.

Corn and oats sympathized with wheat price downturns, notwithstanding diminished primary receipts of corn. Total primary arrivals were 883,000 bu 1,042,000 a week ago. Chicago had 133 cars, compared with 222 on the corresponding day last week. Corn bulls were handicapped by talk of larger offerings from other terminal markets and of reductions in the price of substitute feeds.

HOG PRICES DECLINE IN TRADE OF WEEK

New Lows for the Last Six and One-Half Years Are Recorded.

NATIONAL STOCK YARDS, Ill., Feb. 21.—(United States Department of Agriculture).—Arrivals of cattle the past week aggregated approximately 12,500 head as compared with actual receipts of 14,254 the previous week and 12,042 the corresponding week last year. Adverse reports from Eastern dressed beef centers and relatively liberal supplies locally left little justification for stronger prices realized on steers during the forepart of the week and strength was dissipated in subsequent sessions. Weakness was evident in closing deals, but final prices were mostly steady with the preceding week's close. Mixed yearlings, heifers, medium bulls and stocker and feeder steers closed steady; cows, 25c higher; cutters and low cutters, 15@25c up; vealers, 50c lower; feeding calves and heifers, 25c or more lower. Tops for the week were: 1137-lb steers, $9.50; 814-lb yearling steers, $8.85; 691-lb mixed yearlings, $10; 595-lb heifers, $8.50; cows, $6.25; medium bulls, $4.50; vealers, $11; feeder steers, $7.50. Four droves of steers averaging 1302 to 1397 lbs at $7.75@8.75 comprised the selection of weighty steers which was only a small part of the steer run. Medium weights of 1205 to 1295 lbs in weight ranged from $7.50@9.10 and bulked at $7.85@8.25, while the lighter group of medium weight steers from 1103 to 1185 lbs average spread from $6.75@7.50 and bulked at $7.25@8.25. Lightweight and yearling steers varied from $5.50@8.85 with bulk selling at $6@8.25 and bulk of all steers going between $6.15@8.75. Most fat steers sold from $7.90@8.85; fat mixed yearlings and heifers, $7@8; medium fleshed descriptions, $6@6.60; cows, $4.25@5.25; low cutters, $2.75@3; stocker and feeder steers, $5.25@6.50; bulk and top prices the corresponding week last year were as follows: Steers, $10@12.75; top, $13.75; fat mixed yearlings and heifers, $11.75@12.75; top, $14; medium fleshed kinds, $10.25@11.50; cows, $7@8.25; top, $10; low cutters, $4.25@5.25; top sausage bulls, $8.25; vealers, $15; stocker and feeder steers, $8.60@10.35; top, $11.

Lambs About Unchanged.

Receipts of sheep and lambs at National Stockyards approximated 6500 head, compared with actual arrivals of 5585 last week and 4881 corresponding week last year. Mild fluctuation took place in fat lamb trade this week, but closing quotations were about in line with those of the close of last week. Sheep and yearlings were practically lacking and quotations were left unchanged. City butchers paid up to $9.25 to furnish an extreme top early in the week, with comparable kinds on later sessions at $9. Bulk of lambs sold to packers all week at $8 to $8.50, with the packer top $8.65. On Friday only one load of lambs were on sale, these averaging 99 pounds and selling at $8. On Thursday handyweight lambs sold to packers up to $8.50. Heavy lambs were very uneven all week and in some cases 120-pound descriptions sold down to $6.50. Buck lambs were removed at the usual $1 discount and common throwouts centered at $6.50. Fat ewes were salable at $3 to $4, and yearlings were quotable up to $7.50.

New Lows for Hogs.

Receipts of swine totaled around 61,500 this week, compared with actual receipts of 74,338 last week and 68,489 corresponding week last year. Prices were on the downgrade during most of the week and new lows for the past six and one-half years were chalked up. Chief among the bearish influences were the arrival of the Lenten season with consequent depressed dressed prices and curtailed local shipping outlet. The price reverses were effected in the face of declining receipts. At the end of the week supplies fell off below requirements and a sharp rebound was reported on Friday. A 15c to 25c upturn was followed by a strong to 15c higher deal on Saturday and a net loss of 25c to 40c was recorded for the week. Top price rose to $7.75 Saturday, as compared with $8 at the opening of the week and a top of $7.50 on Thursday. Most of the 150 to 215 pound weights sold Saturday at $7.50 to $7.70, with a sprinkling of 220 to 230 pound descriptions at $7.15 to $7.40 and a few 250 to 260 pound weights at $7. A load of 314-pound averages earned $6.60, while 350-pound averages scored $6.50 on Friday. Desirable 100 to 130 pound pigs finished at $7 to $7.25, and packing sows wound up at $5.65 to $5.85.

Foreign Crop Summary.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The Agriculture Department today reported reduction in previous estimates of the 1930-31 Argentine wheat crop, but they were still well above those of the 1929-30 crop.

The Australian wheat crop was said to have been delayed by rain and its quality somewhat reduced.

The department made public the latest official estimate of Argentine wheat production for 1930-31 as 238,832,000 bushels. This compared with the first estimate of 271,404,000 bushels. Against this the 1929-30 crop was 162,576,000 bushels.

Surplus wheat available for export from the Argentine or for carryover at the end of the year was fixed at 164,964,000 bushels on the basis of the new estimate.

A reduction was noted for the Argentine flaxseed crop as compared with earlier estimates.

The India cotton crop was estimated at 4,047,000 bales for the 1930-31 season, or 2 per cent less than the preceding crop.

Reports to the department indicated spring grain sowing preparations in Russia were slow. France was said to have again experienced unfavorable weather, while elsewhere in Euorpe growing conditions have been generally fair to good.

WE NOW present ready for the market our newest products, "The Little Mann" Kitchen-size Gas Incinerator and the Basement Type "Handy Mann."

MARK THIS PROPHECY—These, we are sure, will revolutionize sanitation.

The old method of handling garbage and refuse is going out of style. Large profits will be made by distributors and dealers of these appliances. Here is a valuable franchise, an attractive proposition, with a big market ready and waiting.

Our Sales Director will be in St. Louis soon to interview and appoint a Distributor and several dealers in this territory for our complete line of Portable and Built-in Incinerators.

THREE NEW YORK GANGSTERS KILLED

A "Squealer" Among Victims; Three Other Men Wounded in Day's Shootings.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Gangsters fell to rubbing out their foes today, and when the last skirmish had ended three men were dead, one was dying and two were wounded.

In the Hatfield House, East Side hotel, Albert Wagner died with enough lead in him to kill several men, and Harry Brown, a close-mouthed Brooklyn youth with Manhattan "business interests," was wounded seriously. He probably will die. Police think Abe Wagner, Albert's brother, stopped bullets but he wasn't there when they arrived.

In the Bronx John Franzone met a "squealer's" fate. He was found in the middle of a lonely avenue, shot in the right eye and in the back. Franzone and four other gangsters fought police last July on McCombs Dam Bridge and a detective was killed. Franzone had turned State's evidence and helped to send Frank Corelli to prison for 45 years.

Several hours earlier John (Aces) Mazza, minor minion of New York's rackets, fell in front of an East Side cafeteria, shooting at his assailants as he died. The hail of bullets wounded two other men. A prayer "for the grace of a happy death" was found on Mazza.

The Hatfield House invasion, police said, was for the chief purpose of ending the career of Abe Wagner. Only two days ago he escaped harm when eight shotguns were emptied at him in Suffolk street.

REVOLT IN BUENOS AIRES FRUSTRATED, 15 OFFICERS HELD

Rebellion Headed by Former Inspector-General Was to Start Last Monday.

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 21.—Efficient detective work frustrated a revolt which was to have started last Monday during the pre-Lenten carnival, and between 10 and 15 army officers and several police officials are in jail as a result.

The movement was headed by Gen. Toranzo, who was Inspector-General of the army during the Irigoyen regime and had since enjoyed his liberty but was forbidden to leave the capital.

Late last week authorities noticed that Toranzo could not be found and suspected him. Soon they ferreted out the plot and made a number of arrests, although some of those suspected, including the former Minister of War, Gen. Delleplane, proved their innocence and were released. Two Lieutenants are reported to have confessed their participation in the plan.

Toranzo is said to be hiding in a monastery. If the others are found guilty they will be sent to the Ushuaia prison colony in Tierra del Fuego.

SAYS PRESENT CURSE IS LACK OF SENSE, NOT OF LIBERTY

Charles M. Hay, Democratic nominee for United States Senator in 1928, spoke last night at a Masonic gathering in Webster Groves upon "Washington and Personal Liberty."

"I do not believe," he said, "that if Washington were here, enjoying the freedom of going and coming, of speaking and listening, of appropriating unto himself the manifold conveniences and luxuries common to us all, of eating and drinking and countless things that may be legally obtained, he would wish to surrender these and go back to the limitations and deprivations of his own day, simply because he could legally enjoy the gurgles of a demijohn. I wonder what Washington would think of the citizen of his America, who, amid all of the conveniences and luxuries, liberties and privileges of this hour, pules and whines about the inhibitions of the present and the boundless liberty of the past.

"The curse of this hour is not lack of liberty, but too often it is lack of sense to make proper use of the enlarged liberty that is ours."

Our Annual FEBRUARY SALE

UNION BUYS OUT MAY-STERN

Every price on this page—for Monday only—is a special price. No question about it! Things are happening—and we're clearing our floors at any price that will move the May-Stern merchandise still on hand. We have gone through our stocks, both in the stores and warehouses, and wherever we found any furniture that seemed slow to sell, WE CUT THE PRICE AGAIN! In addition to the May-Stern stock, we have slashed the February Sale prices still deeper on our own stocks. Frankly, never in our entire experience has furniture of real quality been offered here, or anywhere else we know of, at such sensationally low prices. On every hand tomorrow, on every floor of all our stores, you will find these "surprise" reductions—savings that break all records. Don't miss this feast of bargains.

The brief season on Grand from successful despite the fact that the con Hayden, the benefit of one of the finest director assembled a most excellent cast of actors. tributed to the failure of this pleasing combi of course, played a prominent part. Then there the Grand Central being known only as a pictu all, there was the inability to secure new plays, at the Orpheum, already well established, had ferings available for stock for this year before th was under way.

Stock audiences of today go shopping for their entertainment and have come to demand successful, new or reasonably new, plays. This was demonstrated by the fact that when the Grand Central stepped in and bought the rights to "Strictly Dishonorable," it turned in a fine week at the box office.

In the meantime Miss Hart goes on her way at the Orpheum with plans for four more shows in the next eight weeks which will carry her up to warm weather. Tonight she will present the comedy, "Many a Slip," new to St. Louis, with her regular cast of resident players augmented by Dorothy Sands, in the role which she played in New York and Dorothea Chard, who recently played in "Lysistrata." Betty Bronson, originally scheduled for the cast, was not able to appear and Miss Chard was brought on for the part.

The American Theater continues with Thurston, the magician, who goes into his second week.

"THE GOLD DIGGERS," originally presented by David Belasco with Ina Claire as the star, was a tremendous success here, being a fast moving and thoroughly enjoyable comedy of life among the playgirls of Broadway who know how to handle their sugar daddies. Later the Woodward stock company played it, also most successfully, and last year it scored again as a talking movie. Nedda Harrigan, brought here last week for the run of "Jonesy," has been held over for Miss Claire's role at the Grand Central. The charming Claire Trevor who will have the part of Violet, the unsophisticated one, and Lyle Talbot, Arthur Pierson and the popular Joe Crehan will be prominent.

Crehan, by the way, is soon to be seen here in a good role in a movie. Just before he came to St. Louis he worked in Nancy Carroll's new picture, "Stolen Heaven," which is to come to the Ambassador Theater before long.

"MANY A SLIP," which the Orpheum presents tonight—Pierre Watkin and Owen Davis Jr., are among those in the cast in addition to the visiting artists already mentioned—tells the story of a young man, a writer, who thinks that married life is all wrong and who persuades the girl he loves to enter into what he considers an admirable substitute for the connubial state.

Complications follow, of course, and the girl longs to become a regular and thoroughly domesticated wife. How it all turns out is said to be unexpected but quite logical.

THURSTON, as said before, will continue to baffle and amuse audiences in the American Theater another week. He begins this second and final week of his St. Louis engagement with a performance this afternoon, concluding his engagement Saturday night. This year, in spite of the debacle of the theater, the Thurston soirees are drawing greater crowds than ever before.

Begins Final Week Tomorrow Night With "The Gold Diggers," With Nedda Harrigan—Orpheum Offers "Many a Slip," New to St. Louis, Tonight, While Thurston Stays at American.

THE stock company at the Grand Central Theater, which came into being at Christmas time, is to fold up next Sunday night and retire from the amusement field with the final performance of the revival of the comedy, "The Gold Diggers," which starts tomorrow evening. The brief season on Grand Avenue has been far from successful despite the fact that the company had in John Hayden, the benefit of one of the finest directors in the country, who assembled a most excellent cast of actors. Szell to Conduct The Symphony in Week's Concerts

GEORG SZELL returns from Prague to St. Louis this week to assume direction of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra in the final quarter of its symphony season. He will conduct five pairs of symphony concert programs, in the course of which Carlo Zecchi, Italian pianist; Yelli D'Aranyi, Hungarian violinist, and Margarethe Matzenauer, well-known German singer, will make orchestral appearances here.

Szell visited St. Louis for the first time last season and won many admirers. By birth a Viennese, was launched in music as a pianist, traveled in his youth as virtuoso, and became the protege of Richard Strauss. Through the latter's interest he was given an opportunity at the Staatpoper, Berlin, where he was conducting when St. Louis engaged him. Later he accepted the post of music director in Prague, Czecho-Slovakia, where he conducts the German opera and the symphony concerts.

His first program in St. Louis will be of a purely orchestral character, and consists of Schumann's "Rhenish" Symphony, Stravinsky's transcription of the music of Pergolesi in the "Pulcinella" ballet, and Beethoven's "Leonore" overture No. 2. The Stravinsky-Pergolesi work has its first presentation in St. Louis at these concerts and is declared by Eugene Goossens to be a remarkably successful adaption of 150-year-old music to the modern orchestral idiom.

Mrs. Flourney's Play, "Blind," at Shubert

The drama "Blind," written by Mrs. D. M. Flournoy of Webster Groves, which caused considerable discussion as to its propriety when presented in the suburban town some weeks ago, will be on view at the Shubert Theater next Friday night. The same cast of amateurs headed by Mrs. Flournoy herself, which appeared in the play in Webster Groves, will be seen in the single night's performance at the Shubert.

"Blind" tells a story of the heartaches of a neglected wife and is described as a modern society drama. In the cast, in addition to Mrs. Flournoy, will be Alice Spaulding, George Perkins, Martha May Wood, Lee Oetter, Asenith Priest, Maurice H. Conn, Margaret Owings, Beatrice Hyndman, John Lake, Thomas G. Woolsey, David Cobb, Gene Finkenaur and Margaret Stevenson.

Burton Holmes to Tell Of the Passion Play

Introducing for the first time on any American screen, a series of natural-color slides showing the great Old Testament tableaux and all the principal scenes in the production, the Passion Play of Oberammergau will be brought to the Odeon tomorrow night and placed on exhibition by Burton Holmes.

Mr. Holmes' entire lecture-recital will be devoted to the play and to Oberammergau itself, with no extraneous picture material of unrelated interest.

THURSTON · Once a St. Louis Bootblack

THOUGHTS of many years ago pass through the mind of Howard Thurston, the magician, each season as he comes to St. Louis to play his annual engagement. This year these thoughts are more vivid than usual, as he walks about the city, for this is his twenty-fifth annual engagement here as the head of his own show. It is his silver anniversary, in a manner of speaking—and he has come home to celebrate it. For it was in St. Louis that he got his first start in life, and it was here that he began his magic career.

Almost half a century ago, Thurston, a wandering boy—he had run away from his home in Columbus, O.—sought adventure in the glamorous land beyond the Mississippi. Riding the "blind baggage" he came to St. Louis.

Now the little waif, who polished shoes in front of the Planters Hotel and sold newspapers on Market street, who often went cold and hungry, comes back in a cozy Pullman to the town in which he started his career, lives while here in a comfortable suite of rooms in a luxurious hostelry, and is internationally famous as a master of the art of magic.

"I lived in Columbus—was born there—went to work there when I was 7 years old," says Thurston. "But Columbus was too prosaic for me even at that early age. I must have been born with an itching foot. All during my life I have had the urge to go places and see things. When about 10 years old I could resist the urge no longer. So I ran away from home and set my feet westward. Somehow—walking ties, catching freights and riding the trucks of passenger trains—I got to St. Louis, and here had experiences as a child that are indelibly impressed on my memory. Indeed, every street, every alley, every old building in downtown St. Louis tells me a story.

"I SHALL never forget the cold days in winter when I stood around the old Planters Hotel with my bootblack's box. There was lots of mud in the St. Louis streets in those days, and we got only a nickel for a shine. Sometimes it took a half an hour to get the mud off a patron's boots—and if we didn't do a good job we wouldn't get our money. Sometimes I'd get so cold and my hands would be so numb that I would have to give up the job before it was half done and sneak into a saloon and get thawed out before a red-hot stove. But between blacking shoes and selling papers, I used to make enough to get a bed at a newsboys' home and buy a 15-cent dinner before going to bed.

"I got my first job in a theater in an old dime museum on Market street. So, in a way, I suppose I really started my theatrical career in St. Louis. Even in those days I was doing little hanky-panky tricks I had picked up on the road, and used to amuse my newsboy companions. Also, while here I used to sell programs at the races around St. Louis.

"At one time, I had the ambition to be a jockey, and went from here to Oscaloosa, Ia., and got a job exercising race horses. I weighed 105 pounds—this was too much—and they put me in a barrel and sweated me so I would be light enough to ride in a race. But the experience made me so weak that I fell off the horse. So I never rode a race horse except in practice, though for a couple of seasons I followed the races around the Middle West circuit, selling programs.

"AT 17 I came under religious influence. A wealthy woman, Mrs. E. E. Thomas of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., arranged to pay my tuition at the Dwight L. Moody School at Northfield, Mass. I went through the school and passed an examination to study medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, for I had decided to become a medical missionary.

"But at Albany, N. Y., en route to Philadelphia to take up my medical studies, I saw Herrmann, greatest magician of all time, and I was held spellbound by his magic. All my old-time love of the art came welling back in a flood-tide.

"That was the turning point of my life. Instead of going to the university and becoming a doctor and missionary, I followed Herrmann to Syracuse. He was in the Albany depot waiting for the train to Syracuse. I stepped up to the window and asked for a ticket to Syracuse, too. I fairly worshiped Herrmann, though I never spoke to him and he never knew me. I sat opposite him in the train and watched him smoke. But from that day on my career was settled. I was to become a magician. I never worked with Herrmann, though later I was with his successor, Kellar.

"ALL those things happened 40 years ago. A good many years were to pass before I could get anywhere in my chosen profession. Years of wandering and hard work. In the course of that wandering I came to St. Louis many times. I joined a medicine show here and did magic in order to attract the customers. I came here once as a magician with a small side show known as the 'Great Country Circus,' and I have done hanky-panky tricks in the St. Louis streets to help the sale of potato peelers and other novelties. So, you see, I have done many things in the streets of St. Louis—blacked boots, sold newspapers, and performed tricks on a "pitchman's" table.

"And every year, for almost four decades, I have been coming back here with some sort of magic. First with a medicine show, then with a side show. Then came vaudeville. That was my first 'break' in the business. My success with a card act in vaudeville enabled me to go around the world. I came back from a world tour, 25 years ago, to succeed Kellar. And I have been coming here each year since with my own show."

Steindel to Conduct "Pop" Concert Today

Frederick Fischer, assistant conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, who was announced as conductor of the Radio Pop concert at the Odeon at 5 p. m. today, will be unable to conduct, because of illness, and in his absence Max Steindel, originally announced as soloist, will hold the baton. Alexander Thiede, the orchestra's concert master, will substitute as soloist for the concert. Thiede will be heard in Saint-Saens' prelude to "The Deluge."

The program will be as follows:

Overture to The Barber of Seville..Rossini
Andante con moto, from Fifth Symphony ....Beethoven
Waltzes—Roses From the South..Strauss
Prelude to The Deluge.......Saint-Saens
Violin solo, Alexander Thiede.
Rustle of Spring ....Sinding
Excerpts from the Ballet Coppelia—Delibes

Y Glee Club Concert.

The Glee Club of North Side Y. M. C. A. will give a concert in the auditorium of the "Y" at 3100 North Grand boulevard Thursday evening, at 8:30. The Glee Club is directed by Christian H. Stocke with Arthur Schneider as accompanist and will present nine numbers. The assisting artists for the evening are Irma Balthasar, soprano, and Max Steindel, celloist. Mr. Steindel will be accompanied by Walter Seim.

First Sacks' Recital.

The first of three piano recitals by Nathan Sacks of St. Louis will be given at Sheldon Auditorium, 3646 Washington avenue, the evening of Feb. 26 instead of Feb. 19, the date originally announced. The program will consist of classical music. Modern and romantic programs will be played at the other recitals in the series.

Ed Lowry's "Homecoming"

There Will Be Music and Dancing in the Streets With Appropriate Ceremonies on the River Front When M. C. Returns on March 6—Douglas Fairbanks in Modern Dress for First Time in Many Years.

By NIE.

THE "homecoming" of Ed Lowry to the Ambassador on March 6 is going to be made a gala affair with the Army and Navy and the air service taking part. Eddie is to fly here from Pittsburg, the plane will land on the river and, according to present plans, Mayor Miller will be on a harbor boat to greet him. The Army and Navy come in when Lowry steps ashore, the troops being lined up on the levee with Battery A in readiness to fire a salute of 300 guns—or whatever the number is rated by a Master of Ceremonies. Music will be furnished by the Firemen's Silver Cornet Band and there will be dancing on the streets all afternoon. Lowry, as is his wont—it is an old custom of his race, you know—will scatter silver among the peasantry as he is driven, in state, to the theater.

The Skourases will not be here to take part in the return of their hero. Charlie goes East this week to join his brothers and get the new Paramount chain of theaters in the East started and Reeves Espy will represent them, and possibly President Hoover.

Espy, incidentally, is to take Charles Skouras' place in the direction of the Ambassador and Missouri Theaters from now on—or until the Warner Brothers decide that they will put a new boy here. Charlie, under his contract with Warners, and despite his hook-up with his brothers in the East, is still the head of the Warner operations here, but he will conduct the business through Espy.

PICTURE fans can get their first view in years of Douglas Fairbanks in a regulation, Hart, Schaffner & Marx outfit this week at Loew's, where Doug is starring in a film called "Reaching For the Moon." He says that he will never return to the costume drama, but you never can tell about movie stars and his next picture, if there is to be a next one, may find him as Robin Hood or as an athletic Nero stepping down from his royal box to take a fall out of the lions himself.

Doug's career on stage and screen has been a lively one. He was born in Denver, Colo., May 23, 1884. His father was a New York lawyer who went west to look over some mining property, and decided to stay.

When he was 17 the family moved back to New York. The future idol of the screen played roles with Frederick Warde's Shakspearean company for a season and then entered Harvard. He hadn't sufficient credits from his courses in the Denver city schools and the Colorado School of Mines, so he became a special student studying elementary Latin, French and English literature.

Higher education bored him, and before long he returned to the stage in support of Effie Shannon and Herbert Kelcey in "Her Lord and Master." It was after this that he embarked in a cattle boat for Europe, and came back to try his talents in Wall street. The stage again exerted its pull, and he played for a year in "Mrs. Jack," an engagement that ended when he had words and fistic action with the company manager.

HE considered law as a profession, but after three months of it the wanderlust again sent him scurrying across the Atlantic. Returning, he went under the management of William A. Brady, an association that lasted on and off for seven years. The beginning of public interest in him came during his role in "The Pit," in which he moved faster and yelled louder than any actor before or since.

"Hawthorne of the U. S. A." gave Fairbanks his first chance to show his acrobatic acting ability to its full extent. He sprang from a balcony box to the throat of his adversary and indulged in similar spectacular exhibitions of skill and strength.

D. W. GRIFFITH offered him $2000 a week for 10 weeks, and Fairbanks made his screen bow with "The Lamb." An instant success, his dashing style and winning smile built up an amazing screen following, and he soon signed with Famous Players, for whom he made a long string of hit films.

On forming his own production company he made "His Majesty the American," "When the Clouds Roll By," "The Mollycoddle," and "The Mark of Zorro." Then followed a series of romantic costume dramas, including "The Three Musketeers," "Robin Hood," "The Thief of Bagdad" and others.

The Week's New Films

—:— By NIE —:—

"REACHING FOR THE MOON," at Loew's, is pretty light fare for Douglas Fairbanks. It presents the hero of many a sword fight as a modern and quite lively stock broker who places orders for the purchase of millions of dollars' worth of securities and then dashes off for Europe in pursuit of Bebe Daniels. Bebe, of course, is worth following anywhere, but Doug might have waited long enough to see which way the stock market was going to jump. Just an hour or two would have done and he could easily enough have swum after the boat, and caught it, too, as he has done in previous efforts, but this just isn't that sort of a picture. Doug gets but a momentary chance this time to indulge in any startling athletics, and most of his time is devoted to getting laughs with the able aid of Miss Daniels and Edward Everett Horton, who plays a valet who is on considerably more intimate terms with his employer than one would believe possible.

Rough and Tumble Fun.

JOE E. BROWN and Winnie Lightner clown their way through "Sit Tight" at the Ambassador and get a lot of fun out of slap-sticking each other around while they conduct a health parlor in town and a training farm out in the country somewhere. There is an incidental romance, a love affair between Claudia Dell and Paul Gregory, and Hobart Bosworth, once a star in his own right, is in the picture, but Winnie and Joe do most of the work and resemble a couple of agile chamois leaping from gag to gag.

Consider the Lilies.

IN "The Easiest Way," the picture made, after a fashion, from Eugene Walters' old drama for the benefit of the Fox customers this week, Constance Bennett is a hard working gal who meets Adolphe Menjou, a millionaire rounder, who prefers blondes. The next thing you know Connie has an apartment on Park avenue, diamonds galore and a 32-cylinder—they're always bigger in the movies—automobile. She might have gone right along being happy, and even adding a few more gold-plated cylinders to her car if she hadn't met Robert Montgomery. Bob was a poor but entirely honest newspaper man and was going to marry Connie just as soon as he returned from working on a story in South America. Times got pretty hard while he was away and Constance took the only easy way out by hooking up with Adolphe again. She considered it just a temporary arrangement of expediency, but her boy friend came back at an inopportune moment, found out the truth and left her flat. Menjou was willing to continue as the ample provider, but Connie was determined to reform and went out into the world alone. Maybe she met Mr. Montgomery again, but the picture doesn't say.

The Woman Pays.

HELEN TWELVETREES has hard luck with men in "Millie" at the St. Louis Theater. First she marries a rich one who just can't be true to her. Then she falls in love with a newspaper reporter who has something of the same failing and after that she shoots a third boy friend when she finds he has designs upon her 16-year-old daughter. Acquitted of murder she gets in an automobile with her child and her mother-in-law and disappears as the last reel fades out. "Millie" doesn't get anywhere in particular but it has its exciting moments as well as some genuine comedy so that it stands up as a pretty good meller. Miss Twelvetrees does fine work as the girl who has to shoot her way into happiness and the rest of the cast is excellent.

Mother Love.

LEON JANNEY, one of the best child actors of the screen, is the star of "Father's Son" at the Missouri sharing honors with his elders, Lewis Stone and Irene Rich, who play his dad and mother. Then there is a Negro boy called Vestibule to form a sort of Huck Finn-Tom Sawyer combination and the picture is a nice, clean little affair founded upon Booth Tarkington's story, "Old Fathers and Young Sons."

Thyrsus Society to Do Molnar's Olympia

The Thyrsus Dramatic Society of Washington University will present Ferenc Molnar's "Olympia" as its semiannual production Wednesday and Saturday evenings, in January Court Room at the university. This recent offering of Molnar's will be presented for the first time in St. Louis, although it was successfully produced in New York in 1928. The play is a light comedy of the life of Austrian nobility before the war.

Robert Young of the English department of the university is coaching the play. The cast, which includes much of the best talent of the campus, is comprised of Mary McNatt, Robert Shampaine, Mary Jane Roach, Charles Lamkin, Mary Tuttle, Philip Becker and Willis Wager.

Galloway Organ Recital.

Charles Galloway will give an organ recital at the Concordia Seminary auditorium Friday evening at 8:15. Mr. Galloway will be assisted by Miss Loraine Altheide, contralto.

ONE SCOUT LEADERSHIP COURSE POSTPONED A WEEK

Other Four Courses Will Be Opened on Scheduled Dates Beginning Tomorrow.

The Approved Training Course in Scout Leadership, scheduled to start at the Michael School tomorrow evening, will be postponed one week because of the Washington' sbirthday holiday, William Puffer, educational director of the St. Louis Boy Scout Council, announces. The postponement was made necessary because all public schools will be closed tomorrow.

The other four courses of the spring training series will start as scheduled. The first aid class, which will be held at the Washington University Medical School, will meet tomorrow night. The swimming class will start at the Principia pool Tuesday evening; the course is patrol leadership will hold its first meeting at the Stix School Wednesday evening; and the class in the elements of cubbing will start at the Stix School Thursday evening.

Any scout leader who has not made advance registration for any one of these courses may register at the first meeting.

BOY SCOUTS TAKE UP TOTEM POLE CARVING

History of Each Troop to Be Symbolically Represented in Circus Parade in March.

The craft of the totem-pole carving has been revived in St. Louis. In nearly 150 troops boy scouts are busy carving by hand symbolic emblems of troop achievement, for entry in a parade of the totems during the 1931 boy scout circus at The Arena March 20 and 21.

Using the conventional figures and symbols, the poles will resemble closely the Alaskan originals, but will differ in that each will represent the history of its troop. Certain carvings, for instance, will symbolize the winning of a district camparall, the holding of an outstanding camp or achievement of the standard troop award. Most of the older troops are carving one symbol for each year of their existence, one outstanding event representing the entire year.

To help troops in making the poles, the local scout council has issued a mimeographed sheet of suggestions on sizes, kinds of wood, tools and types of figures best for the totems. It is suggested that the poles be from six to 10 feet high and about six inches in diameter. White pine, or a similar soft, straight-grained wood, is recommended. The council has arranged with a wrecking company to supply old beams, and with the telephone company to supply the tops of old telephone poles, to troops wishing to buy this material.

In many troops each patrol will do one section of the pole, the different parts being joined when completed.

J. A. Gifford, 1351 Aubert avenue, is director of the totem pole event, and Charles H. Williams, 4509 Chouteau avenue, is assistant director. Either will furnish personal assistance to any troop needing help in preparing its pole. Hints on totem pole carving may also be found on page 41 of the Handbook for Patrol Leaders, on pages 231 to 233 of the "How Book of Scouting," and in a special totem pole pamphlet obtainable at local scout headquarters.

Troop Notes

West District.

Troop 7 of the Kingshighway Presbyterian Church, held its first annual meeting since reorganization under Scoutmaster E. R. Hill, last week. Parents attended. Plans for the coming year were outlined by Scoutmaster Hill, and several demonstrations were given by troop members.

A standard troop insignia was awarded Troop 26, of the Delmar Baptist Church, at the annual troop banquet Feb. 13. The presentation was made by Col. H. D. McBride, scout commissioner for St. Louis. Scout Bob White won first prize in an individual contest, while Scouts Shelton Voges and William Sewell received second and third. Scouts Bob Gartside, Eugene King and William Brown got prizes for birdhouses. Twenty-two scouts and eight officers of the troop attended a special scout service at the church last Sunday.

Patrol Leader Harry Rothman of the Raven Patrol planned and conducted a hike taken by Troop 30, of the Y. M. H. A., to DuPont last Sunday. A Lincoln program was held at the last meeting. Junior Assistant Scoutmaster Melvin Hertzman read a poem on Lincoln, "America" was sung, and Scoutmaster Goldsmith gave a talk. A voice and pep drill, an O'Grady drill, games, and a test-passing period concluded the program.

Troop 41, of the University City Junior High School, was admitted officially into the ranks of scouting at an investiture ceremony conducted for the new troop by scouts of Troop 90, of Temple Shaare Emeth, last Tuesday evening. Walter W. Jones, manual arts instructor at the school, is scoutmaster, while Harry Castlen is chairman of the troop committee. The troop already has a membership of 32.

Scout Joe Landau was promot-

TRAINING SCHOOLS FOR GIRL SCOUT LEADERS

Two Will Be Held in West End and One on the South Side.

Three elementary training courses for prospective Girl Scout leaders and other women interested in Girl Scouting will open this week, under the direction of the Training Committee of the St. Louis Girl Scout Council. One course will be given on the South Side and two in the West End.

The South Side training course will be given at the Scruggs Methodist Episcopal Church, Grace and Fairview avenues, at 7:30 o'clock every Thursday evening from Feb. 26 to April 16. Miss Ruth McCulley, field captain, will be the instructor.

An afternoon course will be given at the Delmar Baptist Church, Skinker and Delmar, from 2 to 4 o'clock every Monday afternoon from March 2 to April 6. Miss Ruth Robbins, field captain, will be the instructor. An evening course will be given at the Pilgrim Congregational Church, Union and Kensington, at 7:30 o'clock every Monday evening from March 2 to April 20. Miss Dorothy Peterson, member of the Training Committee, and a recent recipient of the Harmon award for distinguished service in Girl Scout leadership, will be the instructor.

All-German Music Program.

The Abendmusik Club will present two St. Louis artists as guest soloists in its second public concert, to be given at the Artist's Guild on March 3. Isadore Grossman, for many years first violinist in the Symphony Orchestra, will play Mendelssohn's E Minor Concerto. Oscar Heather, tenor, the other soloist, is well known to radio listeners. The program will consist entirely of the works of German composers.

German Comedy Tonight.

"Die Fuenf Frankfurter" (The Five Rothschilds), a comedy by Roessler, will be given tonight by the German Theater Stock Company in the Auditorium of the German House, 2345 Lafayette avenue.

What's New in Radio Industry

George Gaertner Elected President of National Radio Retailers' Association—Jobbers and Dealers Urge Manufacturers to Produce Sets at Higher Prices—New Radiola Small Set.

A development at the Indianapolis meeting of radio jobbers and dealers on Monday and Tuesday was the suggested plan for manufacturers to "drastically curtail" production and work toward quick development of improvements which will bring to the trade, instruments at greatly higher prices. At a meeting of manufacturers with the jobbers and dealers, it was stated, the general opinion was favorable to this proposal.

George Gaertner of St. Louis was elected president of the retailers' association and Fred A. Wiebe of Some listeners appreciate the music of Jascha Heifetz, violin virtuoso, but not at the expense of the Seth Parker program. That, at least, was the sentiment expressed in about 500 letters from listeners to the National Broadcasting Co. Heifetz played for half an hour the night of Dec. 21 oved the WJZ network. Some of the stations which ordinarily take Seth Parker on the WEAF chain at that time switched to the violin feature. For his program Heifetz was said to have received approximately $15,000. The Seth Parker period is a semi-religious program in which the folks of Jonesport, Me., gather at the Parker home to sing old-fashioned hymns. Seth is portrayed by Phillips Lord.

Prolonged Legal Contest Over Report Selecting Eight Stations for 50,000-Watt Licenses Expected—WGN and WCCO Recommended in This Zone—The Mountaineers Get $175,000 a Year Contract—Zimbalist, the Violinist, Will Broadcast Thursday Night—Neely to Be Starred in New "Old Stager" Series.

Approval by the Federal Radio Commission of the report by Chief Examiner E. A. Yost, recommending eight stations on cleared channels for 50,000 watt licenses, is expected to start a prolonged legal fight. Yost advises awarding the super power licenses as follows:

First zone—WJZ, New York.

Second zone—WCAU, Philadelphia, Pa.

Third zone—WSB, Atlanta, Ga., and WSM, Nashville, Tenn.

Fourth zone—WGN, Chicago, and WCCO, Minneapolis, Minn.

Fifth zone—KOA, Denver, Colo., and KPO, San Francisco.

There are some 25 applicants for the 50,000 watt licenses. Yost previously recommended that all cleared channel stations get 50,000 watt licenses. The commission disapproved his report, telling him to select eight stations and holding to its ruling that super power should be authorized on only 20 of the 40 cleared wave lengths. Twelve channels are already used by 50,000 watt stations or by those authorized to build such transmitters.

In addition to selecting the eight stations, Yost recommended that the following be given 25,000 watt licenses:

First zone—WOR, Newark, N. J.; WHAM, Rochester, N. Y., and WBZ, Boston, Mass.

Second zone—WHAS, Louisville, Ky.

Third zone—WAPI, Birmingham, Ala.; KVOO, Tulsa, Ok., and WBT, Charlotte, N. C.

Fourth zone—WMAQ, Chicago;

Retail Sales Gains Reflected at Detroit in Steadily Increasing Motor Car Production Schedules

One Large Plant Steps Up Output By 50 Per Cent

New De Vaux and Martin Cars to Be Coming Off Assembly Lines in March.

By CHRIS SINSABAUGH.

DETROIT, Feb. 21.—Two new passenger cars, the popular-priced De Vaux and the midget Martin, should be in production within the next 10 days. Word to this effect reaches Detroit from Grand Rapids, Mich., and Hagerstown, Md., where the cars are to be made.

The Grand Rapids plant of the De Vaux company is about ready and the two hand-made versions of the car which have been exhibited at the automobile shows soon will be supplemented by regular production models. The company has been carefully gauging show interest, and now is ready to act on what it regards as a substantial acceptance by the trade and the public.

Most of the large territories have been taken by distributers of prominence, according to the sales department.

The Martin actually is in production at Hagerstown, but the rate is to be stepped up to 100 cars a day in March. Fifteen hundred dealers are reported to have been signed. Present plans are to make the car in two series. The standard coupe will sell for $250, the convertible de luxe coupe for $350. The company also plans to make a quarter-ton truck.

Detroit has been so busy getting the current 1931 models started that it has had little time to think about the new creations scheduled for spring introduction. Little has been heard about the new Jordan line, which was slated for arrival with the return of warmer weather, or of the Peerless multicylinder series.

The Cadillac V-16 set a new sales record for cars of its price class last year. More than 2400 units were sold. Confirming acceptance of the type is the fact that the V-12, likewise, has been setting a fast pace since its production in October. The reception of these and other high priced lines is declared to be a most favorable sign by those watching the re-awakening of the industry.

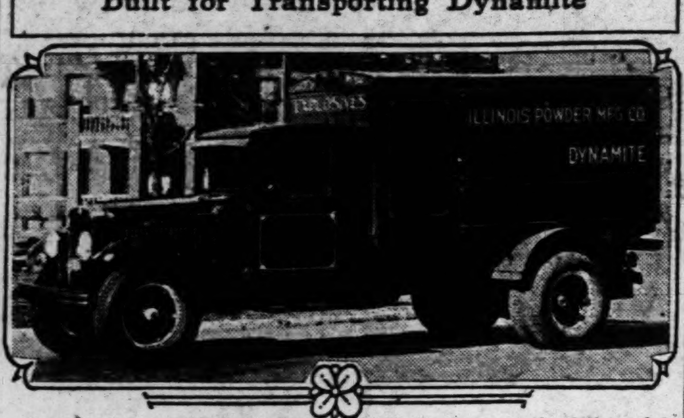
That January sales, revealed in registrations, are 41 per cent above December in those States for which figures are complete is a source of satisfaction for those looking for a repetition of the three-year cycle in motor car sales. The upturn is declared to be 35 per cent higher than the month's average for the past five years.

The retail situation continues to find its reflection here in advanced production schedules. One large company already has stepped up February production 50 per cent above its original estimate. Even this jump will do no more than fill dealers' orders for immediate shipments, it is said.

For Better Ignition.

The cleaner the various parts of the ignition system the more readily they deliver the intense spark which makes for quick starting in cold weather. An easy part to clean is the distributor cap. It should be taken off occasionally and wiped carefully with a soft cloth both inside and outside. Lifting off the rotor while the cap is removed and cleaning it will help.

Built for Transporting Dynamite



One of the new Model A5 International trucks recently delivered to the Illinois Powder Manufacturing Co. It has a body specially built for handling explosives.

General Motors Truck Co. Adds Eight New Models

Size Range From Half-Ton Up to 34,000-Pound Types 18 Types Now in Line.

Addition of eight new models to its line, making a total of 18 models, is announced by the St. Louis branch of the General Motors Truck Co. These fill in gaps in the General Motors truck line and do not replace or compete with any models, according to O. H. Perkins, zone manager.

One new model is the TI5AA, in the half-ton to three-quarter-ton range. It has six-foot panel bodies for service where converted passenger car jobs fail to meet the situation.

Another new model is the T26, a long wheelbase chassis job of 11,000 pounds straight rating. This has road speeds up to 50 miles per hour, full floating axle, reinforced frame and auxiliary springs, and is designed for contract haulers, small van operators and farmers or cattle haulers.

Models T51 and T55 are for medium duty dump work, tractor service or high speed hauling of four to five-ton loads. They have a straight rating capacity of 19,000 pounds and are alike, except that the T51 has spiral bevel drive and the T55 has double reduction drive rear axle.

A Model T61 is for extremely heavy duty service, handling loads above five tons under difficult conditions. It has worm or double reduction drive rear axles and booster brakes.

The Model T85 has a capacity of 26,000 pounds and comes in wheelbases to take bodies up to the 18-foot size. It has a 115 h. p. engine, giving sustained road speeds of better than 35 miles per hour, downdraft carburetion and oil cooling.

Models T95 and T96 have a capacity of 34,000 pounds and are of the six-wheel type. They have 115 h. p. engines, and can be powered with larger engines at slightly higher cost. The T95 has two full floating double reduction drive rear axles and air brakes on all six wheels. The T96 has one double reduction driving axle and a trailing axle interconnected with fully articulated carrying beams and spring-cushioned torque rods. It also has air brakes on all six wheels.

Post-Dispatch Highway Maps

THE Resort and Travel Bureau of the Post-Dispatch has for distribution an excellent 50-page auto trails atlas of the United States and Eastern Canada, showing the condition and numbers of highways and mileage between towns. The price is 50 cents, or 60 cents if mailed.

St. Louis and vicinity maps show all towns, roads, rivers, streams, lakes and other details within a radius of 50 miles of St. Louis. They sell for 20 cents, 24 cents if mailed. Individual State maps are 10 cents, and 12 cents mailed.

City guides, giving the location of streets and street car and bus lines, churches, hospitals, theaters, office buildings and containing a map of the city, sell for 25 and 30 cents.

Map of St. Louis and the suburbs, showing the streets of St. Louis, East St. Louis, Madison, Venice, Clayton, Ferguson, Kirkwood, Webster Groves and University City, sell for 40 cents, or 45 cents mailed.

Paulette, Mathers Join Big Four Co.

Addition to its sales force of Jack Mathers and M. C. Paulette, both of whom are widely known on Auto Row and among motorists, is announced by Walter Rasmussen of the Big Four Auto Co., Chevrolet dealer, South Jefferson near Gravois.

M. C. Paulette.

Jack Mathers.

Paulette formerly operated a dealership of his own, and has had wide selling experience.

Mathers is one of the best known automobile trade men in South St. Louis. He was formerly with the Big Four Auto Co. for several years, then spent some time with another firm, and now is back again.

Both men have been selling motor cars more than 10 years.

Graham Eight Again Scores in Difficult Monte Carlo Contest

The 1931 Monte Carlo rally, Europe's most strenuous motor touring test, brought additional fame to Dr. J. J. Sprenger van Eijk and the same Graham eight in which he won the 1929 rally outright and took fourth place in 1930. This year the Graham stood highest of the 35 American entries, winning fifth place. The route it took covered 2261 miles, starting in Norway and traversing Sweden, Denmark, Germany, Holland, Belgium and France.

The Graham also won first place in the class for cars of more than 5000 cubic centimeters displacement in the Cote de Mules hill climb, and was the only American car to win an award in the comfort competition, in which cars were scored on riding qualities, spaciousness, lighting and other features.

A British car, the Invicta, was the outright winner this year, less than three points higher in score than the Graham. Sixty-three cars finished.

In its 10 years' history, the contest has been won by 10 different makes of cars and 10 different drivers. The Graham was the only American car that ever won first place.

The Monte Carlo rally is regarded as Europe's severest touring test. Points are scored for distance traversed, average speed, number of passengers and regularity of performance.

Oldsmobile Engine Can Get Only Clean Oil and Gasoline

Motors breathe and eat as literally as do human beings. The air an Oldsmobile engine breathes, the gasoline it takes in and the oil are said to be more free of dust and foreign substances than is the air a man inhales and the food he eats.

No matter how dusty the highways an Oldsmobile is called upon to traverse, the air that enters its carburetor and its crankcase is as clean as if it was washed, while gasoline reaches its cylinders and its oil circulates in a cleaner state possibly than when poured into tank and crankcase.

During the life of an automobile millions of cubic feet of air mix with gasoline to form the vapor that drives the engine. This air is saturated with dirt, grit and other impurities. Barricading them from the interior of the engine is an air cleaner of special Oldsmobile design.

A series of safeguards clean and protect the oil that lubricates an Oldsmobile engine. Chief among them is the oiler filter. This filter is so efficient and its process so continuous that at 25 miles an hour the entire oil supply is thoroughly cleaned every 10 minutes.

Foreign matter enters an engine crankcase in other ways than with the original oil supply. A constant stream of air enters the crankcase at the oil filler tube; but in the Oldsmobile this tube is guarded by an air cleaner.

Dilution of engine oil results largely from water vapors produced by condensation. Oldsmobile has met the problem of excessive dilution with a crankcase ventilating system.

A third guard against dirt in the oil in Oldsmobile is a mesh screen in the gear-type oil pump.

J. L. Harris Made Sterling Truck Co. Branch Manager

The Sterling Motor Truck Co. has appointed James L. Harris manager of its local factory branch at 3929 Laclede avenue, Harris having been identified with the truck business in St. Louis for 11 years.

He succeds W. J. Mildrum, manager of the local Sterling branch for the last two years, who recently was promoted to manager of the Chicago branch.

Harris says that sales by the St. Louis branch in 1930 were 37 per cent larger than the last three-year average.

Chevrolet Claims New Car Registration Lead for December

Chevrolet new car registrations in the United States for December led all those of other makes, according to figures just made public by the Chevrolet Motor Co. A total of 31,609 new Chevrolet sixes were registered in the domestic market during the last month of 1930. Figures thus far reported for January indicate that the relative position of Chevrolet in the lead should be maintained for the month just ended, particularly since Chevrolet's January production was 70,000 units, it is stated.

December was the first month in the history of the automobile that six cylinder cars led the field in deliveries to consumers. While Chevrolet in 1927 and again in 1928 was first in manufacturing and sales in the industry, the company's performance in those years was based on the old four-cylinder car.

The current Chevrolet models are two inches longer than last year, although prices range $20 to $40 lower than for the 1930 models.

Oakland and Pontiac Production Schedule Is Revised Upward

New production schedules, increased to meet retail demand, have required the Oakland Motor Car Co. to place a second assembly line in operation, it is announced by Ross D. Williams, zone manager.

Under the revised production schedule, the company plans to build 6370 additional Oakland eights and Pontiac sixes in February, March and April. The revised three-month Pontiac six schedule calls for 5200 more cars, while tentative Oakland eight production represents an increase of 1170 units over the original schedule.

Employment has increased by the recall to work of 500 former employes during the last fortnight, bringing the total number of men on all payrolls to 6200.

Some of the factory divisions are operating night shifts.

Dodge Reports Sales Increases for Six Consecutive Weeks

Employment at the Dodge Brothers plant, shipments of cars from the factory, and retail deliveries by the Dodge dealer organization throughout the country, continued to increase in January at an uninterrupted rate.

In reviewing the turn of business upward since the first of the year, A. vanDerZee, general sales manager of Dodge Brothers, said:

"Several factors seem apparent in the business picture as it presents itself at the beginning of the year. First, it is certain that a change in the mental attitude of the buying public and the dealer organization is taking place and that confidence is replacing the fear which has been so dominant for the past several months. Second, the big automobile shows seem to have definitely established themselves as an important factor in influencing the buying motives of the people. Third, the new cars offered by Dodge Brothers once more have started the flow of business upward.

"In January our factory shipments were greater than in any month since last May. For the last six successive weeks retail sales country have increased over the previous week. Furthermore, the weeks ending Jan. 10, 17, 24 and 31, retail deliveries exceeded the corresponding weeks of last year."

Auto Accidents Increasing.

Although indications are that motor-vehicle mileage declined about 10 per cent in the United States in 1930, the number of automobile accidents increased 12 per cent, deaths from this source increased more than 4 per cent and injuries 13 per cent. There were 32,500 deaths and 960,000 injuries, and $300,000,000 was paid on claims by insurance companies writing automobile casualty, life and accident policies. More than 40 per cent of the mortalities occurred at street intersections; twi , as many persons were killed on State highways than on thoroughfares of any other type.

At prices from $190 to $400 lower—the new Graham Special Sixes and new Eights embody a wealth of improvements and refinements that contribute materially to beauty, safety, comfort, and performance.

Most outstanding of these many improvements is the Graham Synchro-Silent Four-Speed Transmission—which, in greatly reducing the average engine speed at any given road speed—brings not only a new delightful smoothness and ease to driving, such as you have never experienced before—but also effects marked economy in the use of gasoline and oil, and in wear on engine parts.

We want you to see and drive these new Sixes and Eights—surprising even to those familiar with previous Graham value—and to enjoy this newest motoring thrill.

Six-Cylinder Delivery Cars

Fargo delivery cars sold to the Pelletier Floral Co., Inc., by the Joedicke Motor Sales, distributor. They are standard six-cylinder models.

New Carburetor On Willys Six Is More Economical

Among mechanical improvements in 1931 Willys Six, is a newly developed carburetor, which guards against leaks and is more economical, especially in the 40 to 50 mile speed range.

In all the other carburetors in the line, a change has been made in the accelerator pump. The pump plunger is no longer a die-casting, but is a thin brass stamping so that seizure between plunger and pump bore is avoided, through eliminating affinity of metals.

In addition, the shank of the plunger, instead of being a flat strip with holes, now is a round shank, fiting tinto a stuffing box so that no dirt or sand can get into the pump.

Another improvement is a flame arrester so that backfires are completely dampened, thus safeguarding against fire.

In the Willys-Knight a noise dampener has been applied to the rear carburetor. This noise dampener, with a change in timing through which compression has been reduced, gives quieter and softer operation of the engine.

Free Wheeling Cars Held Less Liable to Side-Swerving 'Skids'

Pierce-Arrow owners are agreeably surprised by learning from a driving experience that side-swerving skids are materially lessened by free-wheeling, according to Karl M. Wise, director of engineering of the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Co.

"In recent weeks snow and ice-covered roads in many sections of the country have caused operators of free-wheeling cars to comment on the remarkable tenacity with which their cars hold the road," said Wise. "In both theory and practice these observations are sound. Comparative tests of conventional and free-wheeling gears reveal that free-wheeling operation lessens skidding tendency."

Chinese War Lord Buys a Ford Plane

Sale of a 5-AT Ford trimotor all-metal transport plane to Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang of Manchuria is announced by the Airplane Division of the Ford Motor Co. The plane was delivered to Marshal Chang at Mukden, capital of Manchuria. Marshal Chang is a pilot and has flown the plane on several occasions.

The plane has been on a demonstration tour of Japan and China for several months. It was shipped from the United States to Japan, toured Japan for several weeks, then was flown across the Japan Sea to Seoul and thence to Mukden.

Battery of Testing Machines Try Out Tires for Goodrich

The B. F. Goodrich Co., Akron, O., uses special machinery to test tires and tubes within the factory, in addition to employing the nationally known Silver Fleet on road tests, according to E. R. Kenner, manager of Goodrich Silvertown, Inc., 2843 Washington.

"A battery of testing machines that produce tire wear and constant flexing of the case at speeds and loadings simulating and exceeding actual road service, constitutes one of these indoor tests. The inflated tire is mounted on a wheel and adjusted against a revolving drum. Any desired load may be placed on the tire and the contact drum may be revolved at various speeds.

"On the drum are iron cleats similar to those on a tractor wheel. These cleats are set at various angles with the tire and as the casing strikes them a flexing of rubber and fabric even more severe than that encountered in actual road service is produced.

"This test may exceed five to six times the demand on a tire in actual service, because of the constant flexing and bruising of the casing as it pounds over the steel cleats. This makes possible the testing of tires in the factory in comparatively short time."

Australian 'Mystery' Car Built for Effort To Do 300 M. P. H.

An attempt to beat the 245-mile-an-hour speed record recently made at Daytona Beach, Fla., by Capt. Malcolm Campbell is being planned by Norman Smith, Australian racer, for whom a special car is now under construction in secrecy at Sydney, Australia. Smith expects to attempt a record run in March.

A "mystery" engine of 1700 horsepower, designed to drive the car at 300 miles per hour or more, will power the machine. Tires built to stand a speed of 310 miles per hour and a perfect natural track 30 miles long, in New Zealand, are figured on by Smith.

Smith is conferring with engineers of the Vacuum Oil Co., Pty. Ltd., of Australia, regarding fuel and lubrication.

Ninety-Mile Beach at Kaitaia, New Zealand, has been chosen for the run. At low tide it presents a hard, smooth course 30 miles long and 1000 feet wide.

Auto Speedway Planned.

A concrete automobile speedway, costing $3,500,000, is planned within a short distance of the horse racing track at Lincoln Field, in Crete, Ill. It is reported that the 510-acre tract will be developed into one of the finest motor speedways in the world.

Cadillac Finds Faith Justified by Sales Of Its V-16 and V-12

Following three years of experimental work, the Cadillac V-16 and V-12 were about ready for announcement when the business recession began. As an expression of faith in the soundness of the country, in the future of business and in its own products, Cadillac ignored economic obstacles and introduced the V-16 in January, 1930. Encouraged by its reception Cadillac again discounted the business slump and presented the V-12 in October last.

The company spent $6,000,000 for new dies, new tools and new machinery. In its first year the V-16 set a sales record for cars of its price class as more than 2400 units were sold. Its companion, the V-12, has sold at a rate which is, proportionally, even greater. January business for the V-12, for instance, was nearly a fourth of the combined LaSalle, Cadillac V-8, Cadillac V-12 and Cadillac V-16 sales.

NEW BOY SCOUT PUBLICATION

"Scouter's Pack" to Be Edited by L. John Lewis.

A new Boy Scout publication, "The Scouter's Pack," has been started by the St. Louis Boy Scout Council, for distribution to scoutmasters, assistant scoutmasters and troop committeemen of local council troops.

L. John Lewis, scoutmaster of Troop 198, is editor. The magazine will be issued semi-monthly.

Scouts Eugene Brasius, Donald Huie, Eddie Graham and Davis Stiger of Troop 106 will take part in a Sons of the Revolution program at Christ Church Cathedral. Scouts of this troop are working every Saturday on the troop camp, hoping to finish it by summer.

ed to senior patrol leader, and Scout Gallagher was invested as a tenderfoot scout, in a ceremony conducted by Troop 94, of St. Barbara's Catholic Church, Feb. 12. Forty parents, 25 scouts, and four committeemen witnessed the ceremonies. The troop has obtained materials for the derrick it will build at the scout circus.

Troop 98, of St. Roch's Church, was presented with its third successive standard troop award at a fathers' and sons' dinner held at the Knights of Columbus Hall last Monday evening. Nearly 160 scouts, cubs and fathers attended the dinner. Presentation of the award was made by Col. H. D. McBride, scout commissioner of St. Louis. Troop 98 is the only troop in the city to win a standard award three years in a row. Gold medals for "faithful service" were awarded to Scouts Jack Ferguson, James Cummisky, William Durbin and Lester Wright. Two cubs, James Murphy and Robert Mahon, received awards for test-passing.

South District.

The south district deputy commissioners will hold a meeting at Hotel Saum at 6 o'clock next Thursday evening, to discuss plans for the coming scout circus and for the achievement roundup. H. P. Mueller, district chairman, will preside.

Troop 129 of St. George's Catholic Church, has been reorganized, under the leadership of Scoutmaster Joseph Jordan. A troop committee of five men, headed by Father William J. Berkel, has been chosen.

Troop 143 of the Hancock school has also been reorganized. William Ehler has been made scoutmaster and a new troop committee has been appointed. The troop plans to complete its reorganization tomorrow evening.

Suburban District.

Thirty-five fathers were present at the annual Fathers and Sons' meeting of Troop Webster Groves 2, of the First Congregational Church, Webster, last Wednesday evening. Chairman C. A. Reichardt of the troop committee acted as master of ceremonies for the meeting. Each of the patrols gave demonstrations of second class and Tenderfoot work, Patrol Leader Russell Stockwell's patrol dramatizing the History of the Flag and the Scout oath; Bud Coggeshall's patrol, knots; John Olden's patrol, first aid; Bud Richardt's patrol, Scout laws, and William Newman's patrol, types of fires. The troop has bought a new American flag, in memory of a former Scout of the troop, and has turned its old flag over to Field Executive M. N. Leavitt for presentation to some troop not able to buy one.

North District.

Troop 3 of Grace Holy Cross Church celebrated the sixty-fourth birthday of Scoutmaster Simons at the regular meeting last week. Simons has been in scouting 14 years. The Dragon patrol won a contest in first aid. Fifteen minutes were devoted to test passing and plans for a hike were made. Thirteen scouts and three officers were present at the meeting.

A record in scouting was established last week, when Troop 32, 3939 Magnolia avenue, qualified as a standard troop on its first reregistration night, after being organized only one year. The Standard Troop insignia was presented to Scoutmaster Spelbrink at the Central District rally, held at the Bryan Mullanphy School. Scouts Robert and Paul Spelbrink of the troop will be awarded Red Cross life-saving badges next month.

A surprise move in Congress, apparently in the interest of WCFL, the labor union station in Chicago, is being watched by broadcasters. An amendment to a bill to embody administrative changes in radio statutes, offered by Senator Glenn of Illinois, and adopted by the Senate, directs that the Federal Radio Commission assign one cleared channel for unlimited time use by the organization most representative of the labor interests in this country with permission to use maximum power. The amendment has gone to a congressional conference committee. Earlier in the session Senator Glenn offered a resolution directing assignment of cleared channels to a representative labor station and to an agricultural and an educational station.

Thus far the Radio Commission has refused to treat WCFL, which is operated by the Chicago Federation of Labor, differently from any other station. The programs broadcast by WCFL have been held not to warrant the station being preferred over other stations which have built up much greater reputations. WCFL's fight for a cleared channel has been supported by the American Federation of Labor. It has been countered with the assertion that the labor unions could do as other interests have done—buy time on the air from other stations or the networks, and that there is no reason to give cleared-channel broadcasting privileges to any special group.

Plans Made for Grand Duchess Marie's Visit

Cousin of Late Czar of Russia Will Be House Guest of Mrs. Edward L. Bakewell.

ARRANGEMENTS are being completed for the entertainment of Marie, Grand Duchess of Russia, who will be in St. Louis Tuesday, March 10, under the auspices of the Kirkwood League of Women Voters. Grand Duchess Marie is one of the few survivors of the ill-fated Romanoff family. She will be met at Union Station by Mrs. Edward L. Bakewell. Under police escort they will drive to Melody Farms, the Bakewell home, in Huntleigh Village, where she will be a guest during her stay. At her own request, the Grand Duchess will have luncheon with Mrs. Bakewell alone, and at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon will be driven to the Kirkwood High School, where she will speak on "My Escape From Russia." Following the lecture, the patronesses, each of whom will have one guest, will be invited to meet the speaker at an informal reception at the school. The Grand Duchess will rest at the Bakewell home until 8 o'clock, when she will be the guest of honor at a dinner given by the Kirkwood League at the Bridlespur Hunt Club, through the courtesy of the club's board of governors. The decorations for the party, which will be elaborate, will be planned by the club's staff of Japanese artists.

There will be an after-dinner talk by the guest of honor on "My Old World Background as a Preparation for a Modern Life." An orchestra, which will play during the dinner, has been engaged for dancing—of which the Grand Duchess said she is fond—for the remainder of the evening. She will depart Wednesday noon for Chicago. This is the first time since beginning her lecture series that the speaker has accepted private hospitality and at her request there will be no small parties.

The Grand Duchess is the daughter of the late King George and Queen Olga of Greece and is a first cousin of King George of England, Queen Marie of Rumania and the late Czar of Russia. She will tell of her experiences during the Russian revolution.

The list of patronesses for the afternoon lecture, which is incomplete, includes: Mrs. Wyatt Shallcross, Mrs. George Gellhorn, Mrs. Ernest W. Stix, Mrs. Walter Skinner, Mrs. James Ross Clemens, Miss Mary Waterman, Mrs. Bakewell, Mrs. H. P. Farrington, Mrs. H. F. Chadayne, Miss Mary Blaine Tompkins, Mrs. A. C. Good, Mrs. A. H. Kiskaddon, Mrs. F. E. Bates, Mrs. E. F. Berkley Jones, Miss Charlotte Coles, Mrs. John E. Miller, Mrs. Albert Chandler, Mrs. Ernest Betts, Mrs. William Fitzhugh Randolph, Mrs. Daniel S. Brown, Mrs. William Becktold, Mrs. Otis E. Turner, Mrs. A. L. Grant, Mrs. Julian C. Harvey, Mrs. John K. Broderick, Mrs. George Graham, Mrs. Charles W. Disbrow and Mrs. J. B. Greensfelder.

Washington Lively In Spite of Lent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.

THERE is nearly as much social activity here as there was before the Lenten season set in, even though Mrs. Hoover forced the postponement of the dinner parties to be given for her and the President by leaving Washington Monday for Asheville, N. C. She will discontinue all social activities until after Easter Sunday. To be sure there will be an observance of the birthday of Peggy Ann on St. Patrick's day, but it will be adapted to the nursery.

Vice President Curtis and his sister, Mrs. Gann, attended a dinner party given by the Ambassador of Mexico and Senora de Tellez at the embassy.

Senora de Tellez will give a reception Monday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow. Mrs. Morrow as chatelaine of the embassy in Mexico City entertained the Ambassador and Senora de Tellez.

Count Laszlo Szechenyi, Hungarian Minister, and his American wife, the daughter of Cornelius Vanderbilt of New York, have announced the engagement of their second daughter, Countess Alice, to Count Bela Hadik of Budapest. She and her sisters have been reared in this country, returning to Hungary each season for a very brief visit to their father's estates. No date has been set for the wedding.

The silver wedding anniversary dinner of the Speaker and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth was a gay party where long skirts and balloon sleeves replaced the clinging attire of today. Paulina Longworth was permitted to see her parents dressed for the party.

Elizabeth Burdeau Married in Greece

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE T. BURDEAU announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Burdeau, to Edgar Zantker of Pittsburg, Pa. The wedding took place in St. Dionysius Cathedral, Athens, Greece, Monday, Feb. 2. There were no attendants. The bride was accompanied to Athens by her mother, with whom she had been traveling in Europe since July. She is a graduate of Sacred Heart Convent and Washington University in St. Louis and is a member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority. She was prominent in university activities and went abroad to study the drama at the University of Berlin. Mr. Zantker was born in Austria and educated abroad. He is director-general in the Near East for an American motion picture company. He and his bride are traveling in Egypt and Palestine and plan to visit this country a year from this coming May.

Mrs. Burdeau arrived home Tuesday and with Mr. Burdeau is with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Desloge of Ferguson. Announcement cards have been sent from Athens and are expected to reach St. Louis within a fortnight.

Mrs. L. C. Dyer Heads Congressional Club

MRS. LEONIDAS C. DYER, wife of Congressman Dyer of Missouri, has been elected president of the Congressional Club of Washington, composed of wives of Senators and Representatives.

Mrs. Dyer, who succeeds Mrs. Porter Dale, wife of the Senator from Vermont, is the first president from the Middle West. Mrs. Dale's predecessor was Mrs. Peter Goelet Gerry, wife of former Senator Gerry from Rhode Island. Mrs. Harry B. Hawes made the nominating address. Mrs. Dyer will take office March 2, for two years.

Two Benefits For Red Cross In Prospect

Exhibition of Quilts Beginning Wednesday to Be Followed March 4 With Fashion Show.

RALLYING to the assistance of the Red Cross, hundreds of well-known St. Louis women are interesting themselves in two benefit entertainments, the entire proceeds of which will be given to the St. Louis Chapter to alleviate suffering in the drouth-stricken areas.

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week there will be an exhibition of a unique collection of more than 200 quilts, the property of Mrs. A. C. Boylston, in the assembly room of Stix, Baer & Fuller. The patterns, many of which were popular several decades ago, are unusual, and many of them are replicas of quilts owned by famous persons.

Mrs. Nat Brown is chairman of the Committee on Arrangements, and there will be a group of hostesses for each of the three days, including Mrs. Edward F. Goltra, Mrs. C. B. Faris, Mrs. Scott Porter, Mrs. J. O. King, Mrs. George S. Johns, Mrs. Howard Bailey, Mrs. Clement William Nelson, Mrs. J. T. Davis, Mrs. Frederick D. Gardner, Mrs. Frank W. Taylor Jr., Mrs. G. A. Buder Jr., Mrs. Clay Platt, Mrs. O. E. Rugg, Mrs. F. J. Keiser, Mrs. B. A. Thompson, Mrs. Victor J. Miller, Mrs. Lawrence McDaniel and Mrs. C. W. Swingley, Mrs. E. H. Kieselhorst, Mrs. C. Howard Stewart, Mrs. Fred E. Hoffman and Mrs. F. H. Littlefield.

Preparations are in progress for the fashion show and tea to be given at the Warfield Shops, March 4 for the drouth relief fund. James H. Platt will be master of ceremonies, and groups of debutantes and second year girls will serve tea during the afternoon and act as models for the 20 exhibitors who will show from 3 to 5 ensembles each.

The guests will be served by the following young women, who will be garbed in bright pajamas: Miss Elizabeth Allen, Mrs. Chapin Newhard, Mrs. Warren Chandler, Miss Alita Davis, Miss Martha Love, Mrs. Lee Johnson, Miss Marie Wilson, Miss Adeline Ely Smith, Miss Jane Burns, Mrs. John Kennard Wallace Jr., Miss Mary Jane Baumes, Miss Mary Francis Day, Miss Hope Pangman, Miss Florence Jones, Miss Marian Davis, Miss Sally Taylor, Miss Jane Allen Connett, Miss Alice Francis, Miss Elizabeth Leavitt and Miss Marian Bischoff.

The models will include Miss Jane Messick, Miss Mary Lees Kennard, Miss Jane Francis, Mrs. William O. Schock, Miss Jane Meier, Miss Elizabeth Cuendet, Miss Jane Blackmer, Mrs. Louis B. Von Weise Jr., Miss Jean Ford, Miss Joan Pangman, Miss Josephine Scullin, Miss Christine Jones, Miss Louise Goddard, Mrs. Donaldson Lambert, Mrs. Beverly Jones, Miss Irene Williams, Miss Janet Shields and Mrs. Milton Price.

The models will parade through several rooms, each of which will contain a lighted platform. Two hostesses will preside in each room to announce the models as they appear, and the name of each gown similar to the French fashion of staging style shows. Children's frocks will be modeled by the small daughters of some of the young matrons. A stringed orchestra will play all afternoon, and Mrs. Herman Miller will broadcast a word picture of the show over one of the local radio stations.

Additional patronesses will include Mrs. E. Lansing Ray, Mrs. Eugene Cuendet, Mrs. Orion Willis, Mrs. Harold M. Kauffman, Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer, Mrs. Gerard B. Allen, Mrs. William A. Stickney, Mrs. Cecil C. Pangman, Mrs. Bruce Seddon, Mrs. John A. Love, Mrs. Francis Mesker, Miss Sarah Tower, Mrs. Hubertas Schotten, Mrs. Carter Lewis, Mrs. William S. Ford, Mrs. Carl Koehler, Mrs. Gates Williams, Mrs. Clarence E. Maloy and Mrs. I. D. Kelley Jr.

Albrecht, 7109 Washington boulevard. The announcement was made yesterday at a bridge luncheon for 16 guests given by Mrs. Watkins at the Coronado Hotel.

The luncheon table was adorned with a centerpiece of yellow roses and lavender sweet peas. The favors, which were shoulder corsages of the same blossoms, had cards attached on which were written the names of Miss Watkins and her fiance.

Miss Watkins attended the University of Missouri and is a member of Phi Mu sorority. Mr. Albrecht is a graduate of Western Military Academy. No date has been set for the wedding.

New York Winter Social Season Ends

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.

LENT has put an end to the winter social season of 1931. There were a few weddings last week and some benefit performances at theaters and the opera. The other events were of the informal, unchronicled kind which never stop in New York.

One of the largest weddings was that of Miss Margaret Livingston Partridge to William Burden at St. Thomas' Church on Monday. Afterward there was a reception at the Colony Club.

Today Miss Lucille Kennard married Lieutenant Commander Gordon Whymper Nelson at the Church of the Divine Paternity.

Tuesday night Lily Pons, the young coloratura soprano from France who is one of the sensations of New York's 1931, sang "Lucia" in a Metropolitan Opera benefit performance for the Knickerbocker Hospital.

Mrs. Efrem Zimbalist (Alma Gluck) entertained Tuesday with an all-day party at the American Women's Association Club. Mrs. Zimbalist's guests included many of New York's notable figures in the social artistic and theatrical world. The day started off with a swimming party followed by lunch, bridge and backgammon.

The Junior League is doing its best to keep New York from being dull. On Wednesday the Glee Club gave its annual concert.

Committees for Baby Show Chosen

COMMITTEE members to direct the work of the baby show at the Woman's Exposition to be held in the Coliseum March 5 to 11, were appointed at a meeting today of the executive board of the St. Louis Women's Republican Clubs, sponsors of the show.

Names of officers and the committees to which they were elected follow: Mrs. Eugene Murray, chairman, Reception Committee; Miss Cleta Smith, Committee on Arrangements; Mrs. Frank A. Becker, Contact Committee; Mrs. J. E. Allen, nurses and doctors; Mrs. J. F. Schmitt, baby house committee; Mrs. Lydia Rothweiler, Beauty Contest Committee; Mrs. George B. Reynolds, secretary same committee.

Catholic Society To Give Lenten Play

A PASSION play "The Upper Room" will be presented during Lent under the auspices of the Young Men's District League No. 1 of the Catholic Union of Missouri. There will be seven performances, one each week, at various church halls.

The first will be given tonight at St. Francis de Sales Hall, 2634 Iowa avenue; Wednesday the second performance will be given at Holy Trinity Hall, Fourteenth and Mallinckrodt streets; next Sunday at St. Augustine's Hall, Hebert and Lismore streets; Sunday, March 8, at St. Boniface's Hall, Michigan avenue and Schirmer street; Tuesday, March 17, at St. Henry's Hall, California avenue and Hickory street; Sunday, March 22, at St. Engelbert's Hall, Carter and Shreve avenues; and Sunday, March 29, at St. Peter's Hall, St. Charles, Mo.

The cast has been chosen from Catholic parishes in St. Louis, and the musical and choral accompaniments will be given under the direction of Prof. Jacob Kremer. The Rev. R. B. Schuler is in charge.

The cast includes Miss Lucienne Deschodt, Miss Marie Gebken, Miss Clara Menke, and Leo Buchholz, Bernard Sandbothe, Raymond Brockland, George Bohrer, Erwin Santen, Leo Robben, Elmer Breer and Russell Boudreau.

Business Women's Week March 8-14

NATIONAL BUSINESS WOMEN'S WEEK, under the auspices of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, will be observed March 8 to 14. The St. Louis Business and Professional Women's Club, of which Miss Winifred C. Walker is president, will arrange its program for the week to coincide with the programs of all other clubs.

The special committee in charge for the week is composed of Miss Hortense Cripe, public relations chairman; Mrs. Maria Regnier Kaufmann, publicity chairman, and Miss Marie Ames, chairman of radio speakers bureau, assisted by Miss Carrie Auth and Miss Florence Weigle, vice president of the club.

The Public Relations Dinner will be March 12. Miss Helen Havener, editor of "Independent Woman" and a national officer will be the principal speaker. Other speakers will be representatives of various service clubs.

The meeting will be held at the Town Club and is open to the public.

Miss Martha Nelson Weds Robert S. Wright

MRS. OSCAR J. NELSON, 5972 Clemens avenue, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Martha Irene Nelson, and Robert S. Wright of Philadelphia, which took place Feb. 2 in Philadelphia. Mr. and Mrs. Wright are spending their honeymoon in Havana and will make their home in Philadelphia.

The bride was educated at Hosmer Hall and the University of Wisconsin, and Mr. Wright is a graduate of the same university.

Mrs. Nelson and her sister, Miss Louise Lowe of Chicago went to Philadelphia for the ceremony.

The Chinese Golden Shrine of Good Fortune

A MOST interesting example and one of the most highly treasured specimens of ancient Chinese art is the Golden Shrine from the collection of the late O. A. Wall, M. D., Ph. G., Ph. M. It was obtained from the Imperial Chinese Government in 1905 at an expenditure of many thousands of dollars, after its exhibition at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in the year of 1904.

It is claimed that the Shrine, with its mellow, golden light, and intricacies of its symbolic carvings, has the power to bestow great good fortune upon the beholder.

Raymond Walker, Mrs. E. H. Steininger, Mrs. Frank Henniger, Mrs. B. F. Badger, Mrs. Edward T. Card, Mrs. Thomas W. Taylor, Mrs. Lillie Willcox, Mrs. James Leweld, Mrs. Lily Tomforde, Mrs. Otto Arneson, Mrs. Alys Daneron Weed, Mrs. J. R. Jackson, Mrs. C. C. Hardcastle, Mrs. Orville Smith and Mrs. Edward Pauley, Granite City.

Outstanding in Quest Club programs for this year is the one to be presented Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. in the lecture room of the Kingshighway Presbyterian Church.

The speaker will be Mrs. H. C. McCahan, chairman of literature of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. McCahan before serving in this office was the State president of the Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs. Her subject will be "Songs in Many Keys."

Jan Sadlo, St. Louis tenor who has sung in the Municipal Opera Chorus, will sing a group of songs and will be accompanied at the piano by Robert Thomas. Quest Club will have as special guests for the day State and district officers of Missouri and Illinois and the presidents of the clubs of the Eighth District M. F. W. C.

A tea for Mrs. McCahan will follow the program. Officers and board members will be hostesses and the Hospitality Committee is as follows: Mrs. Louis Keller, Mrs. Isaac H. Orr, Mrs. W. B. Gray and Mrs. E. K. Eastham.

The president, Mrs. F. J. Keiser, will preside.

The annual meeting, luncheon and election of officers of the Woman's Missionary Society of West Presbyterian Church will be held Tuesday at 12:30 o'clock at the church. Miss Irene Teagarden, missionary to Syria, who is taking a special course at the University of Chicago while on furlough, will be the speaker, and the devotional will be given by Mrs. R. T. Barber. A musical program will be given by Miss Louise Evers, violinist, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Anna Evers, and Mrs. Warren S. Miller, soprano.

Mrs. W. H. Bissland, the president, will preside, and the hostesses at the tables will be the circle leaders, including Mrs. W. S. Walters, Mrs. William H. Pape, Mrs. George Weber, Mrs. W. E. Mantiply, Mrs. William H. Moulton, Mrs. H. G. Nicks, Mrs. William B. Bennett, Mrs. J. M. Dubbs and Mrs. C. H. Krause.

While in St. Louis Miss Teagarden will be the guest of Mrs. Gilbert F. Close, 7267 Cornell avenue.

Harmony Literary Club was entertained at the home of Mrs. John R. Verdier in Webster Groves by Mrs. Belle Holley Friday, Feb. 13. The subject for roll call was made by members discussing current events. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. A. F. Davis; first vice president, Mrs. C. M. McMahon; second vice president, Mrs. H. G. Wright; recording secretary, Mrs. Charles Forse; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Charles Parker; treasurer, Mrs. George Griffith; auditor, Mrs. Belle Holley. The following members were appointed to serve on the Program Committee: Mrs. M. S. Keator, Mrs. E. R. Nyroth, Mrs. George Griffith and Mrs. Gordon Davis.

The next meeting will be held at the Gatesworth Hotel on Friday at 1 p. m. with Mrs. F. J. Sternberg as hostess. The naming of French monarchs will be the subject for roll call and Mrs. A. F. Davis will review "The Man With the Iron Mask" by Dumas and Mrs. C. M. McMahon will discuss Louis XIV.

Thursday the Spirit of St. Louis Delphians will meet at the Kings-Way Hotel. Mrs. Charles Hennig will be the leader.

A SCIENTIFIC TALK ON COLDS, PNEUMONIA AND .flu.
HEALTH REPORTS show that flu, like colds and pneumonia, is now more prevalent. And authorities are urging everyone to take all possible precautions.
Just what causes flu has not yet been definitely established by science. But a weakened, run-down condition may make us easier prey to flu—just as it makes us easier prey to colds and other winter ailments. So authorities stress the importance of building up vitality and resistance. Eat nourishing food. Get plenty of rest, fresh air and exercise. Avoid exposure. And start taking a good, fortifying tonic at once.
Doctors advise Scott's Emulsion
Scott's Emulsion is recommended by doctors because it brings the remarkable health-building and disease-resisting vitamins of cod-liver oil—in the pleasantest, quickest way. Scott's Emulsion is emulsified. So it's free from that strong "fishy" taste. Easier to take. Easier to digest. More quickly absorbed.
As a result, Scott's Emulsion benefits you almost immediately. It promptly strengthens and revitalizes weakened systems. It improves your weight and appetite. It increases your resistance against the dread attacks of pesky colds and other winter diseases.
Try Scott's Emulsion for pale, thin children, too.
Made of purest, tested Norwegian cod-liver oil, Scott's Emulsion is rich in vitamin A, the growth-promoting vitamin that helps guard against disease. It is rich in vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin that prevents rickets. It also contains vital mineral elements that aid in forming sound bones and teeth. This gives Scott's Emulsion a special advantage for growing children, infants, nursing and expectant mothers.
Try Scott's Emulsion confidently. It has helped millions! It tastes good! Children as well as grown-ups take it willingly. And it does good! Get a bottle at your druggist's to-day!

DEMOCRATS TO OPPOSE DRY LAW STAND NOW

Leaders in Congress Inform Raskob Discussion by Committee Would Be Mistake.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Persistent reports that Chairman Raskob intended to bring up the prohibition issue at the March 5 meeting of the Democratic National Committee caused party leaders in Congress today to send out notice that any such move would be opposed as out of order.

Members high in Democratic councils have said since Raskob called the meeting that its sole purpose was to present to the committee a plan for liquidating the $500,000 party debt before the 1932 campaign gets under way.

The antagonism to opening the prohibition issue at the March meeting is not confined to the dry ranks alone. Some of the members of Congress with wet inclinations are prepared to send word, also, to Raskob that they feel it would be a mistake to stir up this issue so far in advance of the presidential campaign.

Southern Democrats are taking the initiative in the protest against the prohibition commitment. They have the active support of Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader and Vice Presidential candidate with Alfred E. Smith in the 1928 contest.

It is their contention that the National Committee is without authority to commit the party on issues and that such authority rests solely with the national convention.

It was known that Raskob has prepared a plan for raising the party's debt and will ask formal approval of this at the committee meeting.

Procter & Gamble Dividend Day.

AN OBLIGING BEAUTY DOCTOR

A Beauty Specialist Gives Home-Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair.

Mrs. M. D. Gillespie, a well-known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off."

TELLS OF LIQUIDATION OF REPUBLIC NATIONAL

Former President, J. A. Lewis, in Deposition, Discusses Pool to Buy Sacks' Stock.

Why the Republic National Bank went into liquidation in July, 1924, is discussed in a deposition by its former president, John A. Lewis. The deposition, filed in Circuit Court yesterday is to be used in a suit by the estate of John F. O'Neil, a stockholder of the bank, against nine other stockholders and officers who entered a pool with O'Neil to purchase the 2356 shares of William Sacks, the bank's promoter and a member of its board of directors.

The pool agreed to pay $80 a share so its members would be in a position to sell majority control of the depository to the United States Bank, negotiations for which were then under way. However, Lewis testified, these negotiations failed, and the Republic National was later taken over by the American (now the Franklin-American) Trust Co., which undertook to liquidate the assets, at the same time assuming deposit and other liabilities.

According to Lewis, the Republic National paid the American Trust about $100,000 for liquidation service but $20,000 of this fee was returned. "They drove a mighty hard bargain," the deponent said.

For some time before the Republic National ceased business, Lewis testified, it had a hard road to travel.

"The bank had a lot of bad paper," he said, "and a somewhat bad reputation. It was losing money every month for a year." In this situation, the witness explained, the pool was organized to buy Sacks' stock. The pool was composed of O'Neil, Lewis, J. T. Bradley, Thomas Mellow, Richard Moore, Gaetano Viviano, George W. Hobbs, F. A. Bannister, Chris. Beckemeier Jr., John Henderson and the late C. Bernet, the deponent said.

Lewis asserted Sacks had pledged his stock at various sources for loans totaling $164,500 and the pool agreement provided its signers would reimburse Sacks for any equity to which he would be entitled after payment of the loans. It appears his equity amounted to $23,000, which he assigned to O'Neil. The suit is based on the equity agreement. O'Neil died four years ago.

All in the pool, except Lewis, are named as defendants. Lewis explained he paid his proportionate share, amounting to $3500. Others, he said, have made some payments, so that the amount sued for is $18,845. A general denial to the action has been filed.

It is understood some of the defendants will contend that the consideration for the members of the pool signing the agreement failed when the United States Bank did not purchase the Republic National. Lewis, in answer to counsel for defense, admitted that was the reason for the agreement. However, Albert E. Hausman, who with Otto F. Karbe, represents plaintiff, elicited from the witness that the Republic National officers were anxious that the bank be taken over by another depository without loss to the depositors.

TWO GET ONE TO 14 YEARS FOR SHOOTING IN ILLINOIS

Herbert Wyman and Roy Hall Convicted of Assault to Kill at Mitchell.

Charged with assault to kill in the shooting of Joseph Troeckler, a farmer living near Mitchell, Ill., Herbert Wyman and Roy Hall, both of Peoria, were found guilty by a jury in the Madison County Circuit Court at Edwardsville yesterday. Sentence of one to 14 years in the Chester penitentiary will be formally pronounced tomorrow.

On the night of Oct. 20, last, Troeckler saw two men and a young woman drive an automobile into his field a short distance from his house. After waiting half an hour, he approached the car to investigate and was shot in the abdomen by one of the occupants. Wyman and Hall were arrested and Wyman admitted firing the shot. Troeckler was taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Granite City where he recovered.

Both Wyman and Hall were on parole from prisons at the time of the shooting, Wyman from the Joliet penitentiary and Hall from the Alabama State penitentiary.

To Attend Ceramists' Meeting.

Dr. Victor T. Allen, associate professor of geology at St. Louis University, will leave for Cleveland tomorrow to attend the annual meeting of the American Ceramic Society. He will present a paper on "Petrographic and Mineralogic Study of the Underclays of Illinois Coal," based on research work done last summer.

Missouri Mother Knew Best . . .

WISE mothers find the things that keep children contented, happy, well. Most of them have learned they can depend on one thing to restore a youngster's good nature when he's cross, fretful, upset.

The best proof that this method really works comes from the fact that mothers who try it once continue to use it for years, when its help is needed.

The experience of Mrs. M. Brown, 5960 Ridge Avenue, St. Louis, is typical. She says: "I have used California Fig Syrup with Robert and Marilyn practically all of their lives. Whenever they're the least bit constipated or restless I give them a little. It has them comfortable, happy in a jiffy. Their splendid condition proves I knew best when I decided to use this wonderful preparation with them."

For three generations, California Fig Syrup has been the choice of knowing mothers. Physicians endorse the use of this pure vegetable product whenever a child's bowels need help. It contains no harmful drugs; cannot form any habit. Weak stomach and bowels are strengthened by it; appetite is increased; the digestion and assimilation are assisted. So weak, undernourished children usually gain in strength, weight and energy; become happy, buoyant, rosy by its use.

Seven million bottles used a year speaks volumes for its effectiveness and merit.

DON'T FIGHT A COLD!

"FIGHTING" a cold is like Don Quixote's fighting the windmill!

Instead of battling a cold, soothe it away with the new "Pineoleum" oil spray treatment.

The sensible place to treat a cold is at the seat of the trouble—the passages of nose and throat. And the "Pineoleum" oil spray method clears the passages, soothes the angry membranes, and rids you instantly of that stuffed-up feeling. It bathes the inflamed membranes in a spreading, penetrating film of healing oil that protects the tissues and inhibits the growth of germs.

Use it for children before they start for school. They like it—it's not like "medicine" and it will not upset their stomachs. In fact, it will help keep them from getting a cold! At your drug store.

$100,000 PLEDGED FOR THIS SEASON'S MUNICIPAL OPERAS

Association Opens Campaign Tomorrow to Obtain $50,000 Additional for Guarantee Fund.

PRODUCTIONS CHIEF TO BE CHOSEN SOON

Then Announcement Will Be Made of the Principals and Repertory for Coming Summer.

Subscriptions to the 1931 Municipal Opera guarantee fund have passed the $100,000 mark, it was announced yesterday by Henry W. Kiel, president of the Municipal Theater Association.

Having listed 100 new guarantee pledges last week, directors and members of the association will begin a campaign tomorrow to raise an additional $50,000 and so complete the drive for a $150,000 guarantee fund.

"Not only is Municipal Opera assured of its biggest guarantee fund, but it has also enrolled the largest number of guarantors in its history," Kiel said. "The $100,000 has been pledged by 687 firms and individuals.

"With the guarantee fund goal in sight, the association will now proceed with its plans for the 1931 season. The Executive Committee has considered several important theatrical producers for the position of productions manager and we expect to engage one this week. An announcement as to repertory and cast will be made shortly.

"Directors of the association are determined that this summer's productions shall be the best ever given in Forest Park."

The association announced recently that $400,000 would be spent in providing this year's Municipal Opera productions. The opera season will give employment to about 400 local persons.

Steady renewal of season ticket reservations has brought the advance seat subscriptions to about $60,000. Ticket prices will be kept at the level of the past 10 years.

BEQUEST TO JEWISH CHARITY MADE BY MRS. FLORA SLUPSKY

$250 Given to Old Folks' Home; Distribution of $300,000 Provided in Will.

The will of Mrs. Flora Slupsky, who died Jan. 9, was filed in Probate Court yesterday, disposing of an estate valued at about $300,000.

Among the specific bequests are nine ranging from $1 to $1000 to grandchildren; on of $250 to the Jewish Orthodox Old Folks' Home and of $250 to the B'nai Amoona Congregation. Use of a farm on the Warson road is left to her husband, Jacob Slupsky, for life, and the rest of the estate is placed in trust for her husband, two sons, Theodore H. and Harold, and four daughters, Mrs. Hanna Fisher, Mrs. Rose Levin, Mrs. Ruth Brodsky and Mrs. Blanche Cohen, with the provision that each receive $150 a month from the income. A codicil, however, reduces Mrs. Fisher's share to $75 a month and Mrs. Levin's to $100 and excludes them from sharing in the estate when the trust is terminated after 20 years.

The will, made May 27, 1930, originally provided that Carmen Slupsky, a granddaughter, should receive $50 a month from the trust, but a codicil dated June 20 revokes this provision "because Carmen married without my consent." This granddaughter receives a specific bequest of $1. The estate consists chiefly of stock in the Flora Realty & Investment Co.

HIGH SCHOOL REORGANIZES

Separate Incorporation Sought at Christian Brothers.

A petition to incorporate separately the Christian Brothers High School at 6501 Clayton road was filed in Circuit Court yesterday at Clayton in the expectation of eventually resuming college courses, which were abandoned following the Christian Brothers College fire of 1916.

Brother James Walter, head of the school, said the change was made to meet requirements of educational groups that colleges and high schools be operated by separate corporations. Application was made to incorporate under a different name—Benildus High School—since a Christian Brothers High School already has been incorporated at St. Joseph, but Brother James said the local institution would continue to be known generally as Christian Brothers High School.

$2500 PRIZES FOR DOG SHOW

35 Loving Cups to Be Awarded in Addition.

Cash awards amounting to $2500, with 35 loving cups and other prizes, will be made at the silver jubilee benefit dog show sponsored by the Mississippi Valley Kennel Club, at The Arena, March 9—11.

Seventeen specialty clubs will be represented by entries in the show. Profits of the show will go to the Citizens' Committee for Unemployment Relief.

Wins Wellesley Award.

Miss Jean Carol Trepp, formerly of St. Louis, has been awarded the Fanny Bullock Workman Fellowship by Wellesley College. She is the daughter of Samuel Trepp, who was formerly connected with the Mallinckrodt Chemical Co. The family moved from St. Louis to East Orange, N. J. about 15 years ago. Miss Trepp, who is 23 years old, graduated from Wellesley two years ago with high honors, receiving both the Radcliffe and the Wellesley awards. She has since engaged in research in trade union interest in production.

State Bar Association Banquet.

The midseason banquet of the Missouri Bar Association will be held at the Masonic Temple in Jefferson City at 6:30 o'clock next Saturday night, with Gov. Caulfield and a number of State officials in attendance. A special train is being arranged here to take members of the association from St. Louis to the meeting. Joseph W. Jamison is president of the association.

Socialist Labor Meeting.

"What Is Ahead of the Working Class?" will be the subject of an address at a meeting of the Socialist Labor party at Sokol Hall, 1439 Chouteau avenue, at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

"Washes clothes whiter," says Mrs. L. Schawacker of St. Louis

"Rinso suds are so quick, rich and lasting, even in our hard water. I wonder now why I ever bothered with bar soaps, chips and water softeners. A little Rinso gives a lot of thick suds that loosen dirt and wash clothes whiter. I use it for dishwashing, too."

MRS. LENA SCHAWACKER, 3437 Pennsylvania, St. Louis, Mo.

All you need—in tub or washer

Rinso is all you need for snowy linens, for new-looking colored things. It gives twice as much suds, cup for cup, as lightweight, puffed-up soaps—even in hardest water. Safe suds. Long-lasting suds.

Wonderful in washers, too. The makers of 40 famous washers recommend it. Get the BIG package. Try Rinso for dishes, for all cleaning.

ALLOWED TO FILE BANKRUPTCY PETITION AS POOR PERSON

Court Waives Fees of $70 for Leslie Olian, Former Dress Manufacturer.

Permission to file a voluntary bankruptcy petition as a poor person, without payment of the usual fees of about $70, was granted in Federal Court yesterday to Leslie Olian, a former dress manufacturer, of 5656 Waterman avenue.

Olian, who gave his occupation as a salesman, told the Court he did not have the money to pay the fee. No schedules of debts or assets accompanied the petition, which was witnessed by a notary. Olian could not be reached.

TEACHERS FIGHT BILL PROVIDING ONE-YEAR TERMS

Association to Meet Tuesday to Voice Protest Against Measure Before Legislature.

CO-AUTHOR SAYS IT HASN'T A CHANCE

Rule, Once in Force Here, Was Abrogated When Attacked in Court—Board Members Oppose It.

The St. Louis Grade Teachers' Association, representing nearly 1500 teachers in the public grade schools, will meet at Soldan High School auditorium at 4:15 p. m. Tuesday to protest against the bill pending in the State Legislature to require annual instead of permanent appointments for teachers here.

A majority of members of the Board of Education have expressed themselves as opposed to the bill, and President Barth may call a special meeting to put the board on record after the teachers act Tuesday. The Executive Committee of the Elementary School Principals' Association has condemned the bill, pointing out that under the present plan a teacher is appointed only after successfully passing long training, apprenticeship and closely supervised work as a substitute.

Superintendent of Instruction Gerling has sent telegrams to the St. Louis delegation in the Legislature, strongly opposing the bill, and the board's Legislative Committee is working against it through an agent at Jefferson City.

Approved By House.

The bill has been approved by the House of Representatives Committee on Education and is ready for engrossment. It was introduced by Representatives Joseph W. Davies and Louis C. Hehl of St. Louis. Hehl told the Post-Dispatch yesterday his name had been attached to it by Davies and that he had forgotten who had requested its introduction, although Davies had told him. Davies could not be reached.

"This would put St. Louis teachers on the same footing as those in the 114 counties of the State, who are appointed annually," Hehl said. "It seems to have met with the approval of some of the members and former members of the Board of Education. If the bill is going to do any harm, I don't think it will go through. My opinion anyway is that it hasn't a chance to pass."

As introduced originally, the bill provided that teachers be appointed by the Board of Education, although the board's charter gives the superintendent the appointing power. It was amended in committee to leave the authority with the superintendent, subject, as at present, to the approval of the board. Under the charter the superintendent may suspend teachers for cause, whereupon they are heard by the board, which has the right of dismissal.

Rule Attacked in Court.

A rule of one-year appointments was maintained by the board for years, but the Grade Teachers' Association attacked it in court and it was invalidated about nine years ago.

The teachers are complaining that passage of the bill would upset the morale of the teaching corps by fostering a feeling of insecurity. They say they would be worried constantly over whether they would be reappointed. School officials fear the superintendent and board members would be besieged by teachers and friends of teachers pressing for appointments. The opponents assert that teachers would have to play politics to keep their jobs.

Members of the board who have said they oppose the bill include President Barth, Vice President Rollins, Mrs. Elias Michael, Ben Weidle, chairman of the Instruction Committee; Richard Murphy, chairman of the Legislative Committee; Dr. D. C. Todd and Henry P. Schroeder. Arthur S. Werremeyer told the Post-Dispatch he had an open mind on the question. The other members, Mrs. E. R. Kroeger, Arthur A. Blumeyer, Howard G. Cook and John C. Tobin, could not be reached yesterday.

AMHERST ALUMNI MEETING

Dr. Sterling Power Lamprecht, professor of philosophy at Amherst College, will be guest of honor at the annual meeting of the Amherst Alumni Association of St. Louis at the University Club Tuesday evening. He formerly was a member of the department of philosophy at the University of Illinois.

Officers will be elected and reports of committees received. Present officers of the association are: Wilbur B. Jones, president; D. C. McAllister, first vice president; William H. Burg, second vice president; J. J. Shillington, secretary, and James P. Wilson, treasurer.

PERSONS HELD FOR FELONIES MUST FILL OUT 'ALIBI FORM'

Police Adopt System to Control Practice of Invoking Home-Made Evidence.

Persons arrested on felony charges will be required to fill in an "alibi form," beginning March 1, Chief of Police Gerk stated yesterday.

The form, which will be signed by the prisoner, is designed to refute "home-made" alibis, which are frequently presented in court by relatives of defendants. Four answers are offered the prisoner, who may decline to tell where he was at the time of the crime; may plead guilty, admitting his presence at the scene; plead not guilty, stating that he does not recall where he was at the time in question; or, pleading not guilty, giving details of his whereabouts. The document will be attached to the police report and will accompany the prisoner into court, to be used as evidence in the event he changes his story.

Protest on Auto for Governor.

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 21.—Over protests by several members, the House today approved a $3500 appropriation for purchase of a new automobile for Gov. Harry H. Woodring and a $3500 appropriation for executive mansion repairs and maintenance. Representative Davis (Dem.), Bourbon County, protested one of the items would pay the taxes of "half the washerwomen in my county."

Reward in Search for Jeweler.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—A thousand dollars reward was offered today for a clew to Abraham H. Levy, jeweler, who vanished a week ago between his office and the place where he was to meet his wife, Marie. Levy carried $25,000 worth of diamonds.

SURRENDERS TO POLICE HERE 'BEFORE I DO SOMETHING ELSE'

Woman Says She Is Wanted in Cleveland for Stealing $100 from Maccabees.

A young woman, wearing a fur coat, walked into Police Headquarters yesterday and announced that she wished to surrender, "before I do something else."

Questioned by Capt. Adolph Amrhein, the visitor said she is Valeria Babnik, 18 years old, of Cleveland, O., where she is wanted for stealing $100 from the Ladies of the Maccabees. She said she was treasurer of the lodge and took the money last September.

Going to Chicago, she obtained employment at the home of Mrs. Arthur Gareiss, 9339 Longwood drive, she said. Several weeks ago, she said, she stole her employer's fur coat and several articles of jewelry, selling the jewelry. "I arrived here a week ago and after my money was exhausted I thought I had better surrender before I stole something else," she explained.

RETAIL HARDWARE MEN WILL MEET THIS WEEK

State Association to Begin 33rd Annual Convention Tuesday.

The Missouri Retail Hardware Dealers' Association will hold its thirty-third annual convention Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at Hotel Jefferson. Hardware dealers from Missouri and other states who purchase supplies in the St. Louis market are expected to attend.

"Team Work in Hardware Merchadising" will be the general topic of the convention. Distribution methods will be discussed the first day, management systems the second day, and sales promotion methods on Wednesday.

Speakers will include Rivers Peterson, editor of the Hardware Retailer, representing the National Retail Hardware Dealers' Association, and Ben Gude, E. L. Candrall, Frank Clark, E. L. Johnson and F. X. Becherer, secretary of the association, all of St. Louis.

FOUR REPUBLICAN ALDERMEN FILE FOR RENOMINATION

Frank L. Wetzel, Alfred Bergmann, George Meisinger and Edward Hirth Are Candidates.

Four Aldermen filed yesterday and Friday for renomination on the Republican ticket in the primaries to be held March 13.

They are Frank L. Wetzel of the Sixteenth Ward, a master plumber, 3334 Vista avenue; Alfred Bergmann of the Eighteenth Ward, a grocer, 2122 Madison street; George Meisinger of the Tenth Ward, department manager of a stove company, 3337 Illinois avenue, and Edward Hirth of the Eighth Ward, a team owner, 2000 South Second street. Hirth was indorsed Wednesday by the Eighth Ward Regular Republican Association.

ENRIGHT AV. EXTENSION URGED ON ALDERMEN

Opening Between Walton and Kingshighway Proposed to Relieve Delmar Traffic.

An appropriation bill for $217,748 to extend Enright avenue for four blocks, between Walton avenue and Kingshighway, to give a valuable traffic relief for Delmar boulevard, was introduced in the Board of Aldermen Friday. It provides also for a cutoff at the jog in Enright at Taylor avenue. The city's share of the cost, from bond issue funds, is placed at $97,573.47.

Another appropriation bill introduced, for $130,501.90, calls for widening Sheridan avenue, from the intersection with Jefferson and Cass avenues to the intersection with Easton avenue and Page boulevard. This would make a new traffic artery between Page and Cass. An improvement of the southeast corner of Jefferson and Cass also is involved. The city's share, to be met with bond money, is $29,026.66.

Delicatessen Bill Passed.

The board passed the ordinance defining what delicatessens may sell on Sundays, in accordance with a recent Circuit Court decision that foodstuffs requiring additional preparation, such as those grocers and butchers sell, may not be dispensed on Sunday but things suitable for consumption without further treatment may be sold.

An ordinance to refund to the property owners assessed for the new playground bounded by Norfolk, Vista, Tower Grove and Newstead avenues the $69,601.14 they paid in benefits also was passed. The Comptroller's office will make the refunds in full upon presentation of the city receipts for payment.

At the request of the Department of Public Safety, a bill was introduced to require those who fumigate any premises with any substance producing poisonous gas or vapor to obtain permits from the department at least four hours in advance. They would have to describe the place and the chemicals to be used on the applications. Fumigators would have to place on the entrance of the premises signs saying "Poisonous Gas" in 3-inch red letters. The Health Division would be exempted from this law. Violation would be punishable by a fine of $25 to $500 or a workhouse sentence of 10 days to a year.

Would Change Skinker Zoning.

President Neun introduced a bill to change the zoning of the east side of Skinker boulevard, between the alley north of Kingsbury avenue and the alley south of Delmar boulevard from commercial district to residential district. He acted for residents of the vicinity who wish to avoid having more filling stations on Skinker. A similar change in the zoning of the two east corners of Kingsbury and Skinker was made and an effort to set it aside to permit filling stations there is pending in the courts.

The Aldermen voted to defer for two weeks final action on three measures. These are the repeal of a condemnation ordinance for a Negro playground in the blocks bounded by Vandeventer and Finney avenues and Sarah street and West Belle place; an amendment to the North Twelfth boulevard condemnation, changing the plan between Washington and Lucas avenues, and the proposal to widen Washington boulevard by setting back the curbs between Vandeventer avenue and Kingshighway. The City Plan Commission, favoring the playground, sought the first action. Chairman Fett of the Aldermanic Streets Committee requested the second so the Illinois Terminal System and Mississippi Valley Trust Co. can be heard and Alderman Brock moved for the third.

ALDERMAN SAID TO LIVE OUT OF CITY VOTES IN 20TH WARD

Schwartz Registers in 24th Precinct, Declaring He Moved from the Fourth.

Alderman Schwartz of the Twentieth Ward, who, it has been charged by one of his opponents for the Republican nomition to succeed himself, resides in University City, registered as a voter in Thursday's intermediate registration in the twenty-fourth precinct of the Twentieth Ward. He had given his residence previously as 3816A St. Louis avenue, in the fourth precinct of that ward. He explained that he had moved last November to 4434 Evans avenue, from which address he registered Thursday.

His opponent, Charles J. Eisenring, president of the Building Trades Council, asserts that Schwartz really makes his home at 7204 Westmoreland drive, University City, where Mrs. Schwartz resides. Schwartz, talking to reporters yesterday, insisted that he was "bacheloring" at the Evans avenue flat.

Schwartz said he would file his candidacy for renomination if he obtained the indorsement of the ward's precinct organization. Deputy Coroner Hurley, Republican committeeman of the ward, who has not always been friendly politically with Schwartz, said the precinct workers would consider their indorsement this week.

RAIN AND SNOW RELIEVE DROUTH IN THE SOUTHWEST

Parts of Western Kansas and Oklahoma Soaked; Extensive Precipitation Predicted.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 21.—Rain, which in places turned to snow, was sweeping across the Southwest today, bringing the first moisture in weeks to some drouth-threatened areas and offering a promise of relief to others.

Weather forecasts indicated the rains which soaked portions of the winter wheat areas of Western Kansas and Oklahoma would continue or spread to Eastern Kansas, Texas, Eastern Missouri, Western Iowa, Nebraska, Western Louisiana, Arkansas, Kentucky and Tennessee.

The rain turned to snow at Goodland, Kan., today, creating a condition which wheat raisers described as ideal for their crops. Snow was reported along the Kansas - Colorado line. The rainfall was the first measurable precipitation in parts of Southwest Kansas since early winter. This area, with Western Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle, was not generally visited by the previous rains in the Southwest and Lower Mississippi Valley during February.

SEEKS ACTION ON I. C. C. CONTROL OF HOLDING CONCERNS

Congressman Parker Wants Vote This Session on Measure Based on Railway Report.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Chairman Parker of the House Commerce Committee today followed introduction of a resolution to put the Interstate Commerce Commission in control of railroad holding companies with the announcement he would seek its passage at this session.

Parker said he expected quick approval in committee. That it can be passed at this session seems problematical.

The Senate Interstate Commerce Committee approved a resolution for a study of all forms of interstate transportation with particular reference to competition with railroads.

The Parker resolution is expected to have little sympathy among powerful railroads groups, but they have complained frequently of late of increasing competition on the part of motor vehicles and barge lines.

Demands have been made for interstate commerce commission regulation of automobile carriers and protests against government aid to the Federal barge lines have been expressed.

The resolution Parker introduced carried out a suggestion he made yesterday in announcing the result of his committee's study of railroad ownership.

The findings were summarized by the statement that 14 railroad groups controlled 210,000 miles of the 260,000 mileage of first-class roads.

Two of the largest of these groups, the Van Sweringens and the Pennsylvania system, used holding companies in their expansion, the report said.

The Allegheny Corporation was described as the principal holding corporation of the Van Sweringens, while the Pennsylvania used its affiliate, the Pennroad Corporation, the report asserted to increase its extensive holdings.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has unofficially before it a proposal to consolidate Eastern lines into four systems.

COSMIC RELIGION

By Prof. Albert Einstein

"A contemporary has rightly said that the only deeply religious people of our largely materialistic age are the earnest men of research. EINSTEIN."

(Copyright, 1931.)

EVERYTHING that men do or think concerns the satisfaction of the needs they feel or the escape from pain. This must be kept in mind when we seek to understand spiritual or intellectual movements and the way in which they develop. For feeling and longing are the motive forces of all human striving and productivity—however nobly these latter may display themselves to us.

What, then, are the feelings and the needs which have brought mankind to religious thought and to faith in the widest sense? A moment's consideration shows that the most varied emotions stand at the cradle of religious thought and experience.

In primitive people it is, first of all, fear that awakens religious ideas—fear of hunger, of wild animals, of illness, and of death. Since the understanding of casual connections is usually limited on this level of existence, the human soul in ages past forged a being, more or less like itself, on whose will and activities depended the experiences which it feared. One hoped to win the favor of this being by deeds and sacrifices, which, according to the tradition of the race, were supposed to appease the being or to make him well disposed to man. I call this the religion of fear.

Religion and Early Despots.

This religion was considerably stabilized—though not caused—by the formation of a priestly caste which claimed to mediate between the people and the being they feared, and so attained a position of power. Often a leader or despot, or a privileged class whose power was maintained in other ways, combined the function of the priesthood with its own temporal rule for the sake of great security; or an alliance may have existed between the interests of the political power and the priestly caste.

A second source of religious development is found in the social feelings.

Fathers and mothers, as well as leaders of great human communities, are fallible and mortal. The longing for guidance, for love and succor, provides the stimulus for the growth of a social or moral conception of God. This is the God of Providence, who protects, decides, rewards, and punishes. This is the God who, according to man's widening horizon, loves and provides for the life of the race, or of mankind, or who even loves life itself. He is the comforter in unhappiness and in unsatisfied longing, the protector of the souls of the dead. This is the social or moral idea of God.

It is easy to follow in the sacred writings of the Jewish people the development of the religion of fear into the moral religion, which is carried further in the New Testament. The religions of all the civilized peoples, especially those of the Orient, are principally moral religions.

Morals as a Basis.

An important advance in the life of a people is the transformation of the religion of fear into the moral religion. But one must avoid the prejudice that regards the religions of primitive peoples as pure fear religions and those of the civilized races as pure moral religions. All are mixed forms, though the moral element predominates in the higher levels of social life. Common to all these types is the anthropomorphic character of the idea of God.

Only exceptionally gifted individuals or especially noble communities rise essentially above this level; in these there is found a third level of religious experience, even if it is seldom found in a pure form. I will call it the cosmic religious sense. This is hard to make clear to those who do not experience it, since it does not involve an anthropomorphic idea of God; the individual feels the vanity of human desires and aims, and the nobility and marvelous order which are revealed in nature and in the world of thought. He feels the individual destiny as an imprisonment and seeks to experience the totality of existence as a unity full of significance. Indications of this cosmic religious sense can be found even on earlier levels of development—for example, in the "Psalms of David" and in the "Prophets." The cosmic element is much stronger in Buddhism, as, in particular, Schopenhauer's magnificent essays have shown us.

What Daily Life Will Be Like in Submarine As It Plows Beneath Arctic Ice to the North Pole

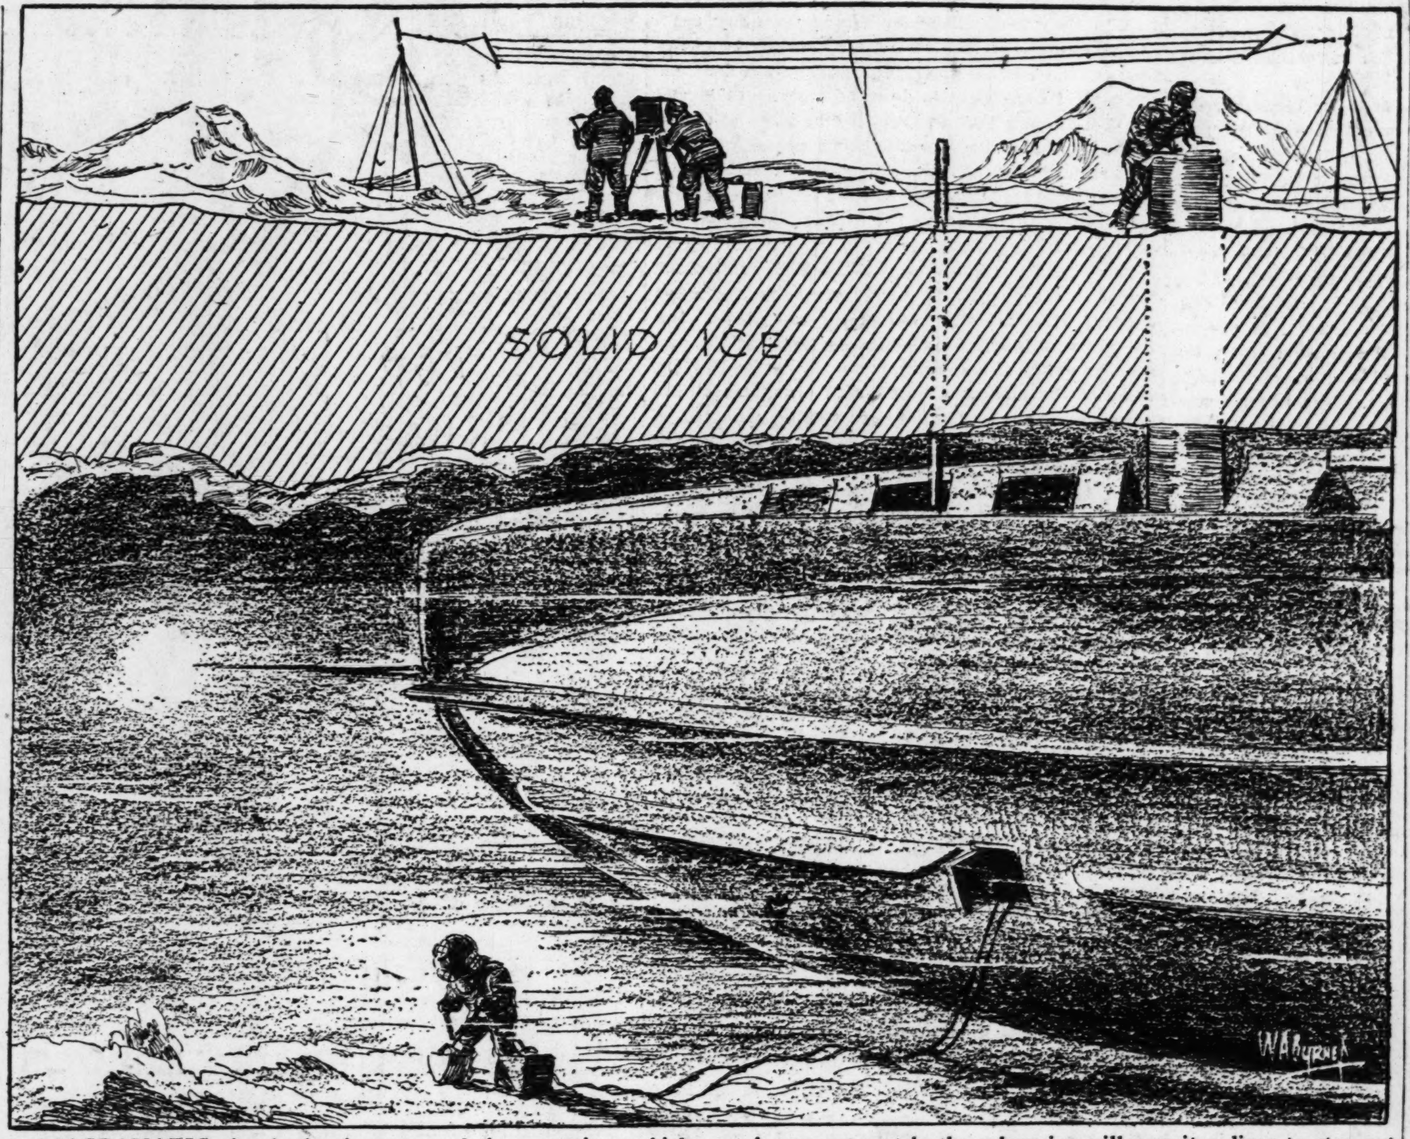
By SIR HUBERT WILKINS

Commander of Undersea Exploration Trip Tells What His Men Will Do to Discover Secrets of Nature Hitherto Hidden From the World—Long Range Weather Forecasts, With Accurate Predictions of Flood or Drouth, a Possibility.

By Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins

Commander of the Wilkins-Ellsworth Trans-Arctic Submarine Expedition Which Will Go From Spitzbergen Under the Arctic Ice to Alaska by Way of the North Pole During the Coming Summer.

Copyright, 1931. Reproduction prohibited in whole or in part.



A DIAGRAMATIC sketch showing some of the operations which can be carried on by the Wilkins submarine when it is under ice and in shallow water. One drill boring upwards, can penetrate ice even 20 feet thick. Another drill is hollow and two feet in diameter, so members of crew can climb up and out upon the ice for various observations with instruments. Portable radio masts and antennae will afford wireless communication.

A compartment in the submarine will permit a diver to step out on the ocean's bed, where the depth is not too great, for an inspection of the hitherto unexplored bottom of Arctic waters. A 5000-watt electric lamp is carried on a long boom extending from the submarine's nose. Guards, like runners on a sled, protect the upper part of the hull from coming in violent contact with ice when traveling through the water submerged.

THE 3000-mile under-ice journey in the submarine Nautilus which we expect to carry out during next July and August has been rated a crazy idea.

But, astonishing as it may seem, men of experience believe it probably will be less dangerous than trips I have made in planes over the North and South polar regions. In the submarine we will have provision for safety and food for emergency to an extent that could not be carried by other means.

First we shall cross the Atlantic, calling at the Azores for fuel and fresh food. We will travel more or less as a surface vessel and at about 10 or 11 knots.

It might take the submarine 14 days to reach London. We will nose up the Thames in as strange a craft as ever disturbed those historic waters.

Tying up to the embankment, we will take on scientific equipment which is being supplied by English laboratories.

This will include a strange device in the nature of a mechanical fish. It has a long body and a gill-like mouth, through which will pass a continuous stream of Arctic water. As it passes, this water will be filtered through a revolving sheet of muslin.

Microscopic Life.

This muslin band will unfold and collect the myriads of small sea life, both animal and vegetable, and pass it, together with the muslin, through a preserving solution.

It will then be rolled on a spool, much as a photographic film is rolled in a camera.

Later, scientists will unroll that precious record and have before them a complete cross-section of the minute life of the Arctic Ocean.

To obtain such a record has never been possible before. It is possible now only by using a submarine.

Another addition to be made in London is a special attachment for our gyro compass. With this and tables we can use the gyro at the North Pole and make valuable scientific experiments.

The gyro will be freed from the governors which ordinarily make it point to the geographical north, and then, by setting it in a known direction, we can spin it and work back in our observations to the Pole itself.

Leaving London, we shall head into the North Sea, facing perhaps our greatest danger, that of collision. The North Sea is treacherous—foggy and cold. Traffic is heavy, but we will be operating as a surface boat, keeping a keen lookout, and expect to cruise safely into the picturesque bay at Bergen, Norway.

At Bergen we shall be joined by the chief of our scientific staff, Dr. H. U. Sverdrup, and his principal aids. These will be Dr. Bernhard Villinger, chemist, physicist and surgeon, and an observer detailed by the Department of Terrestrial Magnetism, Carnegie Institution of Washington.

Sand From Sea's Bottom.

These men already are assembling and testing the equipment which will enable them to bare the secrets of the Arctic sea.

They will pierce its bottom with long, hollow tubes and bring up sections of deposit that might have taken millions of years to build.

They will study temperatures and expose the peculiar combinations of water samples taken.

They will measure the forces exerted on the magnetic needle, both horizontal and vertical, and we will probably pass at a point so near the magnetic pole that the compass will stand at a 45 degree angle.

Aboard the submarine at Bergen will be placed a machine which by means of three pendulums—each swinging in a different axis—will tell us the special gravity of the earth's crust at the point above which we are. It will record with accuracy, even while we are under way, the slightest tremor from earthquake or other earth movement.

Each swing of each pendulum will be reflected through eight prisms, reflecting the light this way and that until the swings of all three are photographed side by side on a sensitive paper, which, when developed, will preserve for all time a continuous record of the behavior of the earth's crust at the top of the world.

At Bergen the vessel should be completely equipped and manned. We shall then proceed north, through picturesque fiords and channels, heading for ice-covered seas.

Last Contact With Land.

North of Norway we shall pause to bare our heads, and in silent prayer we shall honor the memory of that great hero and adventurer, the gallant Roald Amundsen, who, with Lincoln Ellsworth, carried out the first trans-Arctic journey in an entirely new vehicle.

In the Norge they flew on a course similar to that we will take. Our experiences, of course, will be totally different. They flew in the moisture-laden, cloudy atmosphere; we shall "swim" through the ice-infested seas.

We shall probably meet scattered ice on our way to Spitzbergen, but little difficulty is expected until we reach Green Harbor and attempt to enter Ice Fiord and Advent Bay.

At Advent Bay is a coal mine operated by hardy Norwegians, and upon whose hospitality we shall depend. Near their boats we shall take on the last of our supplies.

Advent Bay is about 100 miles south of the north end of Spitzbergen. We shall probably follow the coast north to the end of that island and then swing toward Greenland.

In the Greenland Strait we expect to gather important data on the inflow and outflow of water between the Atlantic and Arctic Oceans. No surface vessel has been able to make the journey straight across through the ice. We shall have to do it in a series of porpoise-like dives.

The end of Spitzbergen and the north coast of Greenland are literally alive with strange sea birds, auks and puffins and loons and all sorts of grotesque feathered creatures rarely seen except in museum cases.

Next, for the Pole!

The area off shore northeast of Greenland is not known. We may find new islands in that vicinity. They will not be large and will be of no great importance except that their discovery will bring us that much nearer to the end of the possibilities for discovering new land on this earth.

From the northeast corner of Greenland we shall head out for the great adventure—straight for the North Pole.

If things have gone well so far there should be no difficulty in reaching the Pole.

The ice between the Pole and Greenland is not particularly heavy. Peary found it criss-crossed with leads. But it will not make much difference to us if it is scattered or solid, for we will travel beneath it.

From Greenland on, we will not enter any trials of strength with the ice. No force controlled by man could contend with the frozen masses. We shall treat it with respect by keeping well out of its way, tickling its under side only with our long, fin-like guide arm and nipping into it only once daily when we need to come to the surface for air and to make our scientific observations.

Crawling slowly beneath the ice will be as mysterious a method of investigation as any that has ever thrilled a reader of detective tales.

Weird, pale blue lights will filter through our fused quartz window, recording their exact strength and quality as they penetrate.

A photo-electric cell instrument, slung beneath the crystals, will give us a continuous record of the ice conditions. This will be checked with the depth indicators and the erratic movement of our trailing fin as it follows the exact contour of the ice.

Ocean's Depth by Echo.

Simultaneously, we will be recording the depths of the ocean. Six times a minute a signal operated by electricity will reach the bottom, to echo back and record the depth on our chart.

An observer, or perhaps two, will remain with their eyes glued to the eye-piece of the submarine, noting and recording all those things too great or too elusive to be caught in the net of the continuous recorder of Plankton (minute animal life).

For 16 hours we will proceed slowly. Then our batteries will be about half discharged; we will have covered perhaps more than 50 miles, allowing some loss of distance for currents and wanderings off course.

Perhaps we shall have seen numerous leads of open water and lanes in the ice. Undoubtedly we shall find much ice that is honeycombed, as fresh water, created as the rays of the sun strike and melt the ice surface, cuts into the floe. We probably can take advantage of that condition by ejecting our retractable conning tower through a hole without having to drill through the ice.

The ice, we expect, will be 2 to 20 feet thick. I can imagine the astonished stare of a basking seal atop the ice when he sees our round, red, hollow, tongue-like drill pop out of the ice.

Through this hollow drill will emerge the scientists who work on the surface — the magnetician meteorologist and photographers.

Theirs will be perhaps the most disagreeable tasks, since they will be exposed to the elements and will suffer from cold if the temperature is low.

Daily Tasks Outlined.

The others, in the submarine, by opening the door in the airtight diving compartment can carry out their deep-sea work through the bottom of the boat.

At the same time, the engineers and the electricians will be busy. The two 500-horsepower engines will be started and the batteries will be charged. The wireless operators will carry out their portable antennae and erect them upon the ice. Then, while the messages are leaving the aerial on top, the instruments and the men will be in the vessel below.

The cook will have his hands full. The Arctic temperatures encourage great appetites. Men standing watch in the diving compartment, on the ice and in the engine rooms all want hot coffee and doughnuts between meals, and, running the ship in what sailors call "watch and watch"—that is, two groups each taking turn and turn about—means a constant watch in the kitchen.

And so the routine will go on day after day. We expect excitement occasionally when a polar bear wanders too near the tent of the magnetician.

He must set up his instruments far from the ship to escape the influence of our motors, and he may find himself separated one day from the ship by a crack in the ice, for the ice is sure to be cracking and crushing.

We should run great risk if we found ourselves between two pieces of grinding and crushing ice, and the utmost viligance will be necessary to keep all hands in a position to embark at a moment's notice, so that we can submerge and escape from the maw of the ruthless ice-monster.

It will not be an easy task. Tension will run high for two months at least. There will be care-worn faces at the end of our under-ice journey. We will be tired and sleepy-eyed, I am sure.

But we hope we shall have with us at the end of the journey records which will make the effort and the bearing of hardships worth while.

Why They Are Going.

In a previous article I outlined 20 specific objects the expedition has in mind. Some of these are of academic interest, others of direct economic value.

Underlying all my work in polar areas is a definite urge.

What has prompted me to interest myself in these frigid regions?

Some say it is the reincarnation of the spirit of an ancestor of mine who, between 1623 and 1640, wrote volumes about possible scientific developments. He suggested, for instance, that a study of meteorological conditions at the ends of the earth might enlighten us on the mechanics of the air and enable scientists to forecast the weather.

He said that it might be possible to build vessels which could go under as well as over the sea. He said, with such a vessel it would be possible to make a journey to the North Pole.

But it was not this ancestor, John Wilkins, Bishop of Chester, who consciously drew to my attention the need for polar research.

Years ago, in Australia, where my father and grandfather were pioneers, a drouth occurred. I was at an impressionable age and one of my earliest recollections is of caring for thousands of sheep and horses that were dying of starvation and thirst.

Stock breeders and farmers, caught unawares and having failed to make provision for disposal of stock or husbanding of foods, were ruined.

I watched thousands of animals with glazed eyes, parched tongues and shrunken bodies die in the misery of thirst and hunger. Our job was to assist these animals and to remove the hides of those beyond aid.

I have sat on a horse-drawn harvester for 12 hours to strip from weazened crops a few bush-

Chicago's Brawling Primary Of Buffoonery, Bitter Taunts, Vulgar Wit, and Personalities

Post-Dispatch Staff Writer at Political Meetings in Closing Days of Mayoralty Campaign—Three Vociferous Candidates and Three Varieties of Appeals to Voters.

By E. ROY ALEXANDER.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.

IN an unprecedented orgy of political tub-thumping and pail-pounding, of unbridled speech and unashamed appeal to the voters' passions, Chicago's primary campaign to select candidates for Mayor is drawing to a blatant but distressing close.

The nation has never seen the like before. The second city of the nation has out-Chicagoed Chicago. Not even in 1919, when "Big Bill" Thompson was elected Mayor on a platform of freedom for Ireland and "a bust in the snoot for King George," has the homeland of "Scarface Al" Capone seen such a demonstration of political license as the 1931 Republican primary campaign has brought forth.

Speeches that reek with vulgarity and Billingsgate have been made by two of the principal contestants in the Republican primary, while a third has been only a jump or two behind them. William Hale Thompson, incumbent and candidate for a fourth term, has paraded a circus of animals—a horse, a mule, a burro, or jackass as he prefers to call it, an elephant and a camel—through Chicago's "loop" streets as a telling argument against his opponents.

Into his offices on the fifth floor of the city hall, Mayor Thompson has led his burro, imported from New Mexico to illustrate the Mayor's contention that one of his opponents is a "dum' jackass."

And in the august council chamber of this city of more than 3,000,000 inhabitants, a circus cowboy and cowgirl, garbed in glittering white Western costumes, have ridden, horseback, to present Mayor Thompson with a two-gallon hat and wish him luck in his race. "Big Bill" himself has made his political speeches with a halter in his hand—the halter, he says, that his opponents are wearing.

Halters and Machine Guns.

Not to be out-moded, Municipal Judge Charles Homer Lyle, self-styled foe of the gangsters and hoodlums that have made Chicago famous, addresses his audiences surrounded by a lethal display of sawed-off shotguns, murderous "belly-guns" and machine guns of several makes.

These he uses to illustrate his claim that when and if he is elected the gangster will be driven from Chicago. Possibly the Chicago voter is able to comprehend this point in logic.

The third major candidate, Arthur F. Albert, 32-year-old Chicago Alderman, has confined himself to bitter words in fighting back at Thompson and Judge Lyle. He has not availed himself of a traveling circus or a display of ordnance, and his only extravagances, off the speaking platform, have been brass bands and a tally-ho of young women who tour the "loop" at noontime whooping things up for him.

These are some of the surface manifestations upon which the Chicago citizen may base his vote when he goes to the polls Tuesday to help choose the city's chief executive. But he will have other material to aid him in his selection.

There is, for example, the vicious whispering campaign. One of the candidates is charged with allowing his father to die a public charge. To all of them are imputed various forms of dishonesty. One of them is charged with being the victim of an unmentionable neurosis and circulators of the rumor offer affidavits and photographs in support of their statements.

Thus do slander and the worst forms of villification run hand in hand with the blatant street and platform displays, as Chicago exercises the highest privilege of democracy. Issues, if there ever were any, have long since been forgotten in the flag waving, the jug beating and the general cry of "thief! liar! scoundrel!"

Police for Ushers.

Long has the big bulk of William Hale Thompson loomed large on the political stage of Chicago. Inevitable it is that any campaign in which he participates is certain to be packed with novelty, with cheap sensationalism. It is probably the addition of Judge Lyle, with his adoption of Thompson tactics, that has forced "Big Bill" to outdo himself in the present campaign.

A Thompson rally attended by the correspondent was typical of the campaign waged by "Big Bill" and of its issues as they are presented to the voter.

The scene is the Fenger High School, a huge and splendid monument to education at 110th and Wallace streets, far down on the South Side. In its auditorium are crowded 2000 persons, gathered by the ward organization and anxious, or at least willing, to shout for and listen to "Big Bill, the Builder."

As the reporter is driven up to the auditorium—in a police limousine with wailing siren—he sees a group of uniformed policemen on the sidewalk. They open the automobile door. Their Thompson-for-Mayor badges shine beside their official stars. They direct the visitor to a seat in the hall.

A fat man with a brimless hat—apparently a professional entertainer—is regaling the crowd from the stage. "Big Bill" has not arrived. On the platform sit the usual group of political followers, uneasy at the gaze of the audience. Women are conspicuously absent from this group, in fact, seem to play little part in this political drama.

Vaudeville, Not Issues.

The entertainer is telling a story of a man with lockjaw who became seasick. "I'm forever blowing bubbles," he concludes, and this block of Chicago's electorate rocks with laughter. He recites a limerick about Mary McFuss, "who was kissed in the dark by a Greyhound bus." More laughter while the prospective speakers on the stage wonder when the fat man will finish.

At the left of the stage is a big linen sign. In red and blue letters it calls for the renomination of William Hale Thompson. In Chicago even the schools are fair battleground for the administration candidate. And the police force is a fair battle weapon. If you don't believe it, see what is happening on the stage.

The police quartet — Detective Edward Galbraith, accompanist — is giving a song, "When It's Springtime in the Rockies." The only Sergeant in the uniformed group — singing first bass — gets all the solos, which is fair enough, since he ranks the three patrolmen with him.

A minor speaker follows. The crowd gets restless. "The Mayor will be here in a few minutes," he concludes, and sits down. Another entertainer, dressed in Pierrot garb, plays an accordion for the crowd. A singing leader comes on the stage, tries to get the crowd to sing "My Wild Irish Rose"—a nice gesture; there are Irish in the audience—and "School Days." He is fairly successful.

A boy soprano, accompanied by the accordion player, sings "Somewhere in Old Wyoming." The crowd applauds. The reception committee, in the wings, cracks its thumbs joints, wonders what could have happened to the Mayor. Another speaker tells the crowd, "The Mayor will be here any minute now."

Enter "Big Bill."

It is growing late, almost 11 o'clock. As another speaker begins the crowd becomes restless. A few leave, their places are quickly taken by some of the crowd which has been listening to the program from the street by means of loud speakers.

A wail of police sirens outside announces the approach of the Mayor. Instantly the crowd is in a hubbub, through which the speaker continues. Finally, amid much scuffling of feet, the door at the back of the hall is opened. A bugle sounds "Attention."

Through the door marches a man in the uniform of a private, first class, in the Marine Corps. After him comes a man in a sailor's uniform, with a bugle in his hand. The army is not represented. They are half way down the aisle when another figure comes through the door—"Big Bill" himself.

Tall, heavy, still bearing a faint mark of his early life on the cattle range, he strides down the aisle, bowing and waving. His fourdent, mouse-colored Stetson he carries in a huge paw. His blue serge coat is thrown open, disclosing an expanse of whiteshirt and a bright red tie. In his left hand he carries a white handkerchief and between waves at the audience he mops his brow and thinning gray hair. He wears no overcoat.

At the front row he pauses a moment to shake hands with three children. His undeniably infectious smile grows broader. With a final

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Missouri's Game and Fish Problem.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WITH reference to your timely and logical suggestions as to the protection of the wild life of the Missouri Ozarks region, it is my opinion that the solution of the problem confronting us at this time is for the Missouri State Game and Fish Department to concentrate on the preservation and conservation of game and fish in those sections of the State in which game and fish are most plentiful. In other words, make those sections of Missouri that are naturally suitable for game and fish the big project of the development.

The secret of the preservation of the real fish and game country of the Ozarks is more deputies. They have the State split up about equally with wardens, from the best information I can get, hence they have just as many wardens in the non-game sections of Missouri as they have in the game sections. For example, they have one warden for Butler, Stoddard and Ripley counties. In my opinion, either Butler or Ripley County is just a great big job for one warden and they should have two patrolling the bass streams at all times. Practically every Ozark county should have one deputy that is on the job at all times. He should be a man thoroughly familiar with the natives of this section of the country and one who has a lot of knowledge of game preservation and conservation.

Outside of the warden question comes the restocking of the Ozarks with game fish. We keep on the job down here all the time getting in fish, but the small amount that comes in will not nearly fill the requirements of Current River, and I'm sure the other Ozark streams are in the same predicament. If Missouri is to come into her own in a game and fish way and cash in on visiting fishermen and hunters, tourists certainly must find game and fish when they come in here, and unless we can put them in faster than they can be taken out you know what is going to happen.

Politics, I suppose, compels the department to do a lot of unnecessary things that they as well as we know are wasting time and money, but unless something is done pretty soon in the way of strict game law enforcement and education along the lines of conservation and propagation, all the advertising in the world won't bring "repeaters" into the Ozarks.

ALBERT D. SHEPPARD,
Secretary, Missouri Ozarks Chamber of Commerce.

Our Bequests to Posterity.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN view of the fact that we made the world so safe for democracy (or was it hypocrisy?) and won the war to end wars, any demands in the way of compensation should be gladly met.

According to the "greatest Secretary of the Treasury since Hamilton," the public debt has been reduced by about one-fourth in the past 10 years. At this rate the total amount will be wiped out in about 40 years, providing, of course, tax refunds to corporations continue at no greater rate than at present.

The coming generation should consider itself fortunate to be permitted to share in paying this debt, for shall it not be the recipient of the benefits of the late war and the experiences of this age? A warless world and one safe for democracy. The Kellogg peace pact and numerous devices for wholesale human destruction. A "noble experiment" and its fruits. A public debt, a rhapsody in blue by Wall street and, last but not least, the Wickersham report—all these things and many more—cheap at half the price.

War Costs and Profits.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

RECENTLY a report issued by Secretary Mellon gave figures on the money cost of wars, including pensions, interest on public debt and other obligations.

He listed the Spanish-American War activities as costing $568,700,000; interest on public debt, $102,300,000; pensions, $475,000,000, a total of $1,146,000,000 up to June 30, 1930. Undoubtedly these figures are correct. But when giving out figures intended to influence the public, there ought also be attached an account of the benefits derived from such expenditures. Mr. Mellon would be willing to invest $1,000,000 any time in a trust company if he could get $10,000,000 in return. If he did get that much in return, would it be fair for him to complain about the investment in order to gain sympathy from the public?

In 1897, Government statistics show, the total importations of the Philippine Islands, Cuba and Porto Rico from the United States amounted to $25,258,346. In 1926 these same possessions imported goods valued at $440,067,812, or an increase of $414,808,866. That is not all the profit we gained through the Spanish-American War. The tariff, investments of American capital and other factors have probably doubled this amount.

It would be interesting to have Mr. Mellon give exact figures on the profit in total brought to the United States as a result of the Spanish-American War, also figures showing what America has gained from the World War (if any).

PASS THE WAGNER BILL.

The Secretary of Labor has announced his opposition to the Wagner bill, which would create a system of free public employment offices. While he is in sympathy with the purpose of the measure he feels that "the means suggested to effectuate the desired result are not practically calculated to obtain it." So he has presented a substitute plan of his own, which the House Judiciary Committee has approved.

The two projects differ in important particulars. The Wagner bill would encourage states to set up their own employment exchanges, which would be conducted by the state officials under Federal supervision. The Doak plan calls for the establishment within the states of Federal offices with Federal operation. The Wagner bill would stimulate the development of state systems by extending Federal aid to states whose systems come up to Federal standards, matching their appropriations dollar for dollar. The Doak plan would attempt to get state co-operation by volunteering informal advice. Federal and state governments are now spending less than $1,000,000 a year on free employment exchanges. The Wagner plan would eventually increase this expenditure to $7,000,000. The Doak project would increase it to $2,500,000, not much more than a third of the Wagner provision.

There can be little question that the Wagner method would be by far the more effective of the two. Why, then, should the Secretary of Labor oppose it? Because, says Mr. Doak, it threatens "an improper centralization of Federal bureaucratic control over the states through the seductive influence of Federal aid." But the seductive influence which the Secretary fears is the influence upon which the nation now relies for highway construction, vocational education, vocational rehabilitation, forest fire prevention, flood control, agricultural extension work, the support of the National Guard and of agricultural colleges and experiment stations. The Federal Government is now paying the states more than $150,000,000 a year to support these projects. State officials take the responsibility, formulate the plans, direct the work and spend both the state and Federal money. The Federal Government inspects the work which is being done in order to maintain proper standards.

The plan has awakened state interest and stimulated the expenditure of state funds for these purposes. It has raised the standard of work done in many states without holding any state down to unreasonable standardization. It has given rise to no cries of "Federal bureaucratic control." The Federal aid system, indeed, has proved to be a workable compromise between national needs and local autonomy. It has succeeded wherever it has been tried. There is no reason to suppose that it could not be applied with equal success in the development of a co-ordinated system of employment offices. The Wagner bill has passed the Senate and has been favorably reported to the House. It has the indorsement of scores of business men, economists and labor leaders. The time which remains for its passage is growing short. Secretary Doak can have no hope that his eleventh-hour substitute will be passed before the fourth of March. Its only effect can be to kill Senator Wagner's measure. By introducing it the Secretary has done a great disservice to the group whom he is supposed to represent.

AN AGRICULTURAL PROGRAM FOR THE OZARKS.

Arkansas home demonstration agents have adopted a program for the drouth-stricken regions of the Ozarks which commends itself to every farmer in the afflicted areas, and for that matter to farmers everywhere. The six cardinal points are:

> A home garden sufficient to provide vegetables for home use, preferably with a surplus for the market.
> Can the surplus of home-grown vegetables, fruits and meat.
> Keep a minimum of 30 producing hens.
> Give special care to the home orchard.
> Produce all livestock feed.
> Rush early planting.

With the possible exception of the last point, this is a sound program for every farmer year after year, regardless of current conditions. When the theory of self-sustenance is accepted by all American agriculture, one of the major farm hazards will be eliminated.

A ROYAL EQUILIBRIST.

All of us have seen the circus or vaudeville equilibrist in action. Seated on the topmost of a towering stack of chairs, he sways perilously, first to the right, then to the left, seeming about to crash magnificently with each movement, while the audience holds its breath and the equilibrist nonchalantly juggles nine billiard balls. Europe's royal equilibrist, Alfonso XIII, is just such an acrobat. Seated on the topmost chair, in his case the Spanish throne, he has now regained momentary equilibrium after a few days of breathless balancings to and fro.

Having leaned too far to the right, under Berenguer's military dictatorship, he swung the other way just as his world-wide audience thought the lofty edifice was toppling to its final fall. Teetering just as far to the left, he sought refuge in the efforts of Sanchez Guerra, an enemy of the monarchy, to form a Cabinet. It looked like ruin on the left, with a new Constitution and a Republic waiting to give the final shove. When Sanchez Guerra failed to form his Ministry, Alfonso swung agilely back to the right, where Admiral Aznar balanced the tottering pile by obliging with a reactionary Cabinet.

Now, for a moment, the royal acrobat is sitting upright again, busily juggling his political parties, but soon there will be more of that nervous swaying back and forth. And when the final collapse comes, his will be the problem of the stage equilibrist—to alight on his feet.

PINOCHLE POLITICS.

Crossville (pop. 574 in 1910, 558 in 1920) on the Big Four, over in White County, Ill., where boydom learns to swim in the Little Wabash, is taking a new lease on life, thanks to village politics. This year there are three full tickets in the field and information from our alert correspondent is that each will wage a whirlwind campaign lasting until election eve in April. With rivalry keen and party lines unsteady the inference is that there are already cases of father against son and bread winner against bread cutter. Although we haven't followed Crossville politics closely in late years, our judgment is that when all the votes are counted and the ballots are folded and tied neither the candidates of the Citizens' party nor of the People's party will find themselves in office. Frankly, our money is on the Pinochle party—from the top of the ticket, George Brewer, who wants to be Village President, on down to Harvey Sturms, aspiring to the police magistracy. If the Pinochle party can meld votes with the persistency with which small town players can stay at the business of gathering in tricks, the election is now as good as held. That's our opinion, and we wouldn't change it even if the Citizens' party renamed itself the Bridge party and the People's party was known to have the support of all Crossville's poker players.

DOING SOMETHING FOR SILVER.

After much advance publicity by its chairman, Senator Pittman of Nevada, the Senate subcommittee which has been investigating our trade relations with China has made an interim report. Its conclusions are that the decline in our trade with China, as well as with India and much of South and Central America, is to be blamed largely on the reduced purchasing power of those countries as a result of the fall in the price of silver, and that this trade decline has been a major cause of world depression. It attributes the fall in silver to large sales by the Indian Government and to a lesser extent to a reduction in the use of silver for coinage in other countries. Accordingly the committee presents two resolutions, one asking President Hoover to call an international conference to do something about it, and the other asking that a silver loan be made to China.

The report of Senator Pittman's committee rests on a childish idea of international trade, that is, that international trade consists in the exchange of money for goods, rather than in the exchange of goods for goods. During the past year the value of the silver money which circulates in China has fallen one-half, therefore the purchasing power of China has fallen one-half, runs the argument of the committee. But the Senators ignore the elementary fact that the purchasing power of a country is not determined by the value of the monetary unit which circulates within the country, but by the value in foreign countries of the products which it exports. For example, the purchasing power of France today, with a 4-cent franc, is not less than the purchasing power of pre-war France, with its 19-cent franc, though, of course, rapid changes in the value of a monetary unit are disturbing to an orderly conduct of trade.

China is not a silver producer. For years the country has been an importer of silver, which it paid for, together with its other imports, by its exports, just as any other country must, and does, pay for its imports. The committee's figures showing that our exports to China declined 27 per cent during the first 11 months of 1930, as compared with the same period in 1929, become much less impressive when a glance at Government reports shows that our exports to all countries have declined 25 per cent and our exports to Canada and Germany 30 per cent during the same period. Furthermore, during this same period, our imports from China declined 36 per cent. In so far as statistics prove anything they indicate that it is our purchasing power, and not China's, that has declined more. Yet we are solidly on the gold standard.

We cannot but wonder whether the real motive back of this move in Congress is not to help the silver producers of Senator Pittman's State, rather than to aid distressed China or to develop the commerce of our country. That the decline in the price of silver has been a disturbing factor in an already disturbed world no one will deny, but the committee's attempt to stand the world depression on the apex of the fall in the price of silver is an interesting illustration of the familiar congressional brand of amateur economics.

THEY KNEW THE WASHINGTONS.

It was after Yorktown. Washington was entertaining the chief English officers at dinner. Rochambeau proposed the first toast, "The United States!"

"The King of France!" responded Washington.

Lord Cornwallis, raising his glass, said "The King!"

"—of England," murmured Washington in an undertone, "and let him stay there forever."

The story is told in the letters to his mother of Gaston Maussion, a French soldier of fortune who made the voyage with Lafayette on the Victorie and fought through the Revolution as a private. A black sheep of an excellent family, he seems to have been a good soldier and a shrewd judge of men. Washington was the great enthusiasm of his life and he never tires of singing the General's praises. He had a low opinion of the Revolutionary army and most of our officers, and his estimate of Lafayette is discriminating, as is his appraisal, too, of Rochambeau.

There are letters, also, from Maussion's wife to the old lady in Paris, a tyrannical dowager apparently, and, years afterward, childish notes of a young daughter to "Revered Grandmother," from the Virginia home. They were translated by Princess Radziwill, who presents them as "describing the life of planters and society people in Philadelphia, New York and the plantations of Virginia," and in the belief that they have "an interest as healthy and pure and sweet as the lavender leaves in which they had been preserved."

Here is history after the bright, reportorial manner of Thucydides, of battles won and lost; good fighting and bad, bravery and cowardice, the dances and dinners, weddings and funerals of colonial times. The book, well worth the hour or two required, is happily titled "They Knew the Washingtons."

OUR MODERN SEVEN WONDERS.

A writer in the Washington Star considers the seven wonders of the ancient world—hanging gardens of Babylon, temple of Diana at Ephesus, statue of Jupiter at Olympia, tomb of King Mausolus, and the rest. These marvels now are "mere history," he concludes, and all have been surpassed by modern ingenuity. The seven wonders of our own age he selects as follows:

> Mississippi flood prevention work, which will cost $325,000,000. The $165,000,000 Boulder Dam. The 200-inch telescope for Mount Wilson Observatory, to cost $6,000,000. Electrified Cascade tunnel system, eight miles long, costing $25,000,000. Skyscrapers of New York, climaxed by the $50,000,000 Empire State Building. The $365,000,000 Panama Canal. New Hudson River Bridge, cost $60,000,000.

Emphasizing costs seems to have been our contribution to wonder making. The ancients experienced wonderment in the thing itself, which is something else.

Depressions and Political Thinking

Stimulation of political thought, resulting in notable reforms, followed the depressions of 1837, 1873 and 1893; Chartist movement in England and Populist uprising here proposed changes then considered radical, but now securely embodied in law; political thought must be dynamic to cope with changing conditions.

In a Letter to the Post-Dispatch Written by Eugene L. Johnson, Associate Professor of English, Missouri School of Mines and Metallurgy, Rolla.

WHAT are to be the results of the present depression in the political thinking of the American people?

The answer to this question has a professional and sporting interest to a large number of persons, but in the fuller meaning of the word political it has an interest which goes to the depths of government and of society itself.

The results of any depression depend upon two factors: Intensity and duration. The reticence of the Federal Government in its dealings with unemployment statistics has left the public uncertain as to the intensity of the present hard times; and the length is a matter for the stock market gambler in the absence of a scientific economic weather bureau. During the last three-quarters of a century in America, hard times and good times have oscillated over a term of four years from peak to peak, the rise being somewhat over two years and the fall somewhat less than two years. The deeper depressions of 1893, 1873 and 1837 lasted about four years each. It may be assumed that the present depression will last long enough to impress itself definitely upon the thoughts and feelings of the American people; and in the light of past events, we may expect a deeper stirring of waters than usual.

Nearly 100 years ago, in 1837, a wave of hard times spread over Europe and America. It was preceded in America by a wave of speculation, and was aggravated by deficiencies in the monetary and banking systems of the country. In England, the Chartist movement, almost a popular uprising, which came with the depression, began with six demands: (1) equal electoral areas; (2) universal suffrage; (3) payment of members of the House of Commons; (4) abolition of property qualifications for members; (5) votes by ballot, and (6) annual elections for Parliament. The object was to bring about better conditions for the workmen by means of the democratization of legislation. The measures were rejected by violence born of fear, and pressed by violence born of desperation. Hay ricks were burned and mobs were charged by soldiers. Better times abated the violence, but after a number of years five of the demands were met, the demand for annual elections being abandoned as useless. These changes wrought a revolution in English politics.

In America, a multiplicity of demands and movements began, less concrete and less violently urged and repressed, but hardly less influential. The election of Harrison and Tyler was not so important as were the beginnings of serious movements for woman suffrage, for the abolition of slavery, for labor organizations and for socialism. Communistic experiments began. Vegetarianism, temperance and prohibition came to the fore. There was ferment in philosophy and theology. Commenting upon the welter of proposals for reform, Emerson in 1844 said, "With this din of opinion and debate, there was a keener scrutiny of institutions and domestic life than any we had known. No doubt there was plentiful vaporing, and cases of backsliding might occur. But from each of these movements emerged a good result."

The depression of 1873 came after another period of wild speculation, this time in Western lands and railroads. In 1874 there was a Democratic landslide, and two years later came the dubious result of the 1876 election. More important, however, was the rural demand for a regulating and price fixing commission to curb the railroads. The farmers departed from their earlier individualism, and wanted to use the Government for protective or paternalistic purposes. They brought forward again the question of the currency in the Greenback movement. To this period belongs the germination of Henry George's "Progress and Poverty," probably the outstanding American contribution to economic thought calling for political action.

The next severe depression came in 1893. From it derived the People's party, born of a handful of reformers in 1891, which swelled to ominous proportions in what was to be the last political stand of the American farmer. Since the Civil War, the prestige of the farmer and planter had passed to the city. There was no Jefferson or Jackson or Calhoun to voice his cause. The demands were: (1) loans on non-perishable agricultural products; (2) a graduated income tax; (3) the popular election of United States Senators, and (4) the initiative and referendum in legislation.

Though the Populists were defeated, these demands were later met in whole or in part. Their demand for the ownership of railroads and telegraphs has been modified in many places into a demand for city ownership of gas, water and light utilities. Their demand for free silver to expand the currency has been satisfied by a greater output of gold and by the Federal Reserve System. The money per capita was $24 in 1896; it rose to $52 in 1920, and during January, 1931, it fell to $37.11. The amount of Populistic thought which went into the Federal Reserve act has not been appraised or admitted. The Populists prepared the ground for the political harvests to be reaped by La Follette, Bryan, Roosevelt and Wilson. Their force became stagnant only in the prosperous days of Harding and Coolidge after the World War.

Two generalizations seem to follow:

1. That depressions create not only discontent, but also speculation which goes to the roots of things, or radicalism;

2. That from this speculation, often violently resisted, come thoughts which later often are modified and adopted into law. It is a commonplace of biology and psychology that many maladjustments stimulate physical and mental efforts to the end that the organism may reach a satisfactory adjustment to its environment. The delay between the proposal and performance is often wasteful, but the delay is often useful in making the proposal practicable.

Efficiency calls for the elimination of as much of this waste of time and effort as is possible. Our political thinking, to keep pace with the changes of science and industry, must be as open to suggestion as are industry and science.

ANTI-BECKER REACTION PREDICTED.

From the Clarksville (Mo.) Sentinel.

NEWS reports emanating from Jefferson City report that certain legislation, the origin of which is credited to Charles U. Becker, Secretary of State, proposes to place the newspapers of the State under the control of the Public Service Commission and designate them as public utilities. Much has been said about the power which Becker has created for himself through the aid of the country press which is the recipient of substantial favors from his hands. We predict that if such a measure is passed and that it is traced to his hands that his aspirations for 1932 are rather vain. Becker may have done a great deal for the country press but the favor has been returned fourfold and the press will not stand for anything that smacks of being a gag law. It will not be the first time that the feeding hand has been bitten.

INERS TO DISCUSS HOSPITAL EXTENSION

ans for extension of the chain Shriner hospitals for crippled dren will be one of the princi- topics for discussion by the ne's national board of trustees its annual meeting in St. Louis, ch 24 to 26. Chief surgeons the Shrine hospitals will meet e at the same time.

The organization now maintains permanent hospitals and five ile units. The St. Louis hos- l opened in 1924 with 110 beds, he central and largest unit in chain. One other unit has 100 and the others have 50 beds . The combined capacity is oximately 3000 patients, three ths being the average period of tment. Treatment is free and e are no distinctions of race, d or color.

he chain was started 10 years when a survey conducted by organization disclosed a total about 50,000 deformed children the United States.

fficials estimate that the orig- total of 50,000 crippled chil- is reduced by about 3000 a r, or at a rate which would re- e some 17 years to complete list. Additions to the number year to year, however, keep total somewhere near the same re. Each of the institutions is filled to capacity and has a ting list.

urther consideration of the ex- ion plans will be taken up by Shrine Imperial Council which meet at Cleveland in July. ther extension will actually be under way this year, however, doubtful because of the expense, each added permanent unit s about $400,000 for construc- and equipment and requires ,000 annually for operation. present outlay for operation of chain is more than $1,000,000 ear.

es have been distinguished by cosmic religious sense, which gnizes neither dogmas nor God de in man's image. Conse- ntly there cannot be a church se chief doctrines are based on cosmic religious experience. It es about, therefore, that pre- ly among the heretics of all we find men who were in- ed by this highest religious ex- ence, often they appeared to r contemporaries as atheists, sometimes also as saints. ed from this angle, men like ocritus, Francis of Assisi, and oza are near to one another.

fficult to Define.

ow can this cosmic religious erience be communicated from to man, if it cannot lead to a nite conception of God or to a ology? It seems to me that the important function of art and ence is to arouse and keep this feeling in those who are ptive.

us we reach an interpretation the relation of science to re- n which is very different from customary view. From the y of history, one is inclined regard religion and science as ncilable antagonists, and this a reason that is very easily . Neither the religion of fear the social-moral religion can e any hold on one who pervad- with the sense of causal law in that happens. A God who ards and punishes is for him hinkable, because man acts in rdance with an inner and outer ssity, and would, in the eyes God, be as little responsible as nanimate object is for the ements which it makes.

cience, in consequence, has been sed of undermining morals— wrongly. The ethical behavior man is better based on sympathy cation, and social relationships, requires no support from re- n. Man's plight would, indeed, ad if he had to be kept in or- through fear of punishment hope of rewards after death. t is, therefore, quite natural the churches in the past ht against science and perse- d its supporters. But, on the r hand, I assert that cosmic re- us experience is the strongest the noblest driving force be- scientific research. No one o does not appreciate the ter- exertions, and above all, the otion without which pioneer ations in scientific thought can- come into being, can judge the ength of the feeling out of which ne such work, turned away as from immediate practical life grow.

What a deep faith in the ration- y of the structure of the world what a longing to understand a small glimpse of the rea- revealed in the world there have been in Kepler and ton to enable them to unravel mechanism of the heavens, in years of lonely work!

Anyone who only knows scien- research in its practical ap- ations may easily come to a interpretation of the state mind of the men who, surround- by skeptical contemporaries, shown the way to kindred ts scattered over all countries all centuries. Only those who dedicated their lives to sim- ends can have a living con- ion of the inspiration which these men the power to re- loyal to their purpose in of countless failures. It is cosmic religious sense which nts this power.

CHICAGO'S BRAWLING PRIMARY

wave of the hat he ascends the stage, is introduced briefly, strides to the microphone and begins to speak.

Verbal Brickbats.

He begins quietly enough. His voice is hoarse from much speaking. It is higher than one would expect from his appearance, almost tenor in quality. He uses better English as far as syntax is concerned, than the average municipal politician, completes his sentences, says, "I shall" when that is what he means. His manner is colloquial, his voice has a trace of friendly warmth in it that makes his audience want to believe him.

His first attack is on the Chicago Tribune, Thompson enemy from time immemorial. The Tribune is backing Judge Lyle. He turns his guns on the Daily News, backer of Albert. He eulogizes the American and Herald-and-Examiner, Hearst papers, for their support.

"Why do visitors to Chicago grab a taxicab at one railroad station, beat it to the next station and get on another train out of town, thankful to God that they haven't been robbed or murdered?" he demands, with a sudden burst of fire. "It's because the Tribune has given Chicago the reputation of being the center of crime in America. And Judge Lyle is carrying on its dirty work. Look at this."

He draws from a folio a photograph of Judge Lyle, posed as he attended a luncheon given by a group of candymakers. The Judge, smiling, is flanked by two murderous looking riot guns.

"Here you are," Thompson continues. "Here's Judge Lyle as he went to eat candy with the candy makers."

"Big Bill's" voice grows higher and hoarser. He waves the photograph in front of the audience.

Fusilade of Epithets.

"Look at it," he cries. "If I ever looked on the face of a chimpanzee, there he is. If you elect this ape you're going to have Robert McCormick (owner of the Trubune) for Mayor. The Tribune and the Daily News have split up now, but they're both fighting me. And I'm going to beat 'em. I've trimmed them together and I can whip them when ther're apart.

"When I was in the hospital after my operation for appendicitis the papers told me how they wanted me to vote on one of the pending ordinances. The doctors had taken away a lot of my insides a few days before, but they left enough with me for me to tell them to go to hell.

"The papers here can't beat me, and they can't buy me, and they can't buck Bill Thompson. I challenge the nutty Judge to say as much."

He wheels quickly toward the speaker's table, snatches for a moment among the papers, comes away with a halter in his hand. He brandishes it at the audience, which is spellbound.

"I challenge the nutty Judge," he goes on. "I dare him to say that if he's elected he won't let McCormick put this dirty halter around Lyle's skinny neck. He's afraid to say it. Why they'll put that halter around his neck, tie it to the Tribune tower, give him a shove and pull his nutty head off.

"And I challenge Little Arthur (Arthur Albert) to say 'The Daily News won't put its halter around my greasy neck.' He won't do it. I've given the same challenge for three weeks. But Bill Thompson will say to you 'The crooked newspaper doesn't live that can put a halter around my neck.'

"When I go out of the city hall I'm going with a smile because I've had a great record. You've got to go some to beat Bill Thompson's record."

Threat to Sail Away.

He tells his audience that he loves the sea, comes from a long line of men who sailed the oceans in clipper ships, is proud of his grandfather who was an officer in Farragut's fleet in the Civil War.

"And now I've got an ocean-going yacht," he continues. "If I have to leave you I'm going on the damnedest yacht ride any Mayor ever took. I'm going to the Mediterranean, up the Amazon, all the other places I've wanted to visit. But if you want me to stay and be your Mayor, say the word and I'll stay."

With surprising fairness in such a campaign, no opponent has chosen to criticise "Big Bill' for his yacht. It is common knowledge to Chicago that Thompson is independently wealthy in his own right, hence the fact that accusations of theft of municipal funds are not thrown at him but always at the political machine that supports him, the contractors who do city work.

Thompson's renunciation of his yacht trip, if the voters want it, however, did give Albert an opportunity for a reply.

"I'm going to hand 'Big Bill' his hat after the general election next April," he told a downtown audience at a noonday theater meeting. "He can get right into that sea-going yacht with Faherty (Michael J. Faherty, president of the Board of Local Improvements). They can sail down the waterway to the Gulf and cross the Atlantic.

"When they get to England Faherty and Thompson can get on their burros and ride to Buckingham Palace. When Faherty knocks on the door King George will come down to open it. Then Bill can step up and bust him right in the snoot."

Albert is a type familiar in all cities and would not be conspicuous in any Board of Aldermen. Of German parentage, he boasts of his boyhood on Goose Island, a district of poverty north of the Chicago River. He is short to squattiness, has a ruddy face, black hair. He is inclined to stoutness, has a deep voice which he uses to advantage, dresses neatly in dark suits.

Candidate Albert Speaks.

For the most, he has conducted his campaign in a more dignified manner than his two opponents. He has criticised Thompson for what he terms a reckless waste of money in public projects and has charged widespread graft in the handling of municipal works. Lyle he has discounted as a candidate who has established himself as a gangster fighter for purely political reasons.

"Thompson," he told an audience one day last week, "is a modern Rip Van Winkle. Once in awhile he wakes up from his sleep in the Sherman Hotel, takes on King George, and helps out the Almighty in stopping tempests, earthquakes and floods. (A reference to Thompson's flood control activities).

"Sometimes he goes across the street to the City Hall, doubles up his fists and waits for King George to come along and get his bust in the snoot. Meantime, his gang, down below him in the City Hall, is stealing everything that is not nailed down.

"He says no one can put a halter on him. He's absolutely right. No one can put a halter on a groundhog. He only comes out once in four years, and after he sees his shadow he crawls back for another sleep."

Judge Lyle, now on vacation from the bench, is still another type. In the middle fifties he is slightly above medium height, thin of face, sparse of hair. He wears rimless spectacles, dresses immaculately in dark, well-fitting clothes, with ties to match, refers constantly to a wrist watch with a sweeping, dramatic gesture. He carries himself erectly, is square of shoulder, has the residual dignity of appearance that is brought out with service on the bench.

Oral Barrage From Lyle.

His voice is generally conversational in tone, becomes throaty when he raises it. He is not as effective in his forensic manner as Albert or Thompson, but in the use of the technique that distinguishes the more rabid speechs of Tom Heflin, lame-duck Senator from Alabama, he shows something of genius.

Witness this following excerpt from one of his speeches as reported by his backer, the Chicago Tribune: "The object of the attack is, of course, Mayor Thompson, to whom he referred as Jumbo, the flood relief quack.

"The people have grown tired of this blubbering, jungle hippopotamus defending his gangsters and crooked politicians, and lazy bloodsucking jobbers by slobbering insults against the people of Chicago.

"He calls me looney. Did you ever see a lurching, shambling imbecile with the flabby jowls of a barnyard hog, whose diseased brain didn't defend its own lunacy by snarling at others?

"To refer to him as a blubbering charlatan whose befuddled mind totters on the borderline of lunacy, is charitable. Even a lunatic may not be charged with complete mental bankruptcy, with a total lack of initiative.

"An Eskimo at the North Pole or a Hottentot in darkest Africa might as well be Mayor for all the good the city gets out of him. He is asleep at the switch, a mental vacuum with the municipal government toppling about his ears.

Foe of Gangsters.

"This is the man you have for Mayor. Look at him. It is charitable, I say, to call him a lunatic or an imbecile. He is worse than that. Except at election time he is a complete loss, the essence of nothingness, two jackass ears on the side, a cowboy hat on top, and an empty space in between."

In dealing with gangsters in recent months particularly, Judge Lyle has been merciless in setting high bonds and in one case at least, in denying bail where the statute specifically provided bond should be allowed. He has had numerous reversals from appellate courts, but he contends he has at least succeeded in giving gangsters a lot of trouble, and has also declared there is a leaning to the gangsters side by one Judge on the appellate bench.

The arsenal displayed at his meetings is imposing and he uses it to effect his climax, snatching up one exhibit after another from the black powder bombs to the submachine gun. The latter piece he swings toward the audience, exhibiting its big muzzle and it cooling "stove" around it.

"Look at that big mouth," he cries, "I always call this thing Big Bill."

The outstanding feature of the campaign from the angle of vaudeville, namely the cheap parade, Mayor Thompson regards as one of his best publicity achievements.

"I had to have a circus," he explained to the correspondent in an interview. "It was forced upon me. I'm running against a couple of clowns."

That Burro From New Mexico.

Originally the parade consisted of the burro, ridden by a little boy, representative of the youthful Albert, a mule ridden by a spectacled gentleman supposed to represent Judge Lyle, and a horse ridden by a handsome cowboy whom the public was asked to believe to be "Big Bill" himself. Later an elephant and a camel were added, the elephant emblematic of Republicanism and the camel of prohibition. The ship of the Sahara bore a sign with the ancient wheeze: "A camel can go seven days without a drink but who the hell wants to be a camel?"

Another bit of atmosphere for the Thompson campaign was furnished by Arch Hurley of Tucumcari, N. M., national Republican committeeman from New Mexico, who appeared at Thompson's meetings attired in the high-heeled boots, corduroy trousers, bright shirt and white sombrero of the drug store cowboy.

Hurley, who says he was riding the range for the "Four-Sixes" ranch in West Texas when Thompson was punching cows for the "Circle Bar" outfit in Wyoming, told the reporter how the burro, center of attraction in Thompson's circus, came to Chicago.

"Bill called me up in Tucumcari," he said. "He asked what I could get a burro for and I said about $3. He said, 'Arch, I want you to get me the meanest, ugliest, flea-bitten so-and-so you can find and ship him to me.'

"So I shipped the burro. When it arrived Thompson had it brought to the city hall and into his office on the fifth floor. They bought a crate of lettuce for it to eat, but it preferred stronger food. It abandoned the lettuce and filled up on paper envelopes and odds and ends around the office."

Lover of Publicity.

Thompson was photographed with the burro and the picture was run by newspapers in all parts of the country. One paper in Chicago observed in its caption, "Thompson is the one to the left."

This irked Thompson not a whit. "It was a great piece of publicity," he said, "and it cost only $33, including the express from New Mexico. Its stunts like that that make people talk about you."

That remark reveals a trait believed by Thompson's friends to be one of the secrets of his political success. He has a genius for obtaining publicity, cares little whether it is favorable or unfavorable, providing it does not reflect on his honesty. He is unafraid of the jeers of his enemies, is content to take what he believes is favorable mention as far as the majority of the voters is concerned. He is an astute student of the Chicago mind, and admittedly knows how to reach a Chicago audience.

"If you manufacture good publicity stuff like that," he said, "even your enemies run it. They can't afford to pass it up and get themselves scooped by the opposition. They think they're hurting me, but they're not."

In his apartment in the Congress Hotel, lounging in a blue bathrobe and chewing cigar after cigar, Thompson was an entertaining conversationalist, recounting experiences in a dry voice, poking fun at his opponents, never passing up an opportunity for a jest.

Seeks Aliens' Support.

Once, without warning, he turned suddenly to the topic of England. Frequently he has challenged the King of England in this campaign, but his Anglophobia has been subordinated to other subjects for the most part.

"I see the King of England is taking a whipping on the Muscle Shoals power plant," he said. "You know the Alabama Light and Power Co. is an English outfit with offices in London and Toronto, and it's not going to get a grip on Muscle Shoals.

"It was the English that started the Ku Klux Klan in this country, too. They keep Ireland divided by stirring up strife between Catholics and Protestants, and they sent a lot of money into this country to divide us on the same basis."

That Thompson deeply appreciates the racial ties of strength of the mother countries is exemplified by the group of red, white and blue signs at the entrance to his campaign headquarters.

"The Assyrian-American Citizens' Club, Inc."—The Polish-American Organization" — "The Progressive Jewish Business Men's Association" — "The Irish-American Democratic Club"—"The Italian-American Organization"—"The Albanian-American Organization"—and so on ad infinitum.

All for "Big Bill" who has said he loves them all, who appreciates the fact that Chicago is a great melting pot of races. Only one group is missing. There is no English organization with offices in Bill's headquarters. Maybe Bill knows that Englishmen don't congregate in groups, are not marked out with the distinctness of foreign-language citizens.

Other Factors in Race.

Oh, yes. There are two other candidates in the Republican primary, George K. Schmidt, former Comptroller, and Eugene McCaffrey, a quadriennial. Both are lost in the hullaballoo. And in the Democratic primary there are two candidates, Anton J. Cermak, president of the Cook County Board of Commissioners, and John B. de Voney, a real estate dealer.

It is generally conceded Cermak will be the Democratic nominee. In the Republican primary it appears that Thompson will receive the nomination, with Lyle running a close second and Albert a poor third. With 1,300,000 voters registered, it is anticipated that more than half the votes cast will go in the Republican primary. Political observers believe the total vote will be something less than 1,000,000.

Viewed with relation to the State political situation, the Republican primary looks something like this: Len Small, former Governor, is backing Thompson and is said to look to Big Bill for support when the Small hat is thrown into the ring for the gubernatorial job in less than two years hence. Gov. Emmerson is said to favor Lyle and has given some patronage to members of the Lyle group for some months past.

During the closing days of the present campaign a city editor with a happy thought sent a reporter to interview delegates to a convention of alienists meeting in Chicago. Several of them were asked to express their opinion on the mental status of the candidates in the Republican primary, as reflected by their campaigns. They agreed that some of the candidates, at least, were mentally subnormally, but pointed out that great cunning in many activities is found frequently with mental subnormality.

They made unkind remarks, too, about the mentality of the Chicago voter, phrasing their diagnoses in professionally polite terms. When they were asked to reconcile their judgments with the fact that Chicago is a leader in the perpetuation of the opera, that it shows its interest in art and the sciences in a score of ways, that its growth on a solid basis has been phenomenal, they shook their heads and turned away.

Some town, Chicago!

TO GET PLANS FOR APPROACH ON EAST SIDE TO FREE BRIDGE

Board of Public Service to Be Asked to Authorize Bids on Two Contracts.

Plans for construction of the new east side Union Station approach to the Municipal Bridge will be submitted to the Board of Public Service Tuesday by President Kinsey of the board, for the authorization of bids on two contracts for the structure.

The new approach will lead to the new East St. Louis Union Station, covering a distance of about three-quarters of a mile from the bridge proper to Broadway in East St. Louis.

The two first contracts, to be closed on April 10, are of $650,000 for the concrete foundations of the approach and $720,000 for the fabrication of about 7000 tons of steel to be used. Two other contracts, one of $200,000 for setting up the steel, and another for laying tracks on the bridge, will follow. Construction, beginning in April, is expected to take about a year.

The money for the first two contracts, $1,370,000, has been advanced to the city by the Terminal Association, trains of which will go over the bridge, and is to be refunded by tolls on trains using the structure. Following the complaint of local steel companies that the specifications originally did not allow them to compete, the plans have been redrafted and will be presented in a revised form.

els of shrunken wheat. I have watched, later, the downpour of rain; seen men run bareheaded into it, fall on their knees and thank God for His mercy and relief.

But the rain had come too late for the farmers to take advantage of it.

Better Weather Forecasts.

No power lay in their hands to prepare the fields in time to receive seed which would mean a bounteous harvest the following season.

Breeding stock had so diminished that there was no chance of recouping the dwindled herds in one, two or even three years.

At a time when Nature offered her bounties to man, he was, because of his ignorance of natural law, unable to take advantage of the offering.

We cannot expect Nature to arrange things wholly for the benefit of mankind, but if we know Nature's intentions, we can at least make preparations to offset the effects of the great forces we cannot control.

Why not seek a knowledge of the weather movements, then, by a correction of observations taken in all parts of the world? It is hardly likely that a knowledge of conditions about the tropical and temperate zones would supply all the necessary information.

The urge to solve the problem of seasonal forecasting thus became predominant in my mind.

The atmosphere undoubtedly is governed by physical laws. If we could discover the workings of those laws we could deal with one of the greatest forces on earth.

It was soon evident that it was useless to study this question from the standpoint of Australia alone. The research must be world-wide including investigation within the polar areas.

The "polar front" theory in its important application to foretelling the behaviour and strength of cyclones in the neighborhood of Greenland and Norway was outlined by Dr. Bjerkness in 1910-1912.

Sir Napier Shaw calculated that the mass of air in the northern hemisphere exceeds its mean value by five billion tons in January and falls short of this mean value by over five billion tons in July.

Air's Enormous Weight.

This great shift of ten billion tons of air from hemisphere to hemisphere is approximately the equivalent of a mass 30 miles wide extending around the earth.

The energy of the winds of the earth has been calculated at nearly 20,000,000,000 horsepowers.

The movement of such great forces must be governed by some recognizable law. A fairly complete knowledge of temperate and tropical conditions has not provided a complete solution of weather movement, and such a solution is unlikely until we learn more about the polar latitudes and their influence on the movements of atmosphere.

Once we know the characteristics of polar weather, we should be able to trace the connection, if any, between the weather in these regions and the subsequent conditions in lower latitudes—and to forecast conditions in the great agricultural lands which supply the necessities of human and animal life.

To find a dependable means of accurately forecasting seasons of drouth, hurricanes and blizzards weeks or months in advance would be a practical achievement of the highest order. No less important would it be to be able to forecast seasons of floods and exceptional rain.

The changing characteristics of the pack ice in the North and the South play a great part in influencing meteorological conditions. A great variation in distribution in the ice fields has been conspicuous during the last three years.

In 1928, when we first went South with our planes, the pack ice south of Cape Horn was 650 miles farther north than it was the next year, 1929.

Last year, Sir Douglas Mawson reported that the ice was 1000 miles farther north in the same longitude than it was in 1929.

If All Ice Melted.

It has been estimated that about 18,000 cubic miles of drift ice reaches the Atlantic Ocean yearly from the North Polar regions.

The yearly ice distribution in the Antarctic is even greater. The volume of ice drifting about, distributing its influence in varying areas, as Dr. Isaiah Bowman has pointed out, represents a column with a base about a mile square reaching out into space almost as far as the moon!

If evenly distributed, it would cover the entire land surface of the earth with a layer a foot thick. Furthermore, we are told that if all the ice in the Antarctic were to melt in a day, it would raise sea levels thirty feet throughout the world.

These statements show clearly why meteorological conditions are so much influenced by conditions in the polar areas.

We know that the distribution of this ice is not regular; it varies from year to year. And so, until we can establish permanent stations to examine its distribution, we will not be able to forecast the weather and the seasons with accuracy.

It must not be supposed that the solution of all meteorological problems lays in the study of the polar regions. The problem is not so simple. But that we need a knowledge of polar conditions is certain.

In what way will our journey by submarine across the Arctic seas help in this matter?

Those who followed my work with planes in the Arctic and the Antarctic will know that in the Arctic we were seeking land; to ascertain if islands, as some geographers believed, existed in the Arctic Sea; to discover whether we could establish permanent meteorological stations on those lands.

During three years we failed to discover any new land between Alaska and the Pole which would serve our meteorological purpose. On the contrary, when we flew over areas where islands had been reported we saw no sign of them.

But we did see conditions which made it seem possible to establish meteorological stations on the floting ice.

With the submarine Nautilus we can examine ice conditions far from land at leisure. We flew over these ice areas at 125 miles an hour; now we shall attempt to go beneath them at a speed of less than 60 miles a day, stopping frequently to study them and determine whether establishment of observatories on the ice is feasible.

WASHINGTON U. MARKS ITS 78TH ANNIVERSARY

Former Judge A. B. Frey Discusses Alumnus' Debt to Alma Mater.

Washington University celebrated the seventy-eighth anniversary of the granting of its charter with a general assembly of students and faculty in Graham Memorial Chapel yesterday.

Chancellor Throop presided and there was music by Charles Galloway, organist, and the Men's Glee Club. The program opened with the singing of the national anthem. The charter was granted by the State on George Washington's birthday, Feb. 22, 1853.

Addresses were delivered yesterday by former Circuit Judge A. B. Frey, who was graduated from the university in 1908, on "What An Alumnus Owes His Alma Mater"; Charles Cullen, professor of law, on "George Washington, Exemplar," and Willis Wager, a senior in the college, on "George Washington and Modern Education."

Frey said one duty which every university alumnus can perform is to use his training and talents for the social, political and moral advancement of the community in which he lives. He said:

"There is today in our public life a dominance of political parties by cliques or gangs. Those who control the parties make every effort to perpetuate themselves in power. They succeed largely because of the indifference of the educated men in the community. But even more important than the foregoing is the appalling mediocrity in public life. Everywhere one meets with inefficiency and incompetence. Moreover, there is an intolerant attitude toward those who seek to approach public questions from a scientific or scholarly point of view. If more persons with highly trained minds turned their attention to public activities this would not be true. The standard of political ethics in our country is noticeably lower than that of private ethics."

Other things which alumni can do for their university, Frey declared, are to subscribe to student loan funds and scholarships, so that the less fortunate may attend the university; give employment to students and graduates of the university, help build the institution in the physical sense, interest themselves in athletic, dramatic, literary and debating events and, in the case of alumni who belong to fraternities, exercise a helpful influence in the supervision of the student chapters.

FOUR CONVICTIONS IN FIVE FELONY CASES

Fifth Dismissed on Instructions of Court Due to Statute of Limitations.

Four of five felony cases presented to juries in the criminal divisions of Circuit Court last week resulted in convictions, a fifth having been dismissed by a jury on instructions of the Court when it was found the statute of limitations had intervened.

Among those convicted was Romeo Luckett, Negro, who was given 10 years in the penitentiary for holding up John H. Willmore, a rent collector, on Jan. 22, 1926. Luckett left town after the robbery and was not placed on trial until he ventured back to St. Louis.

$500 for Killing.

Cyrus Gatewood, a 54-year-old Negro, was given 10 years in the penitentiary for manslaughter, for stabbing Louis Sterks, another Negro, in the Cinder Path Cafe, Sarah street and Hodiamont tracks on June 9, 1930. Harry Goldman, 25-year-old drug clerk, was fined $500 for the killing of Thomas Hawkins, a window washer, following a quarrel on July 4, 1929. Hawkins, it was shown, had cursed Goldman when he would not replace a defective Roman candle, and in a scuffle to eject him from the store a gun was discharged, wounding Hawkins.

Leo Sztukowski, 19, was given two years in prison on a statutory charge. Bernard Keller, architect and engineer, was discharged when it was shown a charge of false pretenses against him was not brought within statutory limits of three years.

Four men charged with robbery received prison sentences on their pleas of guilty. They were Frank Campanelli, 1403 North Tenth street, who was given 10 years; Frank Harris, a Negro, 10 years; Harry C. Lederer, three years, and David Landrigan, three years in the Boonville Reformatory.

Others charged with felonies who entered pleas of guilty and their punishments, were: Francis Eaton, burglary, three years; Chester E. Wright, barglary and larceny, four years; John Higgins and Harland Hagler, burglary and larceny, three years, paroled to report three years; Raymond Gaines, grand larceny, two years; William M. Midgett and Jesse Purcell, three years, commuted to Boonville, Purcell paroled to report in court three years; Raleigh Cavenack, embezzlement by bailee, two years; August Bayer, attempted rape, two years; Nathaniel Garrett, rape, two years; Clyde Harding, uttering bogus check, two years, and Joseph E. Perkins, forgery, two years.

Permitted to Plead Guilty.

Persons charged with major crimes who were permitted to plead guilty of offenses of lesser degree and take less than penitentiary punishment were: Roosevelt Stacker, petit larceny, one year, workhouse; Roy Collis, larceny of a motor vehicle, one year; Edward Fehrenhold, larceny of a motor vehicle, six months; Charles Harvey, petit larceny, 60 days; Arthur Williamson, manslaughter, six months city jail; Arthur Burke, embezzlement, six months; William Cox, petit larceny, one year; Russell King, carrying a concealed weapon, 90 days; Marko Kulich, keeping a gaming device, $100 and costs; John Hayden, carrying a concealed weapon, 90 days; Leo Steiner, common assault, nine months; James Johnson, Jackson Washington, Frank Watkins and George Rice, common assault, four months; Gus Kallimanis, keeping a gaming device, $100 and costs; Henry Jones, petit larceny, 60 days; Richard Thomson, common assault, six months; Roosevelt Kendall, carrying concealed weapon, six months; Jesse Nookes, turning in false firm alarm, 28 days in jail; Rudolph McGillian, petit larceny, six months; John J. Johnson, petit larceny, one year; Walter Page and Frank Williams, petit larceny, nine months; Edward A. Shaw, petit larceny, nine months; Leslie Bady, petit larceny, six months; John James and George Johnson, carrying concealed weapons, 50 days, and William Smith, petit larceny, six months.

GANGSTER ARSENAL INQUIRY

Detroit Police Question Two Men Who Escaped During Raid.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 21.—Inspector John Navarre of the homicide squad said today that John Catellese, 25 years old, of Monroe, Mich., and Russell Syracuse, 34, Falconer, N. Y., are being questioned by his officers regarding their connection with a reputed gangster arsenal disclosed by the State police in a raid at Monroe Sunday.

The two men were arrested yesterday and booked for investigation. Navarre said they had been seeking the men since the raid during which they are said to have escaped. He said that earlier reports that the men were being questioned in connection with the investigation of the murder of Radio Announcer Gerald E. Buckley, July 23, were unfounded.

Marine Corps League OK's Field.

The St. Louis Detachment of the Marine Corps League, indorsing a political candidate for the first time, has adopted a resolution approving the candidacy of Jules R. Field, Mayor Miller's secretary, for the Republican nomination for president of the Board of Aldermen. Field was a Lieutenant in the Twelfth Field Artillery, Second Division, A. E. F. Many local members of the Marine Corps League served in the Marine detachment of that division in France.

SALESMAN CHARGED WITH $3600 FRAUD

Edward Hopper Accused of Manipulating Cut-Rate Orders for Pickles.

When the pickle business went into the doldrums along with other enterprises during the present depression, Edward Hopper, $35-a-week salesman for the Berger Pickle Co., 1021 North Broadway, thought he saw a way out.

His manipulations went awry, however, and he is held under bond following his arrest Friday night. He is quoted by Police Capt. Nally as having admitted that his falsification of orders for pickles has cost his company $3600, but declares he made not one cent on his dealings.

Hopper, who gave his address as 3750 Westminster place, declared that when business began to fall off last year he made fictitious orders, then tried to persuade the customers to whom they were delivered to keep the goods.

When they demurred, he gave them cut rates. Then he took money paid on account by other customers and made up the difference between the payments of the cut-rate customers and what their payments should have been.

Finally the pyramid collapsed. He was arrested on complaint of Archie G. Berger, head of the company. Arrested also was Edward Cardwell, chauffeur for the company, who delivered the orders. Cardwell said he knew nothing of Hopper's manipulations and Hopper confirmed Cardwell's statement.

CITY ICE & FUEL BUYS TRACT FOR A LARGE PLANT

Acquires Three Acres on South Side of St. Charles Road, Four Miles West of the City Limits.

GOODRICH OBTAINS 2 LOTS ON DELMAR

$76,500 Reported Consideration for Site East of Skinker, at $860 and $670 a Front Foot.

By Berry Moore.

The City Ice & Fuel Co. has acquired a three-acre tract on the south side of the St. Charles road, approximately four miles west of the city limits. Tentative plans, it is said, contemplate construction of a large plant for the manufacture of ice and a depot for the distribution of coal and oil, as well as ice.

The site has a frontage of 300 feet on the St. Charles road, with a depth of 400 feet along the east line of Edgar avenue. It is just west of the outer belt line of the Terminal Railway and the yards of the Hill-Behan Lumber Co., adjoining on the east.

Charles Blum was the grantor. The purchase price was not disclosed. The instrument conveying the title was filed for record at Clayton yesterday. The Giraldin Bros. Real Estate Co. handled the transaction.

The City Ice & Fuel Co., which acquired the Polar Wave Co. in the latter part of 1929, is the largest ice and fuel organization in the country. Polar Wave as a name was discontinued in order to identify the local business as a part of the national organization.

The City Ice & Fuel Co. in addition to those in St. Louis, formerly comprising the Polar Wave Co., has large plants in Cleveland, Chicago, Cincinnati, Columbus, Buffalo and Boston and smaller holdings in other large cities. The St. Charles road purchase is noteworthy in the development of the facilities of the organization.

Site for Goodrich Silverstone.

The Goodrich-Silverstone Inc., has closed negotiations for the purchase of two 50-foot lots on the north side of Delmar boulevard, 60 feet east of Skinker road, involving a total of $76,500. The transaction was handled by the Mercantile Commerce Bank and Trust Co.

Approximately $43,000, or $860 a foot on Delmar is to be paid for the east 50 feet occupied by a two-story building, which was not taken into consideration. The grantor was the Polar Wave Ice and Fuel Co., which bought this 50 feet, together with the adjoining 50 feet on the east, 17 years ago for $200 a foot on Delmar, erecting the building as a taxpayer pending the development of Delmar boulevard. The Polar Wave company still owns 50 feet adjoining on the east.

The price involved for the west 50 feet is $33,500, or $670 a front foot. This parcel is held by the Burdeau Real Estate Co., which purchased it two years ago. It adjoins the northeast corner of Delmar and Skinker boulevards now occupied as a filling station. The two lots will give the Goodrich company a total frontage of 100 feet on Delmar, with a depth of 157 feet.

The company plans a super-service station to embrace both the Delmar lots acquired, as one of several to be established in the metropolitan area of St. Louis. It recently acquired the northwest corner of Twenty-third and Olive streets under a lease through the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co. The main service station of the company is being erected on this site, with contracts calling for completion April 15. Stations also are to be established in East St. Louis. The service stations are to be established primarily for the sale of Goodrich accessories.

Activity in Delmar Property.

The Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. recently purchased the northwest corner of Delmar boulevard and Hamilton avenue. Construction of a new one-story station is under way, having a frontage of 110 feet on Delmar and 157 feet on Hamilton. Negotiations for this site, which was acquired under lease with the privilege of purchasing at a stipulated figure, were handled through the Mississippi Valley Trust Co.

Renewed enthusiasm has been displayed on the part of both speculators and investors in property on Delmar, following substantial purchases by business interests, with the result that it reflects renewed buoyancy. A recent purchase was that by Jack Dubinsky of 75 feet improved with a modern two-story building on the south side of Delmar, opposite Aubert avenue, east of Kingshighway, through the Singer-Klein Real Estate Co.

CHAMBER ACTS ON REALTY MEASURES

Indorses Enabling Bills for City and County Plans and County Zoning.

Acting on behalf of the membership of the Chamber of Commerce, the organization's executive committee and board of directors have taken a stand on several bills introduced in the General Assembly, relating to city and county planning, widening of highway arteries within city limits and the taxation of real estate men.

The Board of Directors indorsed a joint report of the Chamber of Civic Development Committee and the Council on Civic Needs approving Senate bill 199 and House bills, 363, 364, 365, 378, 379 and 394, all of which are enabling acts to authorize cities to adopt an official city plan, counties an official county plan, and counties an official zoning plan.

The Chamber's Executive Committee approved a committee report on House Resolution No. 4, which would require that the State Highway Commission construct and maintain through highways in incorporated cities and towns. The report approves the principle embodied in the measure, but expresses the belief that its present application is premature. It is premature, the report pointed out, because it would not relieve any widening assessments or paving assessments in the cities until funds were available which would be some years hence, and they could not be retroactive; because it would place the entire cost of improvement on State highway funds, which would enhance property values without cost to the owners on the streets selected in the cities for State highways; because it would place the jurisdiction of the streets selected for State highways in the hands of the State Highway Department, the city thereby losing control of these streets, because it would not take into consideration the bills pending in Congress whereby Federal aid funds may be used on city streets; because the passage of the bill would seriously interfere with the completion of the State highway system, the construction of farm-to-market roads and the construction of traffic-relief roads adjacent to the cities, for which funds have already been allocated.

The report recommended that a study be made so that legislation can be enacted that will secure the interest of all the people and supply the funds needed. This recommendation was approved by the Executive Committee.

The Executive Committee also took a stand in opposition to House Bill 75, creating the office of State Publicity Director. After setting forth the duties of the director at length, the bill provides that funds for the maintenance of the department would be derived from a tax of $15 on real estate agents, and $10 on any person who negotiates a loan, while anyone contracting a loan would be required to pay a $15 fee and an abstracter, $15.

$3,500,000,000 BUILDING PLANNED, SURVEY SHOWS

Figure Based on Official and Private Data—St. Louis Named as One of Cities Which May Be in Forefront.

New 1931 construction totaling more than $3,500,000,000 is already planned, actually under way or about to be started in the United States, according to a nation-wide survey of the building situation just completed by Nelson, Hunt & Co. of Chicago, specialists in real estate and first mortgage financing.

This figure, based upon data from Government and private sources as well as reports from building officials in leading cities, it was explained, does not include nearly a billion dollars' worth of Federal, State and county highway construction, which is of particular importance this year because of its large consumption of labor and building materials.

Public Building Volume Doubles.

"Government and state-financed construction planned and under way totals between $700,000,000 and $800,000,000 in new projects. This is perhaps the most extensive public building program ever undertaken and serves to counterbalance other lines which may be slow to increase construction for 1931. Whereas public building ordinarily comprises 5.5 per cent of total construction, it is estimated that it will be more than double this percentage this year.

"Another important factor in the immediate construction program is the vast amount of building planned by the power and light utility companies. The construction plans of these companies for 1931 call for an expenditure of more than $700,000,000, of which a considerable portion is already under way.

"Industrial building, which declined in 1930, promises to show some revived activity this year, with more than $100,000,000 worth of this work now actually on the boards.

South to Spend $750,000,000.

"Analysis of available building data shows that a considerable volume of building is under way or projected in the Southern states and on the Pacific Coast. On the basis of present figures, approximately $750,000,000 will be spent on construction in the South during the next 12 months, of which $400,000,000 is actually permitted.

"Pacific Coast cities report estimated expenditures of $115,000,000 for new projects. In the St. Paul, Minneapolis and other Northwest territory there is approximately $116,760,000 worth of actual work scheduled. Several hundred million also will be spent in the Southwest states, particularly Texas.

"In the New York metropolitan area $257,000,000 worth of public improvement work is under way, or about to start, and in addition there is approximately another $100,000,000 being spent in private construction of all types. The Chicago district with about $35,000,000 worth of actual work in sight, continues to move at reduced speed. The metropolitan areas of Pittsburg, St. Louis, New Orleans, Baltimore and Kansas City report large scale projects, which may place these cities in the forefront of early spring construction activity."

NEW PARISH BUILDINGS FOR OVERLAND CHURCH

Construction has begun on a group of new parish buildings for the St. Paul's Episcopal Church of Overland. The plan contemplates a church building, chapel, rectory and parish hall. The parish hall contains Sunday school facilities for over 400 pupils, a large recreation hall, stage, dressing rooms and kitchen. To the rear, tennis courts and facilities for other outdoor games are provided.

The group, when completed, will present an attractive picture as the buildings form three sides of a fourcourt, after the plan of the country churches of England. The walls of all the buildings are of brick painted white with green roofs.

The Rev. Donald Veale is rector of St. Paul's Church. The ceremony of laying the corner stone will take place this afternoon at 3 o'clock, and will be presided over by the Rt. Rev. William Scarlett, Bishop-Coadjuter of Missouri. The architects are Klingensmith & Grover of St. Louis. The general contractor is Harry C. Mummert of Overland.

ASSERTS TIMIDITY HOLDS UP BUILDING

Architects' Committee Declarse Business Conditions Are Ripe for Recovery.

Timidity is retarding prosperity, declares a statement by the Committee on Industrial Relations of the American Institute of Architects, of which William Orr Ludlow of New York is chairman.

"Whether we shall recover soon from our present economic illness depends now upon how soon the American people take a reasonable view of the immediate situation," the committee says. "Have we ever failed to come back from former depressions? Does anyone doubt that we shall not fail to come back from this one?

"There is no longer a surplus of foodstuffs, housing, building materials; there is plenty of mortgage money. We are not halted now by any material causes, but simply by timidity. We need to be brought to a realization that we have our remedy in our own hands, and that we can have good times just as soon as we get over that paralyzing and invertebrate attitude of waiting for someone else to move first.

"In building particularly there now exists the strongest possible incentive for the display of hard, common business sense. Buildings may now be erected at a saving of 15 per cent to 20 per cent over former prices and over what prices will surely be in the near future.

"Practically everything that enters into a building may be purchased now economically—brick, cement, tile, roofing, flooring, plumbing. Wages for labor have not generally decreased, and should not decrease if we expect to maintain the buying power of the average man.

"Savings banks accounts are at high tide, mortgage money is begging for employment, a great majority of our people are actually earning now just as much as before the depression, men of wealth and many institutions have available funds, and yet building lags for no better reason than lack of courage to start.

"The second greatest industry in the country, building, will lead the way to recovery if the public can be aroused to the fact that for years there will not be the same opportunity afforded for profitable building and at the same time of helping to lift us as a people out of an entirely unwarranted mental and physical depression."

AIRPORT PARK, NEAR FLYING FIELD, TO BE PUT ON MARKET

Subdivision of 109 Acres Sold Last Week to Griese Realty Co.—Property in District Said to Be in Demand.

Airport Park, a new subdivision on Natural Bridge road, adjoining Lambert-St. Louis municipal flying field on the east, is to be placed on the market at once.

The ground, 109 acres, was sold last week to the H. A. Griese Realty Co., which will offer it to homesite seekers and investors. The sale was made by N. S. Wood, Inc. While not disclosed, it was said a record price was paid for the land, which had withstood many offers.

The locality is considered as being admirably adapted to laying out homesites. The site has 1300 feet front on Natural Bridge and 700 feet on the new highway which will connect the airport with the Chain of Rocks Bridge and other outlets to the north and east, leading to the automobile routes to Springfield, Ill., and Chicago.

One of the streets in the subdivision is to be named Salisbury street, in honor of Harry L. Salisbury, Director of Public Welfare, in charge of Lambert-St. Louis Field.

The opening of this subdivision, following what is believed to be the largest sale of this class of property thus far in 1931, is regarded as an indication of returning activity in the real estate field. N. S. Wood, Inc., seller of the property, reports inquiry for Natural Bridge road property immediately adjoining the airport.

ROSEBURY DRIVE APARTMENT SOLD

Annual Rentals of Building Are $8100—Theater Property Resold.

Sam Hamburg Jr. announces the sale of 6231 Rosebury drive, a three-story building comprising three apartments of nine rooms and three baths, to Abraham Tober and Sam Wolff, president and vice president, respectively, of the Wolff-Tober Shoe Mfg. Co. The transaction was handled by Hamburg, who gave the purchase price as $75,000. Harry Koplar was the seller. Annual rentals of the building are $8100. The building is just west of Skinker boulevard.

Hamburg reports having resold the property at the northwest corner of Broadway and Shenandoah avenue, including the New Shenandoah Theater, purchased recently by Mrs. Tillie Sacks, to a client whose name is withheld. The resale price, it is understood, involved a handsome profit.

The improvements consist of three and two story buildings comprising stores, offices and flats in addition to the theater. There is a total lot frontage of 225 feet on Broadway and 160 on Shenandoah.

BUILDING PERMITS OFF IN 556 U. S. CITIES

Decline in January From December and From Corresponding Month of 1930.

Prospective building activities throughout the United States showed a marked decline in January compared with the corresponding month a year ago and with December, according to the volume of building permits issued in 556 cities and towns and reported to S. W. Straus & Co.

Permits for the first month of 1931 amounted to $104,945,720 as against $129,088,299 in January, 1930, a loss of 19 per cent. The volume for December, 1930, was $130,075,437, January showing a loss of 20 per cent from this figure. There is a normal expectancy of a seasonal decline of about 10½ per cent between the two months.

The 25 cities reporting the largest volume of permits for the month showed during January a collective gain of 7 per cent over December and losses of 11 per cent from January, 1930, and 119 per cent from January, 1929. New York City gained over January of last year, as did Detroit, Oklahoma City, Hammond, Ind., St. Louis, San Francisco, Pasadena, Newton, Mass., Oakland, Cal., Dearborn, Mich., St. Paul, Louisville and Schenectady. Oklahoma City, Hammond, St. Louis, Pasadena, Newton, Dearborn, St. Paul and Schenectady also made individual gains over January, 1929.

FEDERER COMPLETES THREE NEW BUNGALOWS FOR SALE

The Federer Realty Co. announces the completion in the past week of three new bungalows in its Woodland Park district in the 5600 block of Finkman street.

Vincil A. Stamm, the builder, has added a number of refinements and improvements in the new buildings. The bungalows are of five rooms, all on one floor, have vitrolite baths, vitrolite kitchens, parquetry hardwood flooring, textured walls, hot-water heat, two-car garages and the lots 35x140 feet. The design is English style with open fireplaces, and all the interior trim is of gum and sycamore.

The Federer Realty Co. is prepared to offer the bungalows on a low down payment with easy monthly payments over a long period of years. The buildings will be open for inspection today. The numbers are 5622, 5630 and 5649 Finkman street.

REALTY EXCHANGE DINNER AND SMOKER ON TUESDAY

An old-fashioned stag smoker and dinner will be given by the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange Tuesday evening, at 6 o'clock at the Elks' Club, 3619 Lindell boulevard, for its active members and their salesmen. Advance sale of the tickets indicates an attendance of about 300. A beef steak dinner will be served, which will be followed by the smoker and a program of entertainment and music. Edward Thornhill is chairman of the entertainment committee.

FEW PLAYERS MAKING TRIP SOUTH FROM ST. LOUIS

By James M. Gould.

With the scheduled departure of small group of officials and play- rs of the Browns this afternoon, ollowing that of the Cardinals' irst "squad" yesterday, the St. Louis baseball season has its offiial "spring opening." The first Cardinal workout at the Bradenon camp is scheduled for tomorow, while the Browns will get into ction at West Palm Beach Tuesay.

Nowadays, practically all major eague clubs rout their players diect from home to camp. Formery, "getaway day" was quite an ocasion with the gathering of the aseball clans in each city and the eparture of big squads for the outh. Modern business methods ave replaced the now unnecessary allyhoo system and "going South" ow is just the first step in a busiess-like campaign conducted with achine-like efficiency.

However, the fan is as interested s ever and spring training means ews of his favorites. The past inter was one of baseball depresion. There was little or no trading or buying by big league clubs. t was, from the fans' standpoint, ruly a "winter of discontent."

Six Players in Browns' Party.

Due to depart in the Browns' party this afternoon are Vice President McEvoy, Secretary Johnson, Trainer Tommy Brammel, Pitchers Blaeholder and Kimsey, Infielders Storti and Grimes and Outfielders Bettencourt and Gullic. They will be joined on their arrival at West Palm Beach by the younger members of the Browns and the battery men.

Manager Killefer has gone direct to camp from his home in West Chester, Pa., and will assume charge Tuesday. The Browns have a game with the House of David team scheduled for March 8, but their real exhibition season will not begin until March 14, when they start a series with the Columbus club of the American Association. Only two major league clubs—the Phillies and the Cardinals—are booked as spring opponents of Killefer's team.

Kansas Aggies Defeat Tiger Quintet 21-14

By the Associated Press.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Feb. 21.—In a game marked by spurts of good play, but much ragged basketball, the Kansas Aggies defeated Missouri in a Big Six basketball game here tonight, 21 to 14.

After 13 minutes of play in the first half, the Aggies held a 9 to 2 lead, Missouri scoring a field goal with only seven minutes of the first half remaining. Holding a 16 to 14 lead with three minutes of the game left, the Aggies resorted to back court strategy, drew Missouri out, and rang up five points. The Aggies led at the half 9 to 4.

For a short time just after the second half opened, Missouri led 10 to 9, Wagner getting two field goals and Davis two free throws in rapid succession while the Aggies failed to tally. Free throws by Nigro and Auker put the Aggies ahead, 11 to 10, and a short time later the score was tied, 12 to 12. Then the Kansans took the lead and never relinquished it.

Passing of both teams was erratic and the goal tossing uncertain.

Sooners Defeat Iowa State, 26-21.

By the Associated Press.

NORMAN, Ok., Feb. 21.—Playing without the services of Capt. Lawrence Meyer, guard, the University of Oklahoma basketball team smothered Iowa State tonight and won their second conference game of the season, 26-21.

Oklahoma led 15 to 6 at the half and was never headed, although the margin was cut to one point midway in the last period.

Harold Roberts, six foot center, who has warmed the bench most of the season scored 14 points for Oklahoma and accounted for 10 of Oklahoma's 11 points in the last half.

Dean, Redbird Rookie, Gives Bradenton Idea of Why He's Called "Dizzy"

By J. Roy Stockton.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

BRADENTON, Fla., Feb. 21.—Seven St. Louis Cardinals are here awaiting the arrival of the St. Louis National League batterymen Monday morning and while this friendly little city on the Manatee River may not know about four of the athletes, it knows full well that one Jerome Herman "Dizzy" Dean is here and has been here.

"I've been getting my legs in shape," Dean told the writer this afternoon. "I've been running around a lot. Played golf some and I got a bad foot out of it. Swinging off the tee with a driver, I plunked my left foot and it's sore."

Other persons here say that Dean has been getting other persons' legs in shape, or at least that because of him they have done considerable running around and there is general head-shaking and much apprehensive clucking about Dean, his immediate and remote future.

About Dean They Say ——

Dean, outspoken, frank and likeable, insists that he is in no jams, has been in none, but here are some of the things that are being told about him:

The matron at the Dixie Grande Hotel reports that the maids can't get in to make up his bed until 2 or 3 o'clock each afternoon, so late does Dizzy sleep.

Prospective golf champions with appointments, scour the town in vain for Dizzy and have to go without him.

Branch Rickey has been burning up the telephone wires, complaining of reports about Dean and his frequent pleas, demands and even ultimatums for $100 bills.

Dean journeyed to a flying field and wanted to make a parachute jump, for which he had heard $50 would be paid.

Dean has the urge to be a wrestler, challenges everybody in town, wrestles in the streets, drug stores and hotel lobbies and is thinking of changing his name to Deanapopolos.

Denied Uniform in Advance.

Rickey has sent word that Dean is to be given enough money to get three meals a day and not a dime more. In spite of that it is said that there have been a few transactions which may bounce back to the Cardinal financial department.

Dean phoned Rickey to rush him a baseball uniform, and Rickey issued a general order that he was to receive no uniform, lest he use it to establish various lines of credit. It is even said that he already has drawn all of his 1931 salary.

Other Cardinals here are Catcher Jimmy Wilson, Shortstop Char-

What's a Mere Rib?

ALTHOUGH X-ray photographs showed that Primo Carnera suffered a cracked rib in training, the Florida State Athletic Commission ruled that he must fight Jimmy Maloney as scheduled, March 5.

That is not as terrible as it sounds. Occasionally an athlete has completed a hard competition under similar conditions, not knowing at the time that he was injured.

On occasions men have gone into the fray knowingly, under similar handicaps, plentifully taped up with adhesive bandages. In one instance, Bull Brennan, playing for a local medical college eleven, entered and completed a game of football under the handicap of three fractured ribs. And all for FUN!

Carnera still has two weeks in which to recover from the injury, although his training certainly will be handicapped seriously.

The Drive on Florida.

JOINING the annual Florida baseball trek, now under way, will be golfers, fight fans and persons with more time and income than they know what to do with. The last mentioned group will be fewer in number than formerly, due to one or more of the 50,000 causes of the current depression.

Despite this, Florida promoters are carrying on with even more vim and confidence than formerly. At Miami there is a remarkable sequence of sports events in progress. For example, the racehorses have been tearing at the tourists' bankrolls for several weeks, as have three greyhound racing meets, operating daily. In addition, there is the pelota play at the Jai Alai Fronton, and, beginning this

MEMPHIS STARS TAKE BOTH 'Y' HANDBALL TITLES

By Harry McKanna.

Sam Atcheson of Memphis, Tenn., whose "daily dozen" for the last 11 years has been a game of handball or two a day, yesterday virtually single-handed won the National Y. M. C. A. singles and doubles championship at the Downtown Y. M. C. A.

The mild-mannered Tennesseean captured the singles crown by defeating Robert Weiller of Evanston, Ill., 21—5, 21—5. Then, after a brief rest, he came back with Sam Johnson, also of Memphis, to win the doubles title from Robert Larmore and Mike Cunningham, St. Louis veterans, in a gruelling three game match, 11—21, 21—10, 21—12. It was Atcheson and Johnson's second doubles title victory.

Atcheson plays about three-fourths of the court in the doubles, while he counts on his partner to cover the rest of the space. It is true that Johnson has only one corner to look after, but he does that job exceedingly well. Atcheson scored most of the points, but Johnson was in there at the right time to slip in a score in his corner.

The doubles battle was the high spot of the closing day of the tournament. Cunningham, who was on night duty as a city fireman Friday night, arose after a few hours of rest to play the championship match. Mike is no youngster. He says he is 46 and has played handball for 35 years. And his partner, Larmore, is on the other side of 30 and a veteran of 15 years.

The St. Louis veterans started out like youngsters and captured the first match, 21 to 11. But age takes its toll, and they began tiring in the second game, which they lost, 21—10. The fight spirit was there, but the stamina was gone in the third game, and the veterans bowed to the younger Atcheson and Johnson, 21—12.

The scores follow:

FIRST GAME.

		Total
Larmore-Cunningham	1 2 7 1 5 2 3	21
Atcheson-Johnson	0 5 1 1 1 3 x	11

SECOND GAME.

		Total
Atcheson-Johnson	3 5 1 2 2 4 0 0 1 3	21
Larmore-Cunnigham	0 3 2 2 1 1 0 1 0 x	10

THIRD GAME.

		Total
Larmore-Cunningham	1 3 3 1 2 2	12
Atcheson-Johnson	3 2 5 4 3 4	21

Atcheson displayed the same brilliant game in the singles to defeat Weiller. The first game went 16 innings, but in the second Atcheson scored 18 points on his first service, and ran out in five innings.

The scores:

FIRST GAME.

		Total
Atcheson	0 0 0 1 0 1 1 1 1 0 0 7 0 1 7 1	21
Weiler	0 0 0 0 1 1 0 0 1 1 0 1 0 0 0 x	5

SECOND GAME.

		Total
Weiler	1 2 0 2 0	5
Atcheson	18 1 0 1 1	21

In the consolation singles, I. N. Kessler of St. Louis, Western A. A. U. champion, defeated Irwin Bauer of Cleveland, 21-11, 21-12.

Trophies were presented to the champions and runners-up at a dinner at the Y. M. C. A. last night.

WINNER OF THE NURSERY STAKE LEADS ALL THE WAY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 21. — Two track records were broken here this afternoon, one by the 2-year-old Judge Primrose in the Nursery Stake, and the other by Morsel, in the Lauderdale Handicap. Morsel, a 4-year-old black colt owned by W. L. Franc and trained by Mose Lowenstein, beat a good field of five competitors over the mile and 70 yards course in 1:41 3-5, just one-fifth of a second better than the mark set by Peto, a year ago.

Morsel was ridden by J. Burke and was coupled with Replevin, which finished out of the money. Sandy Ford, Eil Weir and Sun Mission finished in the order named behind the speedy Morsel. He paid only $3.60 for $2.

In winning the purse of $2790, Judge Primrose covered the course (75 feet less than three furlongs) in :32 1-5 seconds, one-fifth of a second faster than the best previous time made by Kayo. F. A. Carreaud's Va Carriendo finished second and E. B. McLean's Portden third. Brandon Mint turned in a creditable performance to place fourth.

The start was good and Judge Primrose rushed to the front at the rise of the barrier. Coming through the final furlong he led by three lengths and then held on to his margin as Va Carriendo challenged in the last sixteenth. Va Carriendo beat Portden one and one-half lengths for the place.

Judge Primrose and Va Carriendo, grouped in the field paid their backers $7.70 for $2.

GOODMAN TO MEET MORELAND IN FINAL OF HOUSTON EVENT

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., Feb. 21. — Johnny Goodman, Omaha, and Gus Moreland, Dallas, will meet here tomorrow in a 36-hole match for the championship of the seventeenth annual Houston Country Club invitation golf tournament.

The finalists, both youths, qualified for the title match by defeating two Houston, Tex., veterans. The Nebraska boy won from W. C. Hunt, state champion, 3 and 2, and Moreland eliminated O. S. Carlton, three-time winner of this tournament, two up.

Carlton conceded the thirty-sixth hole and the match to Moreland when he sliced his tee shot into the woods. At the end of 18, he held a 2-up advantage. Hunt and Goodman made the turn all square, but the graying Texan fought a losing battle all afternoon.

ALABAMA POLY STAR TIES WORLD RECORD FOR LOW HURDLES

By the Associated Press.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Feb. 21. —A world's record was tied at the Union College board track and field games here today. Percy Beard of Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Southern intercollegiate conference champion, topped the 70-yard low hurdles in eight seconds to tie the world's record set here last year by Sol Furth of New York University.

Nelson Greer of Texas University, in winning the special 600-yard run, broke the meet record. His time was 1:17 1-5. Five other meet records were broken.

Johnson's Condition the Same.

The condition of Ban Johnson, former president of the American League, ill at St. John's Hospital here, was reported still "serious" last night. Blood transfusion was resorted to last Thursday, since which time the patient has rested more easily.

Training Season Finds Cards Rated High, Browns Low as Flag Contenders

Gabby Street's Team Is Stronger Than Last Season Except for Infield Reserves.

Killefer Has a Lot of Promising Material With Lots of Room for Improvement Over 1930.

By J. Roy Stockton.

Pitchers and catchers of the Cardinals are on their way to training camp at Bradenton, Fla., Brownie batterymen will depart this afternoon, and it all means that spring training time is here and another championship baseball season is just around the corner.

How about the new flag race? Will the Cardinals repeat? Will Dizzy Dean and Paul Derringer make the Redbirds invincible? Will the new Brownie infield perform a miracle and make the Phil Ball team into a pennant contender? Will the fans be sufficiently interested in the new Brownie team to nudge the St. Louis Americans out of the puddles of red ink which have soiled their ledgers for several years?

The St. Louis Outlook.

One man's guess is as good as another's. And as the training season progresses the number of guessers will increase, until the public has steamed itself up properly for the abbreviated spring series and the opening of the league races.

Briefly and tersely, the outlook seems to be:

If the Cardinals don't win the National League flag, it will be a bitter disappointment to Sam Breadon, Branch Rickey, Gabby Street, the players and the cash customers.

If the Browns climb out of the second division it will be a pleasant surprise.

If the Browns make a serious threat for the championship it will be in the nature of a miracle and there will be a hullabaloo and delirium on Dodier street, not to mention Grand, Spring and Sullivan.

Despite all their bad breaks last season, the Cardinals won a pennant and won two games of the world series.

This season the pitching staff will be strengthened by the addition of Dizzy Dean, Paul Derringer, Tony Kaufmann and Allyn Stout.

The outfield squad will include two newcomers, Pepper Martin from Rochester and Joel Hunt from Houston. Martin was the batting sensation of the International League and is conceded a splendid chance of winning a regular berth in the Redbirds' outfield this year.

We'll Miss Andy High.

The infield has been weakened by the departure of Andy High to Rochester, with Eddie Delker taking High's place on the Redbird roster as utility infielder. Delker was a bench rider most of 1929 and last season he injured a leg and saw little service. He therefore must be considered an unproved recruit. However, it must be said the Cardinals will have other infielders in camp and if a youngster should show major-league qualifications he could be transferred to the St. Louis roster.

An important addition to the infield will be Jimmy Collins, slugger from Rochester, who will try to take Jim Bottomley's job away from him. Scouts say that Collins is ready for the majors and that Bottomey will have to have one of his best years to crowd the Rochester "Ripper" to the bench.

The pitching also should be stronger because of the fact that Grimes will be in training camp early and available for duty all season. If he had been with the team last spring it would have gained first place earlier in the race.

Another favorable fact is that Charley Gelbert should be a better

Cardinals Should Capture Another Championship

GABBY STREET and his men should win the National League flag with ease, unless they run into wagonloads of misfortune and grief. The team was good enough to win the pennant last year, despite injuries which kept many stars out of uniform for long periods.

Bottomley was out for weeks. Orsatti was out most of the year; Hafey was out several times, weeks in a stretch; Frisch was spiked and out for an entire road campaign; Gelbert was laid up for weeks with a charley horse; Grimes was not with the club until June 15, and didn't pitch like Grimes until July.

Londos Departs and Match With Pesek Is No Nearer

By Damon Kerby.

Jimmy Londos has come and gone, but a match between Londos and John Pesek, who posted a $5000 cashier's check with Commissioner Seneca C. Taylor to guarantee his appearance here in a match with either Londos or Ray Steele, is no nearer to realization.

"Sure, I'm willing to meet Pesek here if my manager is willing and I can get the right terms from the promoters," Londos told the Post-Dispatch.

Londos' statement is just as meaningless as Pesek's, who asked to be given five weeks or more in which to train for a match with either Steele or Londos, and the right to have a voice in the selection of a referee.

Steele Has Check Posted.

Steele still has $5000 posted with Commissioner Taylor which he says he is willing to put up as a side bet in a match with Pesek. However, posted checks or no posted checks, the wrestling customers might as well wipe a prospective Pesek-Steele or Pesek-Londos match off the calendar, at least for the present.

Londos spent a profitable evening at the Coliseum Friday. As told yesterday, he received approximately $6700 for spending an hour and seven minutes in the ring with Steele. The latter didn't do so badly either, receiving approximately $4000.

The crowd was the best of the season, with 10,567 persons jamming their way into the Coliseum for the event. The gross receipts were $19,774, of which the State received $965.52 for taxes and license.

Londos and Manager Ed White are en route to New York, where tomorrow night Jimmy defends his New York and Pennsylvania title in a return match with Jim McMillan. Tom Packs is scheduled to go today. His principal reason for making the trip was to try to

Kansas Aggies Defeat Tiger Quintet 21–14

By the Associated Press.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Feb. 21.—In a game marked by spurts of good play, but much ragged basketball, the Kansas Aggies defeated Missouri in a Big Six basketball game here tonight, 21 to 14.

After 13 minutes of play in the first half, the Aggies held a 9 to 2 lead, Missouri scoring a field goal with only seven minutes of the first half remaining. Holding a 16 to 14 lead with three minutes of the game left, the Aggies resorted to back court strategy, drew Missouri out, and rang up five points. The Aggies led at the half 9 to 4.

For a short time just after the second half opened, Missouri led 10 to 9, Wagner getting two field goals and Davis two free throws in rapid succession while the Aggies failed to tally. Free throws by Nigro and Auker put the Aggies ahead 11 to 10, and a short time later the score was tied, 12 to 12. Then the Kansans took the lead and never relinquished it.

Passing of both teams was erratic and the goal tossing uncertain.

Sooners Defeat Iowa State, 26-21.

By the Associated Press.

NORMAN, Ok., Feb. 21.—Playing without the services of Capt. Lawrence Meyer, guard, the University of Oklahoma basketball team smothered Iowa State tonight and won their second conference game of the season, 26-21.

Oklahoma led 15 to 6 at the half and was never headed, although the margin was cut to one point midway in the last period.

Harold Roberts, six foot center, who has warmed the bench most of the season scored 14 points for Oklahoma and accounted for 10 of Oklahoma's 11 points in the last half.

Roosevelt Wins From Warrenton

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WARRENTON, Mo., Feb. 21.—With Dillman and Parker leading an irresistable attack, the Roosevelt High School basketball team of St. Louis tonight defeated the Warrenton High team, 32 to 27. Roosevelt got away to a good start and held a slight lead throughout the game. Parker and Dillman scored 20 points between them.

Tonight's result gave the St. Louisans an even break in the two-game series for Warrenton won the first, at St. Louis early in the season, 41-13.

COAN, VICTOR OVER CONGER AT MILE, THIRD IN 600-YARD RACE

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 21.—Fred Steiner, giant University of Pennsylvania athlete, whose home is in California, today threw the 35-pound weight 54 feet, 5 inches, exceeding the Eastern intercollegiate record of 53 feet, 11⅛ inches made by N. G. Wright of Cornell in 1928. His figures will not stand as record as the throw was made in a handicap meet confined to Pennsylvania men. It was made from a slightly raised platform.

Carol Coan, who won fame by beating Ray Conger in the Baxter mile in New York last Monday night, stepped out of his favorite distance run and finished third in a 600-yard race with Leslie Schaefer and Johnny Kerr. Schaefer finished first in 1 minute 15 6-10 seconds.

The handicap meet was the fourth of a series this season held by Pennsylvania men under the guidance of Coach Lawson Robertson.

ILLINOIS TRACK TEAM BEATS NOTRE DAME

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Feb. 21.—Illinois defeated Notre Dame in a dual indoor track meet here this afternoon, 51 to 44, with the outcome in doubt until the final two events. Illinois annexed five first places, while Notre Dame grabbed four firsts and also took the one-mile relay event. The high jump resulted in a tie between Barron of Illinois and Darling of Notre Dame.

The Notre Dame one-mile relay team composed of Wilson, Kelly, Macbeth and Scanlon led the Illini by 59 yards.

49 AMERICAN LEAGUE RECRUITS HIT BETTER THAN .300 LAST SEASON

VOSMIK, BOUGHT BY CLEVELAND, LEADS ROOKIES WITH .397 MARK

By Herman Wecke.

Forty-nine athletes, who hit for better than .300 averages in the minors during the 1930 season and four pitchers, who won 20 or more games, are included in the list of more than 100 recruits, who will strive for berths with the eight American League clubs at the spring training camps. The highest batting average was turned in by Vosmik, a youngster, who comes to the Indians from Terre Haute, who hit .397 in 121 games

Kline, from the Central League, who goes to the Red Sox, won 23 games, while the veteran, Wilcy Moore, snared from St. Paul by Bob Quinn, won 22. Craghead, who goes to the Indians from the coast and Griffith, grabbed by Washington from the Western Association, each gained 21 victories. Kline and Moore each lost nine decisions; Craghead 22 and Griffith 13. Craghead worked in 343 innings and was the "iron man" among the new hill artists.

Eight New Browns.

The Browns' roster shows only one new flinger, Stiely, who won 11 and lost 12 with Milwaukee. Four new Brownies made 200 or more hits. They were Jenkins 216, Burns 215, Storti 204 and Waddey 204. Waddey, drafted from Memphis, and Young, the catcher, from Milwaukee, are the only Brownie newcomers who have not been seen in action here. Waddey is an outfielder. Waddey hit .344 and Young .312. Others who will try for jobs are Bettencourt, Crouch and Levey. Of the number, Burns and Levey are regarded as regulars, while Waddey has a fine chance to snare the right field berth.

One of the highly touted recruits who will try for a regular berth in the A. L. is Myrl Hoag, the outfielder, snared by the Yankees from Sacramento, where he batted .337 in 188 games. Another outfielder, who will try to break into the Yanks' outfield is Walker from Jersey City. Gibson, Karlon, Werber and Padden are other new faces with the team, which will be led by Joe McCarthy. New pitchers expected to add strength to the staff which faltered badly last season are Allen, Andrews, Brown, Gomez, Miner, Rhodes, Weaver and Weinert. Brown, 16-6, Weinert, 16-11, and Weaver, 19-11, had the best minor records.

Red Sox's Punch.

Needing a batting punch badly, five of the six who will try for berths with the Red Sox hit better than .300. Lucas swatted .347, McSwain .327, Marquardt .322, Rye .367 and Van Camp .344. Winsett finished with .299. In addition to Brillheart, Moore and Kline, new pitching strength may come from Milliken, Murphy and Simmons. Brillheart, the only southpaw on the Boston roster, won 18 and lost 16 with Minneapolis during the 1930 campaign. He worked 270 innings and allowed 5.77 earned runs each nine innings. Moore's record with St. Paul was 4.07, while Kline, with Erie, permitted 3.95.

There appears to be only one star in the list of new athletes with the White Sox. There are four new pitchers, Barbour, Frasier, Intlekofer and Moore, but only Moore had a minor league record, winning 15 and losing 13 with Little Rock. Those who will try for berths in the other positions and their hitting averages are: Simons, from Louisville, .371; Appling, .326; Blackerby, .340; Eichrodt, .325; Finlator, .306; Goff, .339; Grube, .348; Henline, .341; Hoffman, .333; Jeffries, .330; Radcliff, .369, and Willingham, .321.

In addition to Vosmik, who hit .397, Detore, .333, Hooks, .316, Hunnefield .287 and Winegarner .318, will try to land berths with the Indians. Winegarner, who has a good chance to land the third-base job, hit 40 homers with Eldorado last year. Thomas, who was up once before and who won 18 and lost 20 in the Coast League, appears best among the pitchers, along with Craghead, who did 21-22. The others are Brunson, Hildebrand, Lawson and Lee. Lawson won 14 and lost seven with Terre Haute.

Tom Bridges, up late last fall, and Marrow of Fort Smith are new hurlers with the Tigers. There's plenty of hitting power on minor league records among the new players. They are: Doljack, .386; Eckhardt, .379; Grabowski, a former Yankee catcher, .284; Holley, .267; Owen, .300; Schuble, .320; Shiver, .304; G. Walker, .378, and H. Walker, .355. The Walkers, incidentally, are brothers.

One of the best rookies with the Senators is Kuhel, the first-sacker from Kansas City, who hit .372. Kuhel was with Walter Johnson last fall and is expected to take the regular job from Joe Judge. Bolton, a catcher, hit .330 with Chattanooga; Dashiel, an infielder, .281; Jordan, an outfielder from Newark, .363, and Kenna, the catcher, back from the Southern, .291. Griffith, with 21-13, has the best record among the pitchers. The others are: Fidler, 4-5; Peregory, 6-2, and Tauscher, 13-16. Tasucher was with Dallas a year ago.

Bottomley a World Series Hero in McGraw's Eyes for Catch of Foul Behind Rail

By John J. McGraw.
Manager New York Giants.

THOUGH Jim Bottomley of the Cardinals suffered a streak of tough luck at the bat—couldn't get along at all—he must be credited with having made one of the very great plays of the 1930 world series.

This particular play must have been of immense satisfaction to Jim. It was made in one of the tightest moments of the third game in St. Louis, the day that the Cardinals turned the Athletics back and looked as if they were on their way to big things. Bottomley had his first thrill of applause from his home crowd in the series.

The great play was made in the sixth inning and, if fans will remember, the Cardinals were out in front, having made a run in the fourth inning and also in the fifth. Bill Hallahan was pitching a great game and was supported by as brilliant fielding as any pitcher could expect.

Simmons On, Foxx Up.

IN that sixth inning Hallahan's task was to get rid of Cochrane, Simmons and Foxx, the Athletics' trio that caused so much trouble all through the series. He got rid of Cochrane on an easy grounder to Frisch, but Simmons hit one on the nose for a long double to right center. It looked for a moment as if the Athletics were off on another rally. Even with a two-run lead, the Cardinal supporters did not feel safe. If Jimmy Foxx got hold of one and sent Simmons in, anything might happen. So, every eye in that stand was on Foxx, the man who was to cause so much trouble two days later.

Hallahan finally coaxed Foxx into swinging at a ball that was none too good. It must have fooled him for he hit well under the ball, popping up a foul fly that seemed certain to drop into one of the field boxes on the right field side.

Bottomley, however, took nothing for granted, and got the jump, it seemed, by the time the bat had touched the ball. Going at full speed, Jim sprinted toward the low rail in front of the box. Even then it appeared certain that the ball would clear the barrier. That, however, did not stop Bottomley. As a matter of fact, the ball was over the rail, but so was Jim's big hand.

Bottomley Saves Day.

PAYING no attention to the rail and disregarding the danger of bumping into it, Jim kept going. His eye was on the ball and nothing else. So accurately did he time the flight of the ball that rushing against the rail he stretched his full length, and, hoisting himself with one hand, reached over the heads of the nearest spectators and caught the ball with the other. Moreover, he regained his balance and was ready to throw if Simmons made a break to start from second.

That was a really remarkable play, and it stopped short the rally of the Athletics. It is difficult for anyone other than a ballplayer to appreciate the difficulty of judging the flight of a foul fly and keeping an eye on the barrier at the same time. The possibility of a crash and consequent injury—an unconscious hesitation or flinching often makes a player miss.

I rarely ever saw a crowd go so wild over a play in baseball. It certainly stopped the attack. Bing Miller wound up the inning with an easy fly to Douthit.

evening. Coach Buzzy Wares, Pitchers Allyn Stout and Miller Brown completed the group. Bill Hallahan, "Dizzy" Dean, Jim Wilson, Ray Blades and Charley Gelbert already are at camp.

Street's View of 1931 Clubs.

Manager Street got in yesterday morning. He is decidedly optimistic over the chances of his team to repeat in the pennant race.

"I don't want to seem to brag," Gabby said just before getting on the train, "but I cannot see how we can be beaten out. Barring accidents, of course. I have watched the plans of the other National League clubs closely and cannot see how any of them has strengthened sufficiently to make them dangerous to us."

"Which team do you think will give you the most trouble?" he was asked.

"Pittsburg," he replied without hesitation. "There's a good ball club. Of course, I'm figuring that the club will be able to keep its full strength in action. Last year, you remember, the Pirates were hard hit by injuries and illness and yet finished a good fifth, only 12 games behind us. A team with the hard luck they had, that could make such a showing, is a ball club."

"How do you figure the Cubs?" was the next question.

"Well, that's all up to Hornsby. If Rog can play the year through in his best form, they certainly will cause plenty of trouble. So will the Giants, for that matter. McGraw always has a tough club. Brooklyn has pitching and the team can hit. They'll be in the race, too. Please don't get the idea that I believe the Cardinals are going to have a walkaway. I don't think so. It's going to be a fight from the start. But, I do believe that we have the best balanced ball club in the league, with plenty of fine reserve in case of hard luck, and I really can't see any of the other seven clubs beating us out."

Street will have the two-a-day practice system working at Bradenton. Over at West Palm Beach Bill Killefer works under the one-practice idea. He makes that session long enough.

As the St. Louis clubs start their training, the difference in their prospects for the season is marked. The Cardinals are credited with an excellent chance for another flag. The Browns, now in a "build-up" process, are figured to finish well down in the second division. At least, that's the way the "experts" look at the situation.

But, followers of both Cardinals and Browns are aware of that great uncertainty which enhances the popularity of the game. Even "experts" can't "sometimes always tell."

dig up some new talent for future wrestling cards here, having especially in mind his next program, scheduled March 2.

It is apparent that wrestling promoters are now hard put for talent, with the way the game is booming in all sections. Leon Balkin, matchmaker for the preliminary events on Packs' card Friday night, still hasn't explained where he dug up Billy Evans, a fat 235-pound, one-eyed individual, who tried to cope with Rudy Dusek. Evans gave a pretty good account of himself, at that, while he was in there. He lasted about 15 minutes.

Nick Velcoff was another wrestler on the card who has seen better days. In fairness to himself and Balkin, however, it may be said that he also furnished a lot of entertainment before going down before Pat O'Shocker in 15 minutes.

O'Shocker and Dusek are being considered for the main event on Packs' next card.

VIRGINIA DUEKER FIRST IN PARKS TENNIS RANKING

By Davison Obear

Five St. Louis players were named in National Public Parks tennis ranking for 1930. A committee composed of Winfree Johnson, Washington, D. C., chairman; Gus Amsterdam, Philadelphia, and Martin J. Telle, St. Louis, prepared the list which contains the names of 50 players in men's singles, 24 teams in men's doubles, 17 in women's singles and seven in women's doubles.

Mrs. Virginia Dueker, who won the first National public parks women's singles title, was awarded first place in the women's singles ranking. She won the local women's championship as a member of the O'Fallon Park Tennis Club. The St. Louis women's doubles team, Mrs. Dueker and Mrs. Ann Lindemann, was named second in the women's doubles list. This team reached the final of the national event at Washington last August.

Theodore R. Drewes, many times winner of both the local and national men's singles events, was awarded the No. 2 place in men's singles, while Robert Norton, another St. Louisan, was placed at No. 11. Harry Schaberg, O'Fallon Park player, was placed No. 32 in men's singles. The team of Schaberg and Norton was ranked No. 15 in the men's doubles list.

The "first ten" follow:

First Place at Stake Today in Bowling League

First place in the Greater St. Louis All-Star individual bowling league will be at stake, when Frank Kastner, the present leader, opposes Cone Herrmann on the Washington alleys at 7 o'clock. Herrmann is only two points behind Kastner. Kastner has a grand average of 209 for the 48 games rolled to date. Another feature will be the contest at 8:30 o'clock in which Ray Holmes, who last week defeated Eddie Krems of Chicago in an intercity match, opposes the veteran Ben Cohen.

The remainder of the schedule follows: 7 o'clock, Oscar Whitehead vs. Herman Hahn; Sam Garafolo vs. Ray Ziegler and Ray Newton vs. Lee Martin; 8:30 o'clock, Fred Krems vs. Roy Nelson; Hank Summers vs. Chris Sottrel and Harry Deen vs. Buzz Wilson.

Standings of the bowlers:

	Won.	Lost.	Average
Kastner	49	23	209
Hermann	47	25	201
Sottrel	46	26	206
Holmes	45	27	206
Nelson	43	19	204
Ziegler	42	30	204
Wilson	41	31	202
Krems	39	33	200
Deen	38	34	199
Whitehead	36	36	193
Cohen	35	37	209

WRAY'S Column

week, the boxing and wrestling campaign will launch its annual drive. A Mickey Walker-Johnny Risko fight starts the ball rolling next Tuesday; Jimmy Londos wrestles Zbyszko later in the week; golf championships get under way the following week, to be followed by the Carnera-Maloney fight and the Florida Derby, the first Derby of the year.

About the same time the coconaut world series will be played at Miami, with the Athletics and the Cardinals, rivals last October, in the title roles.

Either the Miami promotions are going to blow up like a punctured balloon, or the depression can't be as tough as advertised.

About Mickey

MICKEY WALKER is interesting several sections of the country. Chicago has just counted the "toy bulldog" out of a championship, the middleweight. New York, on the other hand, wants to have him defend his middleweight title against Vince Dundee or Len Harvey; but Florida has him already lined up and signed up in the role of a heavyweight.

That fight with Risko is designed to help prove that Mickey is a real heavyweight, deserving of a chance at Schmeling. In the meantime the middle and light-heavyweight classes are calling Mickey—calling hard names.

It seems right and proper that Walker should first dispose of the lighter classes either by defending his middleweight crown or resigning it, and then by opposing the pick of the light heavies and finding out whether he is really master of that division. A fighter who weighs 165 pounds and tries to hurdle to the unlimited weights, without first disposing of the 175-pound division, is naturally going to hear from Maxie Rosenbloom.

Out of the Running.

WALKER has no chance to get Schmeling—unless Stribling defeats Max, next June. Schmeling is engaged to meet Carnera, in case he wins from Stribling. That puts Walker out of the picture for the year 1931.

After his battle with Risko, Mickey will have to fall back on the middle or light-heavyweight class.

If Mickey can make the weight he certainly should step in and settle the tangle. Neither Dundee nor Harvey seems to be really of championship timber. After disposing of them, Rosenbloom will still be blocking Mickey's progress upward.

It is taken for granted that this little chunk of dynamite, Walker, will again beat Johnny Risko. The Akron "rubber man" has about reached his limit. The fight is a sort of warm-up for the bigger fistic treat, the Carnera-Maloney battle of March 5.

Moderate Expectations.

CARNERA and Maloney will figure in the third "battle of the palms." The two fights of 1929 and 1930 were under Madison Square Garden promotion and both proved to be frosts, from the standpoint of public appreciation. Stribling and Sharkey packed the Arena but ruined their reputations. It was a poor fight. The following year Sharkey figured in another flat-tire, with Phil Scott as his opponent.

Frank Bruen is promoting the Carnera event and it is being put on at a top of $15 as compared with $25 for the first year. The promoters' expectations are that a $200,000 house will be at ringside. The figure probably will be under that.

Better Than Willard.

THE interest which this massive athlete Primo excited on his last trip to this country has not abated. While he is no taller than was Jess Willard, 6 feet 7 inches, and perhaps weighed only a few pounds more, Carnera is much more of physical man than Willard was. Every ounce of Carnera's 260 pounds is trained, hard meat and muscle, on a tremendous frame. Willard always seemed sloppy and unathletic.

Good judges contend that the Willard who fought Johnson at Havana was a better boxer than Carnera. But the Willard this fighter saw in bouts with Dempsey and Firpo was no better at boxing than Carnera. He was not as shifty on his feet as Primo and he certainly lacked the tremendous resistance of this Italian man mountain.

Carnera, in spite of a fractured rib, ought to whip Maloney, this time, if only because the history of Maloney is one of ups and downs, and ins and outs. With him a defeat follows a victory and the reverse. The curse of inconsistency has throttled his career several times. He is due to defeat, if he runs true to form.

Robbie at Clearwater.

CLEARWATER, Fla., Feb. 21.—Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Brooklyn baseball club, arrived at spring training headquarters here today. He said all players' contracts were in except those of Dazzy Vance and Babe Herman.

U. S. DAVIS CUP TEAM WILL PLAY MEXICO IN MAY

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 21.—The first round of the North American zone Davis Cup matches will be played at Mexico City the first week in May between the teams from the United States and Mexico, the Mexican Davis Cup Committee announced today.

The agreement on the date was reached today through an exchange of cables with the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

The Mexican team will be composed of Ricardo Tapia and Alfonso Unda in the singles and Manuel Llano and Mariano Lozano in the doubles.

All except Lozano are veterans of last year's Davis Cup play.

The winner of the match between the United States and Mexico will play Canada and the winner of that match will play the South American zone winner for the right to play in the inter-zone finals and the honor of challenging France for the historic cup.

DEAN GIVES BRADENTON AN IDEA OF WHY HE IS CALLED "DIZZY"

ley Gelbert and Pitchers Flint Rhem, Paul Derringer, Bill Hallahan and Al Grabowski. Trainer Harrison J. Weaver has been here for a couple of months.

"Dean is the most promising young pitcher I ever saw," Jimmy Wilson said this afternoon.

"May the good Lord help us," is the way Doc Weaver sums up the Dean situation.

Derringer Has Bad Thumb.

It was learned today that Derringer narrowly escaped the loss of the thumb on his left hand, five weeks ago, when at Sarasota. He picked up a sand burr and one of the thorns stuck in his thumb. He thought he had extracted it, but a piece remained, blood poisoning set in and he spent three days in a hospital and the attending surgeon was on the point of amputating the thumb. The thumb is still swollen and is being dressed twice a day, but the danger is said to be passed. Derringer is having an aluminum plate made to protect the thumb so that he will be able to take part in training work along with the other Cardinal pitchers.

"I certainly was alarmed for a time," Derringer said. "Of course, it's not my throwing hand, but then the loss of the thumb would have interfered rather seriously with my fielding and I had visions for a time of looking for another means of making a living. But I'm on the way to recovery now and if hard work will mean anything, I'll be in great condition for this chance to do something in the big leagues."

A Star With Rochester.

Derringer first reported to the Cardinals in 1927. He was a green youngster then, but he had so much stuff that he was signed at Avon Park and since then has gone through the mill of the Cardinal chain store system. He is a level-headed young man, with good habits, a splendid physique and should be a regular with the Redbirds for many years. He has tremendous speed, fine curves and his control has improved steadily. He was a star with the Rochester (International League) champions last year.

Because of Dean's colorful record, not much has been said of Derringer, but the chances are good that Derringer will do far more for the 1931 Cardinals than the undependable Dean.

Dr. Weaver has been dolling up the ball park for spring training. He has purchased canvas backstops for the batting cages and painted them green, to improve the visibility for the pitchers, thus minimizing the danger of their being injured by batted balls. After an unusually cool winter the sun has been shining for the last two days here. The natives say it's time for warm weather to set in for spring and summer.

But this boy, Dean, nobody cares to say what he is going to do.

BEN McGOVERN AND PARTNER GET A BEATING AT HANDBALL

Ben McGovern, former boxer, and Capt. Durkin of Engine Co. No. 45 have long been proud of their prowess at handball but now they are not so sure of themselves for they took a neat trimming yesterday at the hands of Barney O'Reilly and Garry Byrnes of Engine Co. No. 7.

McGovern and Durkin lost in three straight games by scores of 21—7, 21—5, 21—8.

Ziegler Averages 247 but Loses Match to Cohen

Ray Ziegler, youthful star of the International Greyhounds, and Ben Cohen, veteran of the Congress Alley five, gave one of the greatest exhibitions of bowling ever seen anywhere in a 10-game match on the Wellston drives last night when the youngster shot 2478 pins for an average over 247 pins a game and his older opponent gathered a 2401 total for an average of slightly better than 240.

The 10-game setto was the concluding block of a 20-game match which Cohen won by 114 pins, having taken a lead last Tuesday night of 191 pins in the first block rolled on the Congress alleys. In that effort Cohen got 2187 pins for an average of better than 218 while Ziegler got a 1996 total for an average of slightly better than 199.

Last night's contest was an exhibition of almost perfect pocket shooting both bowlers getting their ball into the 1-3 objective with monotonous regularity for game after game. It was witnessed by one of the largest crowds to attend a bowling match here in recent years and the almost continuous succession of strikes by both bowlers kept the crowd in an uproar.

Ziegler's miss of a 6-9 leave in the second game was the only error for either bowler in the match. Johnny Fitzgerald, teammate of Ziegler, will engage Cohen in a similar match next week, the first block to be rolled Tuesday night at the Congress at 9 o'clock and the second at Wellston at 6 o'clock Saturday night.

The scores last night:

Ziegler 213 230 268 224 248 259 279 255 258 244—2478.

Cohen 199 258 202 280 279 238 247 235 246 217—2401.

A hand-picked team of baske ball stars from Bartlesville, Ok the Phillips team, considered o of the strongest amateur clubs the country, resorted to every d vice it knew and gave its la ounce of strength to nose out t smooth Lowe & Campbell team, to 18, at St. Louis University Gymnasium last night. A crowd about 2500, the largest that h gathered at the Pine street g this season, was treated to a pleasant surprise when it saw the loc team come within a few points victory when it fully expected t Phillips team to win by 10 point

The red-clad St. Louis club, ca tained by Verne Bradburn, fel short of victory not so much because of mechanical errors, but because the players are not at thei peak. One of the team's most resourceful stars, Ham Strong, wa not tightened up sufficiently t start the game and he had to be relieved in the second half at a tim when he was needed most. Bradburn, too, was hampered by a ba ankle. Oldfield and Mueller worke well enough as individuals but th did not coordinate as Oldfield an Strong do. The result left th enthusiastic crowd wondering ju how good the St. Louis team ma become if it gets four of five mor hard games with every man in hi place.

Phillips Gain Early Lead.

Largely because "Puss" Ralp connected on two shots from mid floor, Phillips gained an early lea and at half time the score wa tied at 9—9. Late in the second period it was knotted again at 1 and then, after the 6 foot 4 inc Mullican tipped in a couple fro right under the basket, Strong an Oldfield slipped through for tw perfect field goals for the fina points of the game. The game wa played at a killing pace an Reeves, of Phillips had to as Coach Wilke to relieve him for th reason that he was exhausted.

Both teams missed set-up sho but the average of successful tri was very high. There were remarkably few bad passes and intentional fouls were almost ni Phillips was charged with 11 personal fouls and Bradburn's tea with only six. Some of those mad by the visitors were made as matter of self-preservation when guard grabbed an arm only t prevent a field goal. The St. Lou players missed their free shots fi times and scored eight times.

Mullican Outjumps Bradburn.

After Ralph had given his tea an early lead with his pot shot he was held scoreless for the remainder of the game, which ma prove that he was a bit lucky t get away with his two scores. Mullican, on the other hand, was no much of a factor in the first hal but he practically won the gam in the second period with his thre field goals. He outjumped Bradburn on the tip-off at center every time, a circumstance whic gave Phillips a decided advantage. Renfro, who relieved Ralp was an outstanding star althoug he was one of the smallest me on the floor. Floyd Burke, on of the best men in the Philli squad, was unable to play becaus of an injury suffered at Kansa City Friday night when the K. C A. C. team beat the Oklahoma boy 32 to 18.

Equipoise is still a red-hot winter-book favorite to win the Kentucky Derby; but although the entries announced yesterday show that Jamestown and his conqueror, Epithet, two standouts of the 1930 juvenile campaign, will not be among the starters, there is no doubt about the quality of competition which the Whitney crack will have to overcome. All the capable racing youngsters of last season are expected to go into training for the event next May, which means that Twenty Grand, Mate, Don Leon, the unbeaten Vander Pool, Siskin, Insco, Knight's Call, Prince d'Amour and more than a dozen other stake winners will be campaigning for the rich stake. Mate, Vander Pool and Twenty Grand own victories over Equipoise, so there is no proof of invincibility in the record of Equipoise.

That he is a horse of class his record shows. He started 16 times and was out of the money only twice, winning eight victories and finishing second five times and once third. He won the staggering total of $156,000 as a 2-year-old. He runs equally well on wet and dry tracks; carries weight well and can come from behind to win, indicating a liking for a route.

Remember Whichone's Case.

Racing followers will remember that Whichone, owned by Harry Payne Whitney, was an even greater standout for 3-year-old honors than Equipoise of the C. V. Whitney stable is this year. But along came Gallant Fox and Whichone was eclipsed.

The prospect of a 1931 Gallant Fox developing is good. It would be no huge surprise if some of the good 3-year-olds unexpectedly rose to heights greater than they had shown as 2-year-olds and eclipsed the Equipoises and Jamestown of 2-year-old fame.

Sir Gallahad III, whose offspring, Gallant Fox, caused such an amazing overthrow of pre-season form last year, has three sons bidding for honors. They are Ormesby and Sir Ashley, owned by William Woodward, proprietor of Gallant Fox, and Insco, owned by Griff Watkins of Alton, Ill. Ormesby is a stake winner with 12 starts and three victories. Sir Ashley is not proved as yet; but Insco—there's the boy they will be watching. There will be plenty of betting on Insco, the name of which indicates International Shoe Co., of which Watkins is an official. Fans remember the plunge that sent Tannery from 50 to 1 down to 4 to 1. The plunge was wasted. Insco is a better nag than Tannery. He started seven times as a 2-year-old and won four races, taking the Post and Paddock stakes for his best effort. Then his feet failed and he was retired for a complete rest. He is reported sound and ready for hard training. He will be prepped at Churchill Downs. His price is now 10 to 1, indicating that he is respected.

Don Leon Won Many Races.

Don Leon, winner of many races, is another that has shown consistently high form and Mate gave Equipoise a fair and square beating in one struggle, coming from behind to take the measure of the Whitney colt.

Twenty Grand is unlikely to prove a Gallant Fox unless he should run all his races on a fast track. He is a real speed merchant on dry going, and ran the fastest mile ever stepped by a 2-year-old when he defeated Equipoise a nose in the Kentucky Jockey Club event in 1:36.

Vander Pool apparently is entitled to consideration, since he started 11 times and won 11 races. Equipoise finished behind him. But horsemen have not taken Vander Pool seriously, as it is the unanimous view that he is a sprinter, not a distance horse. Of the horses from which most can be expected for the coming year, omitting Jamestown and Epithet, undoubtedly Equipoise, Mate, Twenty Grand, Don Leon and Insco must be looked to for the sensations.

But from the long list of entries it is not improbable that a horse of real merit will develop. Prince d'Amour is one of these. E. R. Bradley, famous producer of Derby timber, has only two strings to his bow this year, B'ar Hunter and Barometer, the former by Black Servant and the last named by Traumer. Apparently, Bradley is out of the hunt, despite his B'ar Hunter.

Broken Rib and All, He's Going to Fight

Primo Carnera, on the right above, is shown working out at Miami with Walter Cobb, his stable mate. Carnera was examined Friday and X-ray pictures showed a greenstick fracture of the ribs. Nevertheless he has been ordered to fight Jim Maloney on March 5 as scheduled.

Kentucky Derby Entries and Their Future Book Prices

FOLLOWING are the Kentucky Derby entries, officially announced yesterday, arranged alphabetically with the future book quotations as prepared by Tom Kearney, local betting commissioner. The odds reflect the various chances of the entries according to the professional viewpoint. The Derby will be run May 16, at Churchill Downs, Louisville, at one and one quarter miles.

200 Marksmen Compete in Rifle Meet at Kemper

By the Associated Press.

BOONVILLE, Mo., Feb. 21.—East High School, Kansas City, Mo.; Kemper Military School, Boonville, Mo.; University of Iowa and the University of Wichita girls' teams were returned the winners in Kemper Military School's second annual rifle tournament held here today. More than 200 marksmen representing 18 schools from five states were in attendance.

Kemper was assisted in staging the event by the National Rifle Association and the State Rifle Association, these organizations furnishing a majority of the prizes. Ranking army officials of the Middle West also gave aid.

The results follow:

HIGH SCHOOL EVENT—East High School, Kansas City, Mo., 709 points, first; Central High School, Kansas City, Mo., 699 points, second; Southwest High School, Kansas City, Mo., 694 points, third.

BASIC R. O. T. C. EVENT—Kemper Military Academy first team, 724 points, first; University of Missouri second team, 716 points, second; Kemper Military Academy second team, 712 points, third.

ADVANCED R. O. T. C. EVENT—University of Iowa, 750 points, first; University of Nebraska, 707 points, second; University of Missouri, 699 points, third.

GIRLS' EVENT—University of Wichita, 385 points, first; Kansas State Agricultural College, 384 points, second; University of Kansas second team, 380 points, third.

INVENTED TRICK PLAY.

The hidden-ball trick was used for the first time in football during a game between Auburn and Vanderbilt at Nashville, Tenn., in 1895, Reynolds Tichenor, Auburn quarterback, scoring on the play.

TRAINING SEASON FINDS CARDS RATED HIGH AND BROWNS LOW

shortstop. He was erratic in 1929 and didn't strike his best stride until midseason last year. He appears now to have arrived as a major league star and the other Redbirds expect him to be the outstanding major league shortstop of 1931.

The Cardinals, then, appear to have a stronger pitching staff, a better infield and more talent in the outfield. The one outstanding weakness is the lack of a capable utility infielder to replace Frisch, Gelbert or Adams in case of injury. This weakness may be corrected by trade or purchase and friends of the team hope that Sam Breadon and Branch Rickey will do something along that line.

Browns Rebuilding.

It is impossible to paint a rosy picture of the Brownies' prospects. Only eight pitchers are on the roster and no important additions have been made to the team that finished sixth in the 1930 race. Bill Killefer will depend largely on young infielders from the Wichita Falls club of the Texas League. Irving Burns is regarded as the favorite for first base, to replace Lu Blue. Blue will go to camp, but unless Burns blows up, Blue probably will be traded, sold or given his unconditional release. In other words, the Browns are "mad to Blue."

Lin Storti, second sacker from Wichita Falls, is considered a standout among the newcomers, but he will have a tough job on his hands, as Oscar Melillo, the Brownie second baseman of 1930, is one of the real stars of Killefer's club. The other Texas Leaguer is Jim Levey, shortstop, who has shown enough to cause Killefer to shift Red Kress to third base.

Killefer will have only 27 men on his training camp roster and one of the outfielders listed is Fred Bennett, who may be so tangled up in legal red tape that he won't be able to play anything but the piccolo. Other newcomers are Larry Bettencourt, outfielder from Wichita Falls; Frank Waddey, fly chaser drafted from Memphis, and Russell Young, catcher from Milwaukee.

If all the youngsters should come through for Killefer the Browns might make a lot of noise in the championship race, but they'll need help. Last season they finished 38 games behind the pennant-winning Athletics, and if that isn't leaving you with a headache you're a tough hombre, Dodderidge, old thing.

WESTERN MILITARY FIVES WIN THREE CONTESTS IN THE ABC LEAGUE

In five "ABC" League basketball games played yesterday, the Western Military Academy defeated the John Burroughs School "A", "B" and "C" teams, while Principia and Country Day broke even on their "B" and "C" games. The Alton cadets defeated the Burroughs "A" five, 33 to 30; the "B's" 60 to 16, and the "C's" 23 to 15. The Principia "B" team beat Country Day 20 to 3, while the Principia midgets retaliated by trampling the Page avenue "C" five, 23 to 12.

In the Burroughs-Western "A" game it was necessary to play two extra periods to decide the game.

As a result of this week-end games, Country Day has assumed first place in the "A" and "C" divisions while Western is in undisputed leadership of the "B" teams.

NORTHWESTERN, AGAIN IN FORM, DEFEATS IOWA

IOWA CITY, Ia., Feb. 21.—Northwestern returned to winning form tonight and scored its eighth Big Ten basketball victory in nine starts at the expense of Iowa by a 40 to 30 score.

The Hawkeyes, rated as underdogs, staged a furious battle before succumbing to the Wildcats' superior power in the final period. Iowa tied the score twice in the first half and were only two points behind at the end of the session.

Northwestern hit a faster gait in the second half and ran the score to 29 to 19, before the Hawkeyes could score. The Wildcat defense functioned much better in this period and held Iowa to three field goals.

Michigan Wins, Takes Third Place.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Feb. 21.—Michigan moved into third place in the Big Ten basketball race by defeating Indiana, 33 to 24, here tonight. The game was close until well into the second half when Michigan advanced from a 19-all tie to a 29 to 20 lead. The Hoosiers were never able to get in consistently from this point, although at one time two baskets by Miller in succession brought them to within four points. Indiana was ahead, 13 to 12, at half time.

Minnesota Wins Over Ohio State, 22-21.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 21.—The swift moving University of Minnesota team won a 22—21 victory over the Ohio State Buckeyes in a Big Ten basketball game here tonight.

A determined rally by Ohio State in the final minutes of play almost overcame the lead of the winners. Fesler starred for the Buckeyes and Schoening for Minnesota.

Illinois Defeats Chicago, 45 to 20.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Feb. 21.—Operating at the same clip that enabled it to hand Northwestern its first defeat of the Big Ten basketball season, Illinois tonight smothered Chicago, 45 to 20.

The triumph was Illinois' fourth in nine games, and while it did not put the Illini back in the running for the title, it was a big help to Harper in the individual scorers' column. The Illinois leader accounted for 14 points and was all over the floor.

Miles to Meet Shirley Tomorrow At Croatian A. C.

Forty-six entries have been received for tomorrow night's amatuer boxing show at the Croation Hall, 1439 Chouteau, Matchmaker Tom Pivac announced last night.

The card wil be composed of five special bouts and a like number of supporting matches.

Johnny Miles, clever South Broadway A. C. heavyweight, who recently scored three successive victories over Les Schulte, National A. A. U. junior heavyweight champion, battles Charley Shirley, husky E. K. A. C. fighter, in one of the special bouts. Miles formerly fought as a middleweight and a light heavyweight. In the light heavyweight division he won the district championship. He has yet to be beaten since he has been campaigning as a heavyweight. Shirley is a big, scrapping battler who has been taking part in amateur bouts for nearly two years.

Bargello, Agua Caliente Stake Entry, Defeated by Martis at New Orleans

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 21.—Bargello, C. V. Whitney's candidate for the $100,000 Agua Caliente Handicap, met defeat for the first time since returning to the races when he finished far back of Dewey Bentham's Martis in the Old Hickory Purse at Jefferson Park today.

The Whitney 5-year-old made his first appearance a week ago after being away from the track for nearly two years and won easily.

Today, however, he finished fourth in a field of six, as the Colgate Stable's Blimp and George Collins' Thistle Ann followed the Bentham representative to the wire.

With Eugene James in the saddle, Bargello was made the odds-on favorite at 50 cents on the dollar, while Martis returned $20.20 for $2.

At the finish of the six furlongs Martis held a three-length lead over Blimp, while Thistle Ann was a neck back in third place.

DENNY SHUTE'S 142 TAKES LEAD AT PENSACOLA

By the Associated Press.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Feb. 21.—Denny Shute, Columbus, O., professional, today shot two fine rounds of golf for a 36-hole total of 142 to lead the field at the half mark in the 72-hole Pensacola $3000 open tournament.

Shute burned up the Country Club course in his morning round for a 69, two under par, but ran into difficulties in the afternoon to finish with 73. His card showed four birdies for the first round and two for the afternoon.

Except for Shute's 69 in the morning, a similar score by Wiffy Cox of Brooklyn, in the second round and Tony Manero's 70, this lengthly course held its par barrier unbroken.

Two links masters from Chicago, Al Espinosa and Harry Cooper, coupled a pair of steady rounds of 71 and 72 for 143 and a tie for second place.

Horton Smith of New York turned in a 71 this morning, but slumped back to 73 in the second round and finished with 144, which tied him with Wiffy Cox.

The standings of the leaders at the end of 36 holes:

Denny Shute, Columbus, O.	69-73—142
Al Espinosa, Chicago	71-72—143
Harry Cooper, Chicago	71-72—143
Horton Smith, New York	71-73—144
Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn	75-69—144
Willie MacFarlane, Tuckahoe, N. Y.	73-72—145
Johnny Farrell, St. Augustine	72-73—145
Craig Wood, Deal, N. J.	74-72—146
Frank Walsh, Chicago	75-73—148
Ben Weichman, Ashland, Ky.	74-75—149
Lew Waldron, Chicago	73-76—149
Herman Barron, Port Chester, N. Y.	74-75—149
Abe Espinosa, Chicago	76-73—149
Tony Manero, New York	79-70—149
Charles Guest, Detroit, Mich.	76-73—149
Ralph Guldahl, Dallas	72-78—150
Dave Ogilvie Jr., Augusta, Ga.	72-79—151
John Golden, Noroton, Conn.	80-72—152
Tony Penna, Pensacola	78-74—152
Mike Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y.	76-77—153

STELLA WALSH HURT, WON'T RUN TOMORROW

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 21.—Stella Walsh, holder of numerous womens' track and field records, will be unable to compete in the Illinois military and naval games at Chicago Monday, because of a strained tendon, her trainer announced tonight. It is expected she will be in condition for the National indoor championships at Boston March 14, however.

MUNICIPAL SOCCER TEAMS PLAY SEMI-FINALS IN TITLE SERIES TODAY

ST. MATTHEWS TO OPPOSE CORRYS; SCHENBERGS TO MEET COOK A. C.

By Dent McSkimming.

The way to the final in the Municipal Soccer League this season is no stroll through a field of buttercups. In the first round, the Schenbergs fought an uphill battle to beat the Gebkens, 2 to 1. Last Sunday they advanced another stride when they again overcame a lead, to defeat the Longos, 3 to 2, and as a reward for all this, they find themselves confronted with the very capable Cook A. C. team this afternoon. If they get past today's hurdle they will only have to beat the St. Matthews or the Corry A. C., and that's apt to prove the toughest job of all.

Municipal League authorities have scheduled the Schenberg-Cook game as the second portion of today's double-header at Fairground Park. They anticipate a close contest. The St. Matthews, on the other hand, are expected to win rather easily from the Corry A. C., in the opening game. In order to provide plenty of daylight in the event of extra periods, the first game is scheduled to start at 1:15 p. m. Two referees will be on the field in each game, assuring a well officiated match.

No Managers on the Field.

It is also promised that managers, assistant managers, trainers, chief rooters and towel wielders will not be permitted to run on the field to bawl out the referee whenever a decision doesn't please them, as happened last Sunday, to the disgust of about 7000 spectators. Muny League managers could do their teams more good if they would detach themselves from their chief rooters and watch the game from a good vantage point (not behind the goal). They'd have plenty to do between halves correcting the errors of their own players without worrying about how the referee is doing his job. For, boy, the players are making mistakes enough to disgrace any manager.

As to the chances of the semi-finalists, it is difficult to say whether the Matthews will meet the Cooks or the Schenbergs next Sunday. The Cook team, while it has been weakened by the loss of Center Halfback Ed Gallagher, who graduated to the professional league at the start of the season, is still one of the best the Muny League has had in years. Last Sunday the Cooks beat Danny Murphy's well-coached Dolan Club, 3 to 1. A very muddy field hampered both teams and greatly reduced the effectiveness of the Cooks' passing game.

Schenberg Defense Weak.

If the Schenbergs are to go on to win the title they must strengthen their defense. There was virtually no agreement whatever between the wing halfbacks and the fullbacks last Sunday, as to which should cover the opposing wing men. The fullbacks gave too much attention to playing the man. The covering of opponents on a throw-in was very poor. The right halfback, McLaughlin, was out of position about 75 per cent of the time, taking it upon himself to play center half as well as his own position, with the result that he wasted enough energy to last a player two full games.

An admission charge of 25 cents will be made.

SEMIFINAL ROUND

1:15 P. M.

Corry A. C. vs. St. Matthew Seniors.

Referees—Dick Wall and Danny Barnard.

Linesmen—Lonnie Robbins and Ollie Miller; Bill King and Joe Danaher.

3:15 P. M.

Schenbergs vs. Cook A. C.

Referees—John Cradock and Nick Reidy.

Linesmen—Harry Donavan and Willie Brady; Charley De Witt and Cliff Brady.

Place—Grounds No. 2, Fairground Park.

Admission charge, 25 cents.

Millers Meet Tablers Today

The Ben Millers and Tablers will play the "rubber" game of their series in the St. Louis Soccer League race at Sportsman's Park this afternoon. They have met five times in league games this season, each winning twice and tying the other match. In goals scored, the Tablers have the better record, 13 to 7. In their only other game, a national challenge cup match, the Millers won, 5 to 3.

In the second game today, the Hellrungs oppose the Coca-Colas. In league matches, the Hellrungs have won three times and the Coca-Colas twice. In their cup game, Phil Kavanaugh's boys snowed the Hellrungs under an 8-2 score.

If the Millers and Coca-Colas win, all four teams will be tied with 16 points each. Len Zeuschel and Oscar Mossmann will be the referees.

BECK ROLLS 299 GAME AT CONGRESS ALLEYS

Ernie Beck, rolling with the Champion Score Book team in the Congress Handicap League, on the Congress alleys, missed a perfect game by a single pin in league play last week. Beck scored 11 straight strikes but his twelfth hit was a little full and he left the 4 pin standing for a 299 game. Beck shot 266 in the first game, and then scored 299 and 196 for a 761 total, which is a new league record.

Rolling in the same league the week previous, Beck had a 297 game and a 729 total. In the 297 game his twelfth ball was a "brooklyn" hit and he left the 6 and 10 pins up.

He will receive a silver medal from the American Bowling Congress for his 299 game.

Geometry for Goalkeepers; How to Score a Free Kick

By Andy Wilson.
Of Scotland and Chelsea.

WHEN I started this series of football lessons I said that I should go over all my points and explain in detail the needs of different positions and why they are essential. I am assisted in that promise by many requests for explanations.

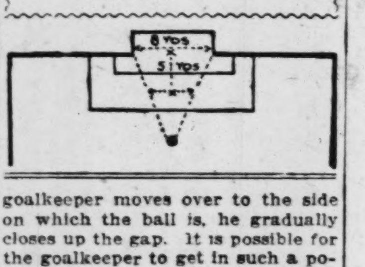
I have been asked to explain why leaving one's goal is essential to stop an oncoming forward. The explanation, of course, is that of narrowing the angle and it appears to me that I can best show this by use of a diagram. Study the diagram given. The cross in goal shows the position of the goalkeeper on his line. He has the whole eight yards to defend, a very wide area you will agree for the opposing forward, shown by a circle, to place the ball.

Now note the dotted line running from the forward to the goal posts. If he keeps his shot inside those lines the ball will enter the net if the goalkeeper fails to save. You have three sides of the triangle, with the poor goalkeeper defending the base. But if he leaves his goal and gets nearer to the forward he has less space to cover, yet actually protects the same goal area. In my diagram I show the goalkeeper in a second position, where he has advanced from the goal. He has now only three yards to cover, and the forward, instead of having eight yards at which to shoot, has now only three.

By the way, I am merely using probable figures. I have not worked out the problem correctly, so do not write to me saying that as I give the diagram the goalkeeper has four yards or two and a half yards to cover. This much is certain, the nearer the goalkeeper gets to the forward the easier is his chance to save.

It is very much the same rule with regard to covering one's goal when the ball is on the wing, except that in this case the goalkeeper must not leave his line. There is eight yards at which to shoot when the ball is directly in front of goal, but there is less as the position moves over to the wing. The opening becomes narrower and if the goalkeeper moves over to the side on which the ball is, he gradually closes up the gap. It is possible for the goalkeeper to get in such a position that it is impossible for the ball to score.

Reduce the Area



The Throw In.

Another correspondent points out that I have not said much about the throw in, except to explain how to get length and the advantage of speed. Unless the throw is taken quickly it does not matter much, except when it is down at the opponents' end and you can take advantage of the fact that a player cannot be offside following a throw in. Even then, speed is all essential.

There is, however, a way of utilizing the throw in and it can be worked by any team. The man who throws the ball in should send it to one of his colleagues in a gentle manner. It can either be thrown for heading or kicking, but the object is for the man who receives the ball to send it back to the thrower. The thrower then hits the ball first time into the midde.

It is a pass and return pass and it can be very useful when down near the opposing goal line, for then a center is gained. It is well to remember, however, that the return pass to the thrower can place him offside. It is only the player who receives the ball from the thrower who cannot be offside following a throw in.

FINAL GAMES TODAY IN EAST ST. LOUIS MUNY SOCCER LEAGUE

The East St. Louis Municipal Soccer League finals will be played this afternoon at Jones Park, when the Lansdownes oppose the Fairmounts in the first game and the French Villagers meet the Dauers in the nightcap. The first game will be called at 2 o'clock.

The point standings of the teams follow: Dauers 11, Fairmounts 10, French Village 8, Lansdowne 2.

Mrs. Hurd Wins Title.

By the Associated Press.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Feb. 21.—Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd of Philadelphia, former United States champion, easily defeated Mrs. Maud Ross of Ottawa, 7 and 6, in the 36-hole final round of the Belmont Manor women's golf tournament here today. Mrs. Hurd took a lead of four up in the first five holes of the match and was out in 36 strokes. Her lead was shaved to three holes at the eighteenth but Mrs. Ross could not match the American's fine brand of play in the afternoon round.

Browns Sign Collegian.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 21.—Scott Pullen, Georgia Tech shortstop, has signed a contract with the St. Louis Browns. He will report to Wichita Falls.

IN MEMORIAM

CZERNIEWSKI—In loving memory of our dear mother, Magdaline Czerniewski, who died Feb. 20, 1930:

The depths of our sorrow
We cannot tell
At the loss of our dear mother
We loved so well.
Sadly missed by

HER CHILDREN.

FORSTER—In memory of our dear mother, Lydia Forster, who passed away Feb. 20, 1920.

Sadly missed by

HER DAUGHTER AND SON AND ALL WHO LOVED HER. (c)

FREISE—Frederick Freise Jr., in loving memory of our dear brother and brother-in-law, who fell asleep in Jesus Feb. 26, 1922. Sadly missed by

DR. AND MRS. W. A. KLUEGEL. (c)

GOSSTTE—In the memory of my dear husband, Sam Gosstte, who passed away one year ago, Feb. 25, 1930:

Thinking of the days we spent together,
To have to love and then to part
Is the greatest sorrow of my heart.
The years may wipe out many things,
But this they wipe out never.
The memory of those happy days
When we were all together.
Sadly missed by

WIFE, DAUGHTER, SISTER AND MOTHER-IN-LAW.

GROTPETER—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Elmer W. Grotpeter who was called home six years ago, Feb. 23, 1925:

A happy home we once enjoyed;
We loved Elmer but God loved him more.
The golden gates were open,
The gentle voice said, "Come."
So Elmer sweetly entered home.
Sadly missed by

HIS PARENTS, SISTER, BROTHER-IN-LAW AND NIECE. (c)

GROSS—In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. Jennie Gross, who departed this life 3 years ago, Feb. 25, 1928. Sadly missed by her daughter and all who loved her.

MRS. JOSEPH A. BACHMANN AND FAMILY. (c)

HACKER—In loving memory of our dear father, William Hacker, who died Feb. 24, 1921:

At twilight when twilight hour draws near
And sunset flames the sky,
We think of you, dear father,
And the happy days gone by.
Thoughts of you come drifting back
Within our dreams to stay
To know that you are resting
When the twilight ends the day.
Sadly missed by WIFE AND CHILDREN.

HAUSDORF—In memory of Edward Hausdorf, who died Feb. 19, 1925:

It is sweet to be remembered
And a pleasant thing to find,
Although you may be absent
You still are kept in mind.
Sadly missed by

CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

HAUSDORN—In memory of Edward Hausdorn, died Feb. 19, 1925.

It is sweet to be remembered
And a pleasant thing to find
Although you may be absent,
Still are kept in mind.
Sadly missed by

CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN. (c)

HUNT—Margaret, who died Feb. 21, 1926:

Five years have passed;
Oh, how we miss you mother, dear.
Friends may think the wound is healed,
Little do they know our sorrow
That lies within our hearts concealed.

HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

JOKERST—In loving memory of my dear wife and our dear daughter, Marie A. Jokerst, who departed this life Feb. 19, 1925:

She lives with us in memory
And will for evermore.
Sadly missed by

HUSBAND, MOTHER AND FATHER.

KAUFMAN—In memory of our dear mother, Magdalena Kaufman, who departed Feb 22, 1928. Sadly missed by

CHILDREN AND SISTER.

KIENLE—In memory of our dear parents, David and Magdelina Kiele, who died, mother on Feb. 1, 1903, father Feb. 16, 1924.

No one knows how much we miss you;
No one knows the bitter pain
We have suffered since we lost you—
Life has never been the same.

DAUGHTERS.

KUHLMANN—In sad but loving memory of my dear husband, Fred L. Kuhlmann, who died Feb. 25, 1930:

The face I loved is now laid low,
His loving voice is still,
The hand so often clasped in mine
Lies now in death's cold chill.
I often sit and think of him
When I am all alone,
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.
Sadly missed by his wife,

OLGA KUHLMANN.

Requiem Mass, St. John the Baptist Church, Feb. 24, 8:30 a. m.

KUNZ—In loving memory of our dear mother, Theresa Kunz, who departed this life one year ago, Feb. 20, 1930:

Dear mother, you are not forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more;
Still in memory you are with us
As you always were before.
Sadly missed by

HER DAUGHTERS AND GRANDCHILDREN.

KUSS—In loving memory of Charles Leslie Kuss, who entered his heavenly home 14 years ago, Feb. 22.

Not lost to the ones that loved him,
But only gone on before
To the beautiful Isle of Somewhere,
Where parting is no more.
Sadly missed by

PARENTS.

MAURER—In loving memory of my dear husband, Jacob Maurer, who departed this life one year ago, Feb. 21, 1930.

Sad was the time when you were called from us and lonely was our home and hearts, but God, our judge, He knows best, so He took you home to rest.

Sadly missed by

IN MEMORIAM

LANEMANN—In loving memory of our dear mother, Henrietta Lanemann, who passed away Feb. 23, 1930:

No one knows how much we miss you;
No one knows the bitter pain
We have suffered—since we lost you
Life has never been the same.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly tender, fond and true;
There is not a day, dear mother,
That we do not think of you.
Sadly missed by

HER CHILDREN.

MAY—In loving remembrance of our darling son and brother, Charles O. May, who departed this life 10 years ago on Feb. 23, 1921:

And while he lies in peaceful sleep
His memory we shall always keep.
Sadly missed by

PARENTS AND BROTHER, JACK.

MEADE, CORA—In loving memory of our dear mother, who departed this life Feb. 24, 1928:

We are thinking of you today, dear mother,
thinking of the past;
Picturing you in memory, just as we saw you last.
You left behind some broken hearts that loved you so sincere,
That never did, or never will, forget you, mother dear.
Sadly missed by

HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

METZGER—In memory of my husband Michael Metzger, who died Feb. 20, 1929

WIFE AND CHILDREN.

When our dear 'Stasia was called away.
Sadly missed by

HER PARENTS, SISTERS AND BROTHERS.

NIEMAN-ROLVES—In loving memory of our dear mother, Alice Nieman, who departed this life Feb. 22, 1917:

Remembering is a golden chain
Death tries to break, but all in vain.
To have, to love, and then part
Is the greatest sorrow of our heart.
Sadly missed by

DAUGHTERS, SONS, SON-IN-LAW, SISTER AND ALL WHO LOVED HER.

RAEDNER—In loving memory of Kate Raedner, who departed this life Feb. 20, 1930:

Dear mother, you are not forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more.
Still in memory you are with us
As you always were before.

CHILDREN.

SCHIELER—In memory of my dear husband, Fred H. Schieler, died Feb. 23, 1930:

Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
The world's worried troubles and trials are past;
In silence he suffered, in patience he bore
Till God called him home to suffer no more.
Sadly missed by his wife,

MRS. OLGA (Helligstedt) SCHIELER.

SCHULTE—In loving memory of Catherine Schulte, my dear, wife, who passed away Feb. 17, 1930.

Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
The world's weary trouble and trials are past
In silence she suffered
In patience she bore,
Till God caller her home
To suffer no more.

ARTHUR C. SCHULTE.

SCHWARTZ—In memory of our dear wife and mother, Elisa Schwartz, whom God has called February, 1930:

Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days;
Sincere and true, her heart and mind,
Beautiful memories she left behind.
Sadly missed by

HER HUBSBAND AND CHILDREN AND ALL WHO LOVED HER. (c)

SHANNON—Nellie Shannon (nee O'Brien), departed one year Feb. 28, 1930;

HELP WANTED—MEN, BOYS

Stop Worrying About Money

Here's a Wonderful Opportunity to Make

$15 a Day

Yes, here's a chance to start right in making $15 in a day. You can have money to pay your bills, to buy new house furnishings, new clothes, a radio, take pleasure trips, etc. Wouldn't you like to enjoy these things—to make more money than you've ever made in your life before?

Made $125 in a Week

Just send me your name—that's all. I'll tell you about L. C. Van Allen, of Illinois, who reports profits of $125 in a single week. Karnath, of Minnesota, cleared $20.35 the FIRST 5 HOURS. Mrs. Hodges, of New York, says, "Making more money than ever before—from $18 to $20 a day." Of course some of my people make more than others. But these big earnings of a few of my Representatives show the wonderful opportunities my new plan offers. And right now I am ready to make you a proposition EVEN BETTER than the one I gave these people.

No Capital or Experience Needed

You positively don't need any capital, training or experience. You simply act as my Representative in your locality and look after my interests there. All you have to do is call on your friends and my established customers and take care of their orders for my fast-selling line of Groceries, Toilet Articles and other Household Necessities. You alone get the profit on all orders from these customers. Those in your territory MUST order from you because I never sell through stores. Last year my Representatives made nearly TWO MILLION DOLLARS. Now I'm giving YOU a chance to share in these enormous profits.

Ford Tudor Sedan Without Cost

If you want ready cash—if you want an opportunity to make $10 to $15 in a day STARTING AT ONCE—send the coupon for full particulars of my wonderful new plan. Start in spare time if you want to. Oscar Stuart, of W. Virginia, reports $18 profits in 2½ hours' spare time. This shows the remarkable possibilities. Here's an opportunity that's too good to miss. Write today and I'll also tell you how you can get a brand-new Ford Tudor Sedan as an extra reward or bonus—IN ADDITION to your large cash profits. Don't miss this wonderful opportunity. Don't lose a moment. Mail the coupon NOW!

DOAK ASKS AID FOR HIS BILL INSTEAD OF SENATOR WAGNER'S

Garner Joins LaGuardia in Demanding Passage of Original Employment Measure.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Secretary Doak renewed his advocacy of a substitute for the Wagner employment exchange bill tonight as House Democratic Leader Garner joined Representative LaGuardia, (Rep.), New York, in demanding passage of the original bill.

The Wagner bill would provide Federal aid to states for jointly supported, Federally supervised employment agencies. The substitute would authorize $1,500,000 for co-operation with state agencies in advancing employment. Doak appealed to Congress to support his measure. He said:

"It is my belief that the substitute bill presents a common ground upon which all may meet."

Garner said the Wagner bill was one of a legislative program he had sponsored from the beginning of this session. Adoption of the substitute, when the question comes up on Monday would send the matter back to the Senate, where it would encounter opposition from Wagner.

ARRESTED FOR FORGING FATHER'S MONEY ORDER

Leonard Glass Is Said to Have Confessed to U. S. Postoffice Inspectors.

A Federal warrant was issued yesterday against Leonard Glass, 21 years old, charging him with forging a signature on a postal money order, after postal authorities had traced to him the cashing of a $17 order remitted by his father, Max Glass, a bookbinder, living at the Ambassador Hotel, Sixth and Lucas streets.

The elder Glass had sent the order in payment of a bill, but because of an incorrect address, the letter was returned to him at the hotel. His son is charged with forging an indorsement on the order and cashing it at a downtown department store, a charge, the officers say, he has admitted.

Learning that the order had gone astray by nonpayment of the bill, the postal investigators found how it had been cashed and from a description furnished by an employe of the store, arrested Glass. Glass had been recently discharged on a parole by Federal Judge Davis for a violation of the Dyer act.

CONFESSED KILLER TO BE TRIED HERE FOR BANK HOLDUP

Negro Will Not Be Sent to Chicago Where He Shot Bootlegger Till Prosecuted in St. Louis.

Frank Taylor, Negro cabaret entertainer who admitted yesterday that he was wanted in Chicago for murder, will have to stand trial here for the $6300 robbery of the Easton-Taylor Trust Co. last Thursday, the police announced yesterday.

Taylor admitted to the police that he shot and killed a Negro bootlegger known to him as "Jimmy" during a quarrel at 3242 Prairie avenue, Chicago, three weeks ago. After learning that such a shooting had taken place, however, the police decided not to let Taylor out of their control until he had been prosecuted for the bank robbery.

Zelather Taylor, brother of the dapper Frank, is held with him at Police Headquarters, while Frank Dandridge, Negro named by them as their accomplice in the robbery, is held in Chicago for return to St. Louis. Police are seeking the fourth of the holdup group, which was led by Frank Taylor.

"Wanted Worthwhile Dough."

Frank Taylor told Police Lieut. Ira Cooper, Negro detective, that he planned the holdup because he "wanted some worthwhile dough." He had come to St. Louis, he said, to search for his wife, who had left him. When he became short of funds he decided to rob a bank. The trust company was his selection.

"After I had picked out the bank," he said, "I wrote my brother Slick to come down here from Chicago and he came with Dandridge and the fourth man. We discovered we were short on rods (pistols) so we went over to East St. Louis and bought us another.

"We followed out the plan I laid for the robbery. Dandridge and I got out of the car first. Dandridge was to see that the hallway was clear of policemen and then to get back out and wait for us in the machine.

"I went into the banking room with a brief case. I was there two or three minutes, when Slick and the fourth man came in. Then I pulled out my rod and told everybody to stick 'em up. Slick and the fourth man cleaned out the cages the best they could and we ran to the car. Dandridge drove us to the hotel.

How Money Was Divided.

"We had agreed that the fellows that had the most debts were to get the most money. We didn't divide it exactly. I figured I got about $1000, and I didn't think we got more than $5000 altogether in the holdup."

Neither of the Taylors were willing to admit he was the one who exchanged shots with Detective Sergt. Thomas Hunt, who ran from the Deer Street Police Station, two blocks from the bank, when the burglar alarm sounded, and fired six shots at the fleeing robbers.

As has been told, Lieut. Cooper found the robbers by a process of deduction. Reasoning, from the fact they had an Illinois license, that they were Illinois Negroes, he decided they would probably go to a hotel with garage adjoining, to have their car handy for a getaway.

The Booker Washington Hotel at 203 North Jefferson avenue fitted that description. "Slick" Taylor was captured in his room there but Frank and a third man escaped by jumping out the window. A canvass of taxicab drivers disclosed they had gone to Centralia, where Frank was arrested.

ALFRED L. KIEL, BROTHER OF FORMER MAYOR, DIES

Succumbs Eight Days After Heart Attack; Was in Plumbing Business Nearly 30 Years.

Alfred L. Kiel, 58 years old, who had been in the plumbing gusiness in St. Louis for nearly 30 years, died last night in Missouri Baptist Hospital, following a heart attack eight days before. He was a brother of Henry W. Kiel, former Mayor. The family home is at Manchester and Berry roads. The funeral will be held Tuesday, at an hour to be announced later.

Mr. Kiel was a member of the Master Plumbers' Association. He is survived by his widow, two sons, Paul and Leo, and a daughter, Marie Kiel, by his mother, Mrs. Mary C. Kiel, who made her home with him; two brothers, Henry W. and George F. Kiel, and a sister, Mrs. Minnie Dyas.

Madison Man Found Dead.

By the Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 21.—The body of a middle aged man was found beneath a railway trestle today at Briack, Ark., near Memphis. Papers found in his clothes bore the name of Charles Blondett, Omaha, Neb., and showed he was a member of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes, St. Louis. The authorities are uncertain whether he fell from the trestle or was murdered.

U. G. McKenny, an officer of the union of which Blondett was a member, said last night Blondett had worked and lived in Madison, Ill., for about a year and that little was known of him here.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE FOR TEACHERS' PENSION PROPOSAL

Directors Also Approve Bill to Subject Fraternal Societies to Insurance Laws.

The board of directors of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce has indorsed the joint resolution, pending in the Missouri Legislature, for submitting to the voters of the State an amendment to permit payment of pensions for school teachers. The measure is merely an enabling act and will give the voters an opportunity to decide whether they wish to establish a teachers' pension system or not.

Another measure approved by the Chamber of Commerce directors is House bill 65, which proposes to subject fraternal benefit societies to the general insurance statutes, both as to taxation and control of such societies. Senate bills 87 and 98, also approved by the directors, would apply the same penalties for wilful and malicious injury to radio broadcasting property which now apply to the equipment and property of utility companies.

The directors oppose House bill 231, which would increase the number of places in which suits may be filed. Under the proposed law, in addition to the places designated in the present law, suits could be brought in the county in which the cause accrued. Under this bill, the directors state, actions against insurance companies not incorporated in this State could be brought in any county in the State. This measure, the directors fear, would "bring back an influx of undesirable tramp legislation experienced by Missouri in the past."

LAWRENCE (MASS.) STRIKERS CAUSE MILLS TO SUSPEND

Police Called After Disturbance at Plant; Overture Made to End Walkout.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Feb. 21.—An attempt by striking employes of the American Woolen Co. to induce other workers to leave their tasks today resulted in disturbance, suspension of work in two mills, and the summoning of police squads.

Mill officers estimated 150 had quit work. Strikers said there were more. About 8000 workers are employed in the Wood and Washington mills, where the disturbances occurred. The mills will reopen Tuesday.

An overture was made by company officers later in the day looking toward a settlement of differences that arose when the number of machines assigned to individual combers in the Washington, Wood and Ayers mills was increased. The company's statement, published in newspapers, offered to take back strikers without prejudice upon the basis that existed before the so-called "cost study program" was undertaken.

The Strike Committee of the National Textile Workers' Union replied that it would consider only statements handed to it directly by the company.

CONVICTED ON 10-YEAR-OLD BANK ROBBERY CHARGE

Frank Cammerata, Former St. Louisan, Tried in Detroit; Jumped Bond Four Times.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 21. — Frank Cammerata, formerly of St. Louis, was convicted here in connection with a $2100 bank robbery in 1921. He had jumped bond four times on this charge and served a three-year sentence in an Ontario prison on a charge of carrying illegal weapons in the interim.

He was first arrested for the bank robbery in St. Louis in September, 1925.

Cammerata, 29 years old, was arrested 42 times in St. Louis, according to police records, chiefly on gambling and traffic charges. His only conviction was in 1928 when he was sentenced to 10 days in the workhouse for speeding, but paroled on his promise not to drive an automobile for 30 days. In 1923 he was arrested for questioning in connection with the murder of Leonard Cantanzara, 5516 Easton avenue, but was released when he established an alibi. In 1929 he conducted a cigar store at 310 North Sixth street, according to police.

LAST OF ILLINOIS BANKER'S KIDNAPERS IS CAPTURED

Orville Whiskers Is Caught on Farm Near Spencer, Ia.; Waives Extradition.

By the Associated Press.

KEWANEE, Ill., Feb. 21.—Orville Whiskers, last of the quartet accused of kidnaping Earl Yocum for $50,000 ransom last October, was captured on a farm near Spencer, Ia., today. His alleged confederates are scheduled to go on trial Monday in Henry County Circuit Court on the kidnaping charge, punishable in Illinois by death.

Three officers found Whiskers on the farm of Paul Enninger, six miles south of Spencer, where he had been working since shortly after the Galva banker was taken captive and held five days for a reward. Whispers agreed to waive extradition and return to Illinois.

CHAPLIN VISITS MACDONALD

LONDON, Feb. 21.—Charlie Chaplin renewed an old acquaintance with Premier Ramsay MacDonald today during luncheon at Chequers, official country residence of the Prime Minister, and a walk around the estate.

Alastair MacDonald, son of the Premier, who has been a friend of the English-born actor of the American films since his visit to Hollywood in 1930, took Chaplin to Chequers from London by automobile. The famous comedian returned to London tonight. Chaplin first met Premier MacDonald when he visited London 10 years ago.

RURAL EDITORS COME TO AID OF BECKER

Supplement Legislative Agents of Official in Fight on Hammett Bill.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 21.—Apparent determination of the Democratic majority in the House to pass the Hammett bill to break the political power of Secretary of State Becker (Rep.) by taking from him the authority to designate papers in each county of the State to publish the text of initiative and referendum proposals, in election years, without bids, has resulted in rural Democratic and Republican publishers being called in to supplement Becker's squad of legislative agents in opposing the measure.

Becker's employes, who are State paid, have been doing what they could to supplement the activity of their chief in attempting to kill the bill. One of the employes in Becker's department spends virtually all of his time in the House talking with legislators. Becker has explained that this employe, C. M. Hughes, was "unassigned" for the present and was utilized to "deliver messages" to the legislators.

Several rural editors have been here in the last two or three days talking to members of the majority party in the House, in opposition to the bill.

A committee from the Missouri Press Association visited Speaker Eugene W. Nelson of Hannibal, and other House members yesterday, to oppose the bill. The committee included Frank Sosey (Dem.), of Palmyra, president of the association; Mrs. B. J. Bless (Dem.), of Weston, secretary, and W. J. Sewall (Rep.), of Carthage, vice president of the association. The executive board of the association met here yesterday but took no official position on the bill and the committee visited the legislators as individuals, it was said.

Among others reported to have been here opposing the bill are Oliver Davis (Rep.), of Mansfield, president of the Republican Editorial Association and H. J. Blanton (Dem.), of Paris, president of the Missouri Associated Weeklies.

Becker has built up a powerful political machine through the law which empowers him to select the newspaper in each county of the state to publish the initiative and referendum proposals before elections. The awards are made uniformly at the maximum state rate, which in many instances is considerably higher than regular advertising rates of papers receiving the awards. The value of the printing plum in some years has been as high as $2000 in each county.

The Hammett bill, which has been made a caucus measure by House Democrats, would take the designation of the papers for the printing from Becker and give it to the County Court in each county. This would result in awards in about half the counties going to Democratic papers. The bill has been engrossed by the House and is on the calendar for passage.

CAPONE SAID TO HAVE ARRIVED IN CHICAGO FOR PRIMARY

Gang Leader Reported to Have Given $150,000 to Mayor Thompson's Campaign.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—"Scarface Al" Capone, "public enemy No. 1," and reputed contributor of $150,000 to the campaign fund of Mayor William Hale Thompson, was reported to have returned to Chicago today.

A man thought to have been Capone left the Dixie Flyer of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway at Danville at 11 a. m. Traffic Policeman Wiley Watson, who said he recognized the man as Capone from his pictures and from the scar on his face, called out, "Hello, Al."

The policeman said the man admitted his identity, chatted for a moment, and said he was flying to Chicago. He was accompanied by two men and a third, described as resembling Al's brother, Ralph, was waiting in an automobile which left immediately for the airport. There it was reported, a cabin plane left at 11:30 a. m.

If the report of Capone's arrival was true, he apparently landed at some secluded place and remained beyond the jurisdiction of Chicago police, who have a vagrancy warrant issued by Judge John H. Lyle pending against him.

Although the gang chief is scheduled to appear in Federal court for trial on a contempt charge Wednesday, his arrival today would indicate a desire to reach Chicago in time for the primaries Tuesday. It was recalled that he returned to Chicago for the primaries of 1927.

In the 1927 primaries Capone contributed $50,000 to the Thompson campaign fund, according to Frank J. Loesch of the Chicago Crime Commission, but this time he contributed $150,000, Judge Lyle, one of Thompson's opponents, charges.

8 Bridges for Missouri Approved.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21. — The House Commerce Committee today approved bills for the following bridges in Missouri over James River at Galena, Eleven Points River at Thomasville, White River near Reed Springs, St. Francois River near Kennett and White River at Forsyth, St. Francois River near Greenville, Missouri River at Weldon Springs and White River at Branson.

RESIDUE OF FATHER COFFEY ESTATE FOR ST. LEO'S SCHOOLS

Pastor Left $200 Each to 12 Priests for Masses, $1000 Each to Brothers and Sisters.

The will of the Rev. James T. Coffey, pastor of St. Leo's Church, was filed in Probate Court yesterday. He left $200 each to 12 priests with a request that 100 masses be said for him, and $1000 each to his brothers and sisters, Frank, Michael and Luke Coffey; Mrs. Rose Newport and Sister M. De Chantal.

A library and bookcase are divided among 10 priests and the remaining personal effects are bequeathed to the brothers and sisters. Another $1000 is left to the Society for the Propagation of the Faith for masses to be said for him and his deceased relatives, and the rest of the estate, the value of which was not announced, is to go for maintenance of St. Leo's Free Schools. Luke Coffey, Mrs. Newport and the Cass Avenue Bank & Trust Co., are named as executors.

In his will, dated May 30, 1930, Father Coffey took occasion to write: "I want to acknowledge God's goodness and mercy to me during my whole life." He further wrote that "all funeral arrangements are to be in accord with my position as a humble parish priest. I beg my friends and relatives to remember me by masses and prayers, not by flowers or unnecessary display." The priests mentioned to say masses are the Revs. John Fugel, Thomas Riddin, William Carr, Thomas Lloyd, Bernard Stolte, Edward O'Toole, M. J. Bresnahano, John H. Smith, Martin Clarke, William Glynn, William Drinifred and John Hyland.

Father Coffey, who was 69 years old, died Feb. 11. Prior to his pastorate at St. Leo's Church, Twenty-third and Mullanphy streets, he was pastor of St. John's, Sixteenth and Chestnut streets.

MICHIGAN U. STUDENT GETS PRISON TERM AS BOOTLEGGER

Like Sentence Given Outsider Whose Liquor Sales Closed Five Fraternity Houses.

By the Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Feb. 21.—Orie Brown, freshman law student at the University of Michigan from Spencer, Ia., arrested Jan. 27 for selling liquor, was sentenced to from six months to two years in Michigan State Prison, with a recommendation by Circuit Judge George W. Sample that he be required to serve 18 months.

Albert Looney, not a student, whose arrest last week caused raids on five fraternity houses on the campus, later ordered closed for the remainder of the year by university authorities, received a similar sentence, with a recommendation that he be required to serve the full term. Both Brown and Looney pleaded guilty.

In presenting Looney's case to the Court, Prosecutor Albert J. Rapp said Looney had paid only $27 a case for the whisky which he sold at a much higher price, indicating, the Prosecutor said, that the liquor was "rank poison."

Robert Custer, senior in the university school of education, and Alan Thompson, non-student, both of Marion, Ind., have not been brought before the Court. They waived preliminary examination on charges of possessing liquor. They were arrested when Brown was taken into custody.

CHARGES AGAINST CARROLL'S SHOW DROPPED IN CHICAGO

Judge Rules Public, Not Laws Determine Whether Play Is Obscene or Not.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—Charges of obscenity brought by the police against members of Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book" cast were dismissed today by Municipal Judge Justin F. McCarthy.

The court granted a defense motion to quash complaints against James Carroll, Earl's brother, and manager of the show; William Demarest and Don Howard, two principals, and 26 chorus girls. The company moves to Milwaukee tonight, but will return after one week for a second run.

"Shows should be censored before they are presented to the public," Judge McCarthy ruled. "I had the pleasure of seeing the show before and after the police raided it Feb. 13. Obscenity is determined by the average citizen, not by statutes of law, and I have also in mind the modern tendency toward freer and more elastic aspects of the stage and screen."

DR. PHILIP C. FLETCHER DIES; FORMER PASTOR IN ST. LOUIS

Victim of Pneumonia in San Antonio Where He Was Presiding Elder.

The Rev. Dr. Philip Cone Fletcher, former pastor of two congregations of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in St. Louis, died yesterday of pneumonia in San Antonio, Tex., where he was presiding elder. He was 60 years old, and is survived by his widow and a sister, Mrs. D. O. Snyder, who lives at 1226 McCausland avenue, St. Louis. Mrs. Robert E. Lee of 7507 Oxford avenue is a niece. The funeral will be held in Little Rock, Ark., Tuesday.

Dr. Fletcher was pastor of First Methodist Church, South and Mount Auburn Church, while in St. Louis up to 1910. He was later pastor of churches in Fort Smith and Little Rock, Ark. While in St. Louis, his discourses on love and marriage, and his advice to young women to use cosmetic devices if needed to enhance their natural attractiveness, caused much discussion.

MAWSON FINDS BIRDS ON ANTARCTIC CLIFFS

Explorer Skirts Shores of Garnet Gneiss of McRobertson Land.

By SIR DOUGLAS MAWSON.
By Wireless.
(Copyright, 1931.)

ABOARD S. S. THE DISCOVERY, In the Antarctic, Feb. 13.—We now appear to be in a bad area for wireless transmission, experiencing considerable delays in getting messages away. This morning the ice on the coast of MacRobertson Land, along which we are steaming in a westerly direction, became diversified by the appearance of rocky headlands and the protrusion of nunataks (hills) through the slopes of the inland ice.

An early morning call was made at one of these rocky capes, which rises steeply to a height of 1000 feet. A motor launch was lowered and investigations made. This mountain proved to be composed of garnet gneiss and was densely inhabited by bird life.

Antarctic petrels, thousands of which were observed yesterday at rest on a passing iceberg, were nesting on this rocky shore. Adelie penguins lined the slopes to a great height. This visit was brief, for our attention was specially riveted in a more extensive mountainous outcrop on the coast a few miles west.

When a landing was made at the latter spot in the afternoon a number of characteristically level topped summits, rising from the water to 1200 feet, were found to be constituted of granite and garnet gneiss. The inland ice rides down to the sea over the shoulders of these vast bastions, carrying with it morainic matter.

Weddell seals line the boulder-strewn water front, while all the lower ground and every accessible slope to a height of 50 feet is occupied by a noisy population of Adelie penguins. Emperor penguins in the last stages of their summer molt crouched near the shore.

Everywhere on the steep faces the sea birds were hovering around their nests. Fulmars had chosen the lower slopes and Antarctic petrels usually held the higher elevations. Snow petrels and cape pigeons were in possession of the rest of the territory. Although the penguin chicks had grown almost as large as their parents, they still were being harried by a few skua gulls.

As there is no harbor along this rocky race and a considerable ocean swell is beating on the coast, First Officer Stanton, who was handling the launch, had a difficult job embarking all the collections. This, however, was safely accomplished without loss or damage.

In this neighborhood, at latitude 67:42 south, longitude 66:56 east, the sea floor is most uneven and in places is very shallow. Consequently this evening the opportunity was taken for some shallo dredging. Most interesting and va ried hauls were made. That in 1 fathoms brought up only sea wee and 34 fish.

Late this evening we resume our journey west along the coa and already have in sight other i teresting features.

ANTI-CIGARETTE CRUSADE MAKES FAMILY $100 A WE

Jerseyman's Household Filled Offices in Society and Collected Fines.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Steph Horvath of Woodridge, N. J., a bacco crusader, and his family, cording to his own admission, fil all the offices of the Commo wealth Humane Society of Wo ridge, which by New Jersey l receives all the fines collected its complaints.

Justice of the Peace Lucas Dover, made suspicious by t flood of complaints of the sale cigarettes made by President a Agent Horvath, ordered Prosecu Mesles of Morris County to vestigate.

As a result, Horvath and his year-old daughter, Anna, a trus in his organization, were held $1000 bail each for a heari Thursday. The prosecution charg that Anna, wearing a wedding ri and a heavy fur coat collar, wou walk into small stores, especial in Denville, N. J., and purcha cigarettes. Many storekeepers d clared the girl looked five or years older than her real age.

When 25 dealers had paid fines and the money had be turned over to Horvath, Justi Lucas told one of the storekeepe John Megri of Denville to obtain lawyer and fight the case.

Horvath was charged with viol ing the law he invoked and w allowing his daughter to wo without a permit. She was he as a maternal witness.

Horvath explained that his o ganization was formed in 19 with five officers and a membe ship of 75. He is president a agent; Bietra, his wife, is secr tary treasurer and his daught Anna, a trustee. The fines ha amounted to above $100 a wee the court says.

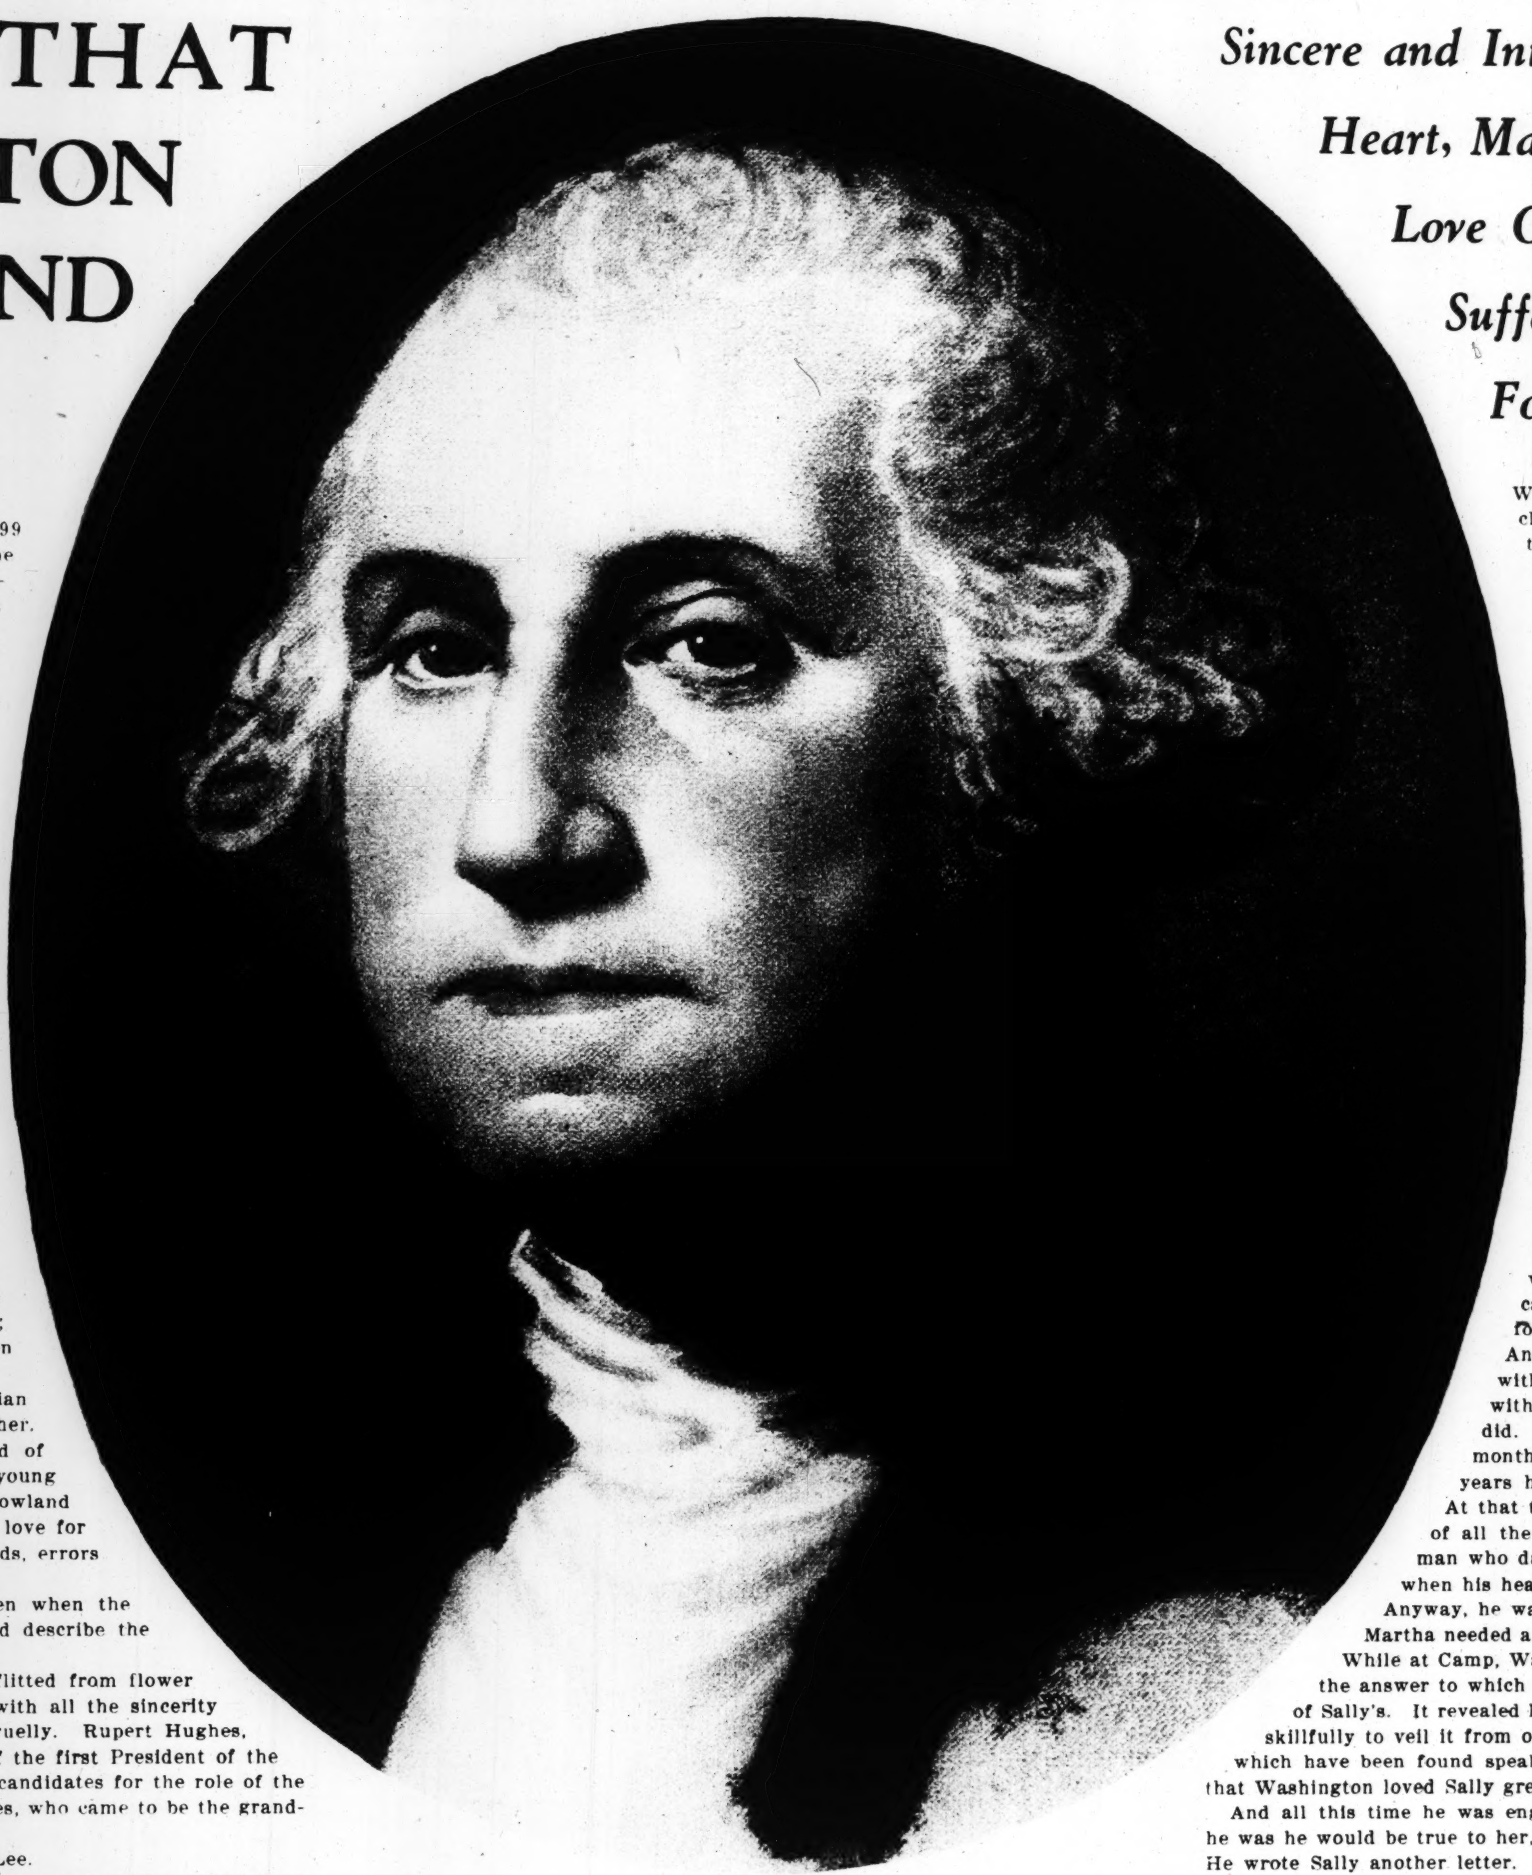
WOMEN THAT WASHINGTON WOOED AND LOST

Sincere and Intense in Affairs of the Heart, Many Disappointments in Love Caused Him Profound Suffering—and He Never Forgot Sally Cary.



George Washington
From a portrait by Gilbert Stuart.
—Courtesy Taber Prang Art Company.

IT IS still a common view, 199 years after he came into the world, that George Washington was one of fortune's rarest favorites. Success in war, the highest honors in the gift of his country, wealth, social position, friends—all were his.

But even George Washington couldn't have everything. Something that enriches the lives of the humblest, most obscure men, was denied him. The father of his country was not a success at love. He paid court to many women, but was unable, apparently, to inspire such reciprocal sentiments. He married, but it is pretty well agreed that the match was based on mutual esteem and respect rather than on the grand passion. There is more than a suspicion that he carried to his grave an unrequited love for Sally Cary, a Virginia belle who married his best friend, Captain George William Fairfax.

A pockmarked face, which also bore a scar caused by an ulcerated tooth, may have had something to do with Washington's failure as a gallant. His deficiency in sprightly small talk, in a day when brilliant prattle was highly regarded, probably also dimmed his prospects with the young ladies of his set. He may have been "first in the hearts of his countrymen"; he was not first in the hearts of the young women whom he wooed.

All through his boyhood the young Virginian was attracted to first one girl and then another. There is a girl who hovers on the borderland of the shadowy recesses which hide Washington's young loves, who is known in history as his "Lowland Beauty." A few very youthful letters have his love for this girl entangled in a mesh of misspelled words, errors of grammar and tangled thoughts.

Washington wrote to women repeatedly, even when the stage coach didn't bring answers, and he would describe the charms of one to another.

He was never a gay young philanderer who flitted from flower to flower. He took each youthful love affair with all the sincerity of his intense young nature, and he suffered cruelly. Rupert Hughes, who has studied much concerning the history of the first President of the United States, suggests that perhaps among the candidates for the role of the "Lowland Beauty" one might choose Lucy Grymes, who came to be the grandmother of General Robert E. Lee.

Or again, Mary Bland, who married a Henry Lee.

Betsy Fauntleroy, who Washington himself says rejected him, might have been the girl who bore the romantic title. For three years after she had told George Washington that she wouldn't love, honor and obey him, she managed to keep him waiting for her to change her mind.

HE WENT from the depths to the peaks in his romances and inevitably back to the depths. For consolation he started to write poetry as ill-fated swains have always done.

One capricious maiden received the following verses attributed to him:

From your bright, sparkling Eyes I was undone;
Rays, you have; more transperent than the Sun.
Amidst its glory in the rising day
None can you equal in your bright array;
Constant in your calm and unspotted Mind;
Equal to all, but will to none Prove kind;
So knowing, seldom one so Young you'l Find.

Ah, woe's me, that I should Love and conceal
Long have I wish'd, but never dare reveal,
Even though severely Love's Pains I feel;
Xerxes that was great, was't free from Cupid's Dart,
And all the greatest Heroes, felt the smart.

Mary Cary, sister of the Sally whose influence was so paramount in his life, served as an excellent antidote for the cruel Lowland Beauty, however. When her sister and her husband came to Belvoir, an estate in Virginia just across the Potomac from Mount Vernon, George Washington decided that Mary was a good substitute. He danced and hunted and laughed and sang and made love to Mary and probably had as good a time as he had ever known.

Mary Cary, however, was only 14 years old at the time. Some say that George went to her father, Colonel Wilson Cary, and asked for his daughter's hand in marriage. Girls married young then and since George himself wasn't 20 there wasn't much difference in age.

According to the story which has been handed down, the future President of the United States was dismissed from the house because the maiden whose hand he sought had been used to riding in her own carriage and George Washington couldn't supply her with one. There was nothing to do but end the romance.

Washington had an unsuccessful time in the army and in 1755 left it, disappointed.

But Sally Fairfax, two years older than he was, and an old friend of long and close standing, sympathized and understood. Washington needed comforting and in a little while he realized that he needed Sally.

This wasn't a boyish infatuation. It was the love of a man for a woman, steadfast and stanch . . . but she was the wife of his best friend. Moreover, he was a man of integrity, and she was a woman of prudence.

She [illegible] have loved him. No one will ever know. But she realized that any attempt on his part to force his love would brand them forever. Divorces were uncommon and a little scandalous in those days.

Mrs. Sally Nelson Robins, as the historian of the Colonial Dames of America, compiled a volume, "Love Stories of Famous Virginians." She gives a resume of Washington's attitude towards Mrs. Fairfax, in which she says:

"The flame smoldered on and on, and perhaps was never extinguished even to the day of Washington's death. After Sally married Fairfax, Washington was frequently at Belvoir and Mrs. Fairfax became his patron and instructress in the fine arts of courtesy and good breeding, while her brain, in its strength and flowering, matched his.

"She enmeshed him with her charm and beauty, and while his affection for her, as he has it, was chaste, it was, probably, no less troublesome. Again his congenital and marvelous strength kept him absolutely from the semblance of mischief. I consider his early romances but zephyrs to this one crimson whirlwind passion of his life."

Sally Fairfax came from one of the best families of Virginia, and she had taken advantage of every opportunity to improve herself. She was well-read, wrote in French as well as in English, and probably guided the young Washington along some lines of learning. She wasn't a book worm, though. She was a beautiful woman, filled with life, animation and independence.

The Fairfax and Washington families, moreover, were intimate. Hospitality was lavish, also, so George and Sally saw each other very much.

Strong though his love was, knowing that nothing could come from it, Washington became susceptible to other feminine charms, and in 1756, when he was a Colonel in the army again, Mary Philipse came on the stage. He was as interested in his personal appearance as any other young dandy of the time, and tailors, hatters, saddlers and jewelers profited because he was. He must have presented a striking appearance in spite of the smallpox pits and scar, when he tarried in New York at the home of Beverly Robinson, who had a wife, Susanna, who had a sister, Mary Philipse.

Mary was attractive, 26, and unmarried. Besides, she and her sister were very wealthy, and Washington loved land, and she was able to bring to her future husband a matter of 51,102 acres.

Mary fascinated him with her personal charms, so he lingered for 10 days, until duty called him on. Mary must have proved hopeful, for he spent 18 months writing to a friend of his, Joseph Chew, to find out how Mary felt. Chew kept recommending that he hurry to New York and do his own courting.

If Washington finally proposed to Mary nobody knows, but it is considered highly probable. But in the end she married Captain Roger Morris, Washington's rival.

Whether Sally Fairfax was informed of this byplay no records tell, but she was the only woman whose image Washington continued to carry with him. She certainly wasn't put aside for newer loves.

And then he met Martha Custis, a young widow, with two children. She was little and plump, with a habit of misspelling as many words as he did. She was a model housekeeper. She was eight months older than Washington, and Sally was two years his senior.

At that time Washington was the Commander in Chief of all the troops of Virginia, and a well-known young man who danced and dined and enjoyed life . . . except when his heart was wounded.

Anyway, he was a bachelor who wanted to get married, and Martha needed a manager for her land. They became engaged.

While at Camp, Washington received a letter from Sally Fairfax, the answer to which was found 120 years later in some old trunks of Sally's. It revealed his desperate love for Sally, though he tried so skillfully to veil it from other eyes in case the letter was lost. Letters which have been found speak of other letters, and it is undoubtedly true that Washington loved Sally greatly.

And all this time he was engaged to marry Martha Custis. And because he was he would be true to her, but he couldn't control the love in his heart. He wrote Sally another letter.

Mrs. Robins wrote of this particular letter of his to Sally:

"It was just four months before his marriage to Martha Custis (we can scarcely believe it) that he felt himseilf powerless to be prudent any longer. This letter is the incontrovertible witness in the case, and is the one evidence we have of the impassioned recklessnss of the austere Washington. It is great to know that he was human enough to love in such a way; that he was strong enough to conceal his true feelings; till it was to him the blessed privilege of her he loved to know it. The greatest tribute he could pay her was to tell her all."

BUT the Martha Custis romance was different. The plump little "home body" was a vastly different woman from the glamorous Sally, and it is evident that she inspired in the Virginia soldier a different sentiment from the passionate love he gave to the wife of his friend. Martha burned almost all of the correspondence between herself and her distinguished husband after his death, but there has survived one letter he wrote to her during their betrothal period. It was really only a note, written while he was in a camp and dated July 20, 1758. It read:

"We have begun out march for the Ohio. A courier is starting for Williamsburg, and I embrace the opportunity to send a few words to one whose life is now inseparable from mine. Since that happy hour when we made our pledges to each other, my thoughts have been continually going to you as another self. That an all-powerful Providence may keep us both in safety is the prayer of your ever faithful and affectionate friend."

Certainly if this was love it was a temperate, judicious passion, devoid of love's delirium. Letters of a different kind he sent to Sally Fairfax—even after this. Long letters, with such sentences as: "The world has no business to know the object of my love, declared in this manner to you, when I want to conceal it."

When the campaigning in which he was then engaged, was ended, Washington went home and married Martha Custis. Seventeen years later, in a letter to his friend Fairfax, then in England, he closed the message: "With sincere regard and affectionate compliments to Mrs. Fairfax."

It was shortly after a defeat at the polls—he had sought election to the House of Burgesses of Virginia—which depressed him greatly, that he met Martha Custis and began his courtship of her.

He had apparently come to the conclusion by this time that there was no hope of a happy outcome of his romance with Sally Fairfax—he turned to another.

Of Washington's courtship of Martha, and their decision to marry, Rupert Hughes writes:

"His courtship of her was businesslike. A meeting, an all-night talk, probably mainly about real estate; a second meeting, an agreement to marry, and a long absence in the field.

"But through it all Washington must have thought mainly of Sally, when he had time to think of women, or realize that his overworked life included among its countless misfortunes a broken heart."

The Widow of a Famous Missouri Senator Cries "Foundling" at Her Granddaughter

Mrs. John B. Henderson.

The $500,000 mansion.

Accepted All Her Life by Washington Society as a "Henderson," a Doubt Was Thrown on Beatrice Wholean's Lineage When She Attempted to Keep Her Grandmother From Giving a $500,000 Mansion to the Government.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

WASHINGTON, D. C.

WHEN Mrs. John B. Henderson, widow of the Missouri Senator, offered to donate to the United States a $500,000 mansion here for its Vice Presidents, the capital was only mildly interested. But an aftermath of the offer has created something of a sensation in this city. The social set hears that a young woman whom it had accepted as the granddaughter of the wealthy and influential Mrs. Henderson is really only a foundling. Court records have come to light of the adoption by Mrs. Henderson on December 30, 1924, of Beatrice Van Renssalaer Henderson, then 19 years old and supposed to be the daughter of John B. Henderson Jr., and his wife, both of whom had died years before. Beatrice had been reared from childhood by the woman known as her grandmother.

Beatrice, now Mrs. Joseph Wholean, seems to have precipitated the disclosure by suing to prevent Mrs. Henderson, who is 86, from giving away the $500,000 house. She also asked that Mrs. Henderson be removed as trustee of the estates of her husband, the former Senator, and her son, to which Mrs. Wholean is heir. Trial of the suit is expected to shed more light on the relationship of Mrs. Wholean to the Henderson family.

Joseph Wholean.

Washington made the acquaintance of John B. Henderson during the Civil War period. He was a Senator from Missouri from 1862 to 1869, and was credited with being one of the authors of the anti-slavery amendment to the Constitution. In 1868 he married Mary Foote in Washington, the Senate adjourning to attend the ceremony. After his service in the Senate ended the Hendersons took up residence in St. Louis, where Mrs. Henderson was active in women's affairs. The Hendersons had one son—John B. Henderson Jr. Shortly after the Republican national convention of 1884 in Chicago, of which Henderson senior was chairman, they moved back to Washington.

As the years passed the Hendersons' prestige grew and their wealth increased.

They bought many acres of land in the barren upland section of northwest Washington, due north of the White House, on what was to become the famous "Avenue of the Embassies." Henderson "Castle," one of the most famous structures in Washington, with its rambling wings of red stone and its precipitous, forbidding walls, was built on the vantage spot of the entire tract.

Mrs. Henderson, active of mind and shrewd in business, stood high in the social world and became one of its leaders. About 1900 John Jr., who had graduated from Harvard, married Angelica Schuyler Crosby, daughter of one of the aristocratic families of Washington. The wedding was one of the most brilliant in the annals of the city.

A few years passed, and then friends heard that the younger Hendersons were expecting an heir. The couple slipped quietly out of Washington to the Henderson country home in Virginia, and presently returned with a baby girl, who was named Beatrice Van Renssalaer Henderson, amid much rejoicing in the "Castle."

Only a few very close friends had been permitted to visit the Henderson home in Virginia, and the only attendants were three trusted servants and a physician.

Beatrice—Trixie, as the adoring grandmother called her—grew up in the austere old red fortress on Sixteenth street. John B. Jr. and his wife died and the girl's rearing was left in the hands of the grandmother, as the former Senator had died in 1913.

In this period of Beatrice's girlhood Mrs. Henderson was doing remarkable things. Washington was expanding and the expansion was Mrs. Henderson's way. She got the Government to buy an immense tract across the street from the Castle, which was made into Meridian Hill Park, one of the largest and most beautiful in the city. This greatly enhanced the value of the land, and she began building private homes—embassies—and apartment houses.

She was becoming a powerful financial figure; already she was a noted political one. Because of her personal brilliance she gathered about her an amazing array of diplomats, officials and old resident aristocrats, until she was recognized as one of the most powerful social figures in Washington.

Beatrice went to school abroad, was taken around the world, introduced at courts and finally brought back home supposedly for her debut. But here a hitch developed. Debutante she was in fact, for all her friends were debutantes and all her parties were debutante parties. But the old dowager would have no "coming out" party for her granddaughter, "Trixie."

"Debutante parties?" said she. "I don't believe in them. They are nothing but auction blocks, where young girls, carefully reared, are placed on the marriage market. No! There shall be no debutante parties in my family."

And again she is supposed to have said:

"THEY are hussies, these modern girls. They drink and smoke, and they wear gowns that are utterly shocking. My granddaughter is different. Her skirts are to her ankles. She is a lady."

And Beatrice dutifully surrendered. She wanted to see her friends. She wanted to make her debut. But it was out of the question for more than one reason. When the young girls came to Henderson Castle its mistress not infrequently indulged in her dissertations on modern youth.

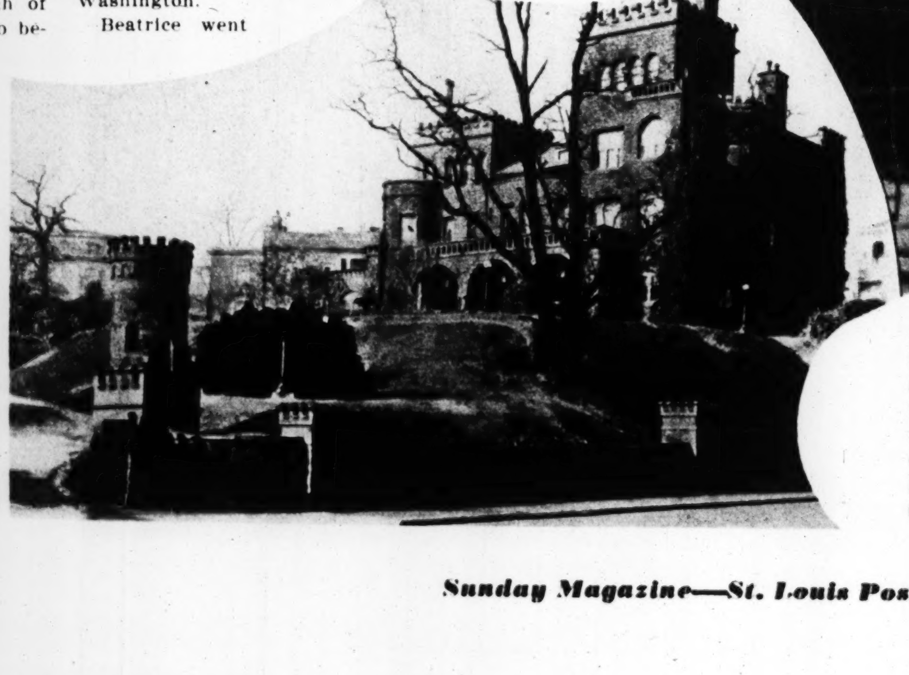
And when young men called they were greeted with the information that no smoking was allowed in the Castle, because Mrs. Henderson considered it immoral. Young visitors became rather scarce.

One day a young man called at Henderson Castle in the bold hope of selling the aged dowager a Rolls Royce automobile, for which he was a salesman. Beatrice met him and they fell in love. They met secretly, drove together, lunched together. Finally they told Mrs. Henderson they wanted to marry.

She opposed the match at first, but finally consented. The wedding was quiet. Mrs. Henderson settled $600,000 on Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wholean as a wedding present. Wholean became a trade commissioner for the Government and he and his young wife went to live in Rome. That was in 1927.

A few weeks ago Mrs. Henderson made her offer of a $500,000 mansion on Fifteenth street as a vice presidential residence, the house to be a gift to the Government, or, if the Government was unable to accept such a gift, to be purchased for $1. Once before she had offered a Washington residence for the Vice President, but it had been rejected.

Close on the heels of the announcement of the latest offer there was filed in the District Supreme Court a suit by Mrs. Beatrice Henderson Wholean, asking the court to restrain Mrs. Henderson from giving the half-million dollar mansion away, and requesting that she be removed as trustee of the Henderson estates because of the infirmities of age. Then the dowager cast her bombshell about her supposed granddaughter's place in the Henderson family.



Henderson "Castle."

Beatrice Henderson Wholean.

John B. Henderson Jr.

She told this story:

When the wife of John Henderson Jr. retired to the Henderson country home in Virginia, presumably to await the birth of a child, she was attended by a prominent Washington obstetrician, who was connected with a large foundling home here, and a similar home in Charles Town, West Virginia. The young Mrs. Henderson secretly made a trip to Charles Town with the physician and returned. Then it was quietly announced that the baby had come—a girl.

Young Mrs. Henderson and her husband died without having told of a trip to Charles Town.

ONE day an old servant in a heated moment made a strange remark. Beatrice had scolded him, and in reply he said:

"What right have you to give me orders? I'm as much a member of the Henderson family as you are."

Beatrice apparently didn't think anything of it, but Mrs. Henderson, hearing it, questioned the man closely.

He told her, she later said, he had been serving at the estate in Virginia at the time Beatrice was supposed to have been born and learned that young Mrs. Henderson was going to adopt a child from the doctor's home for babies in Charles Town. He said he was let in on the secret and sworn to silence. Only three other persons knew of the plan, he said—the doctor and two others who since have died.

When Beatrice was married, it is said, Mrs. Henderson told her of the facts, and said not to worry about them, that everything would continue just as it had always been.

Mrs. Henderson has said she does not remember signing the adoption papers on record here.

A story tending to contradict that of the butler is told by an aged nurse, Miss Valerie Harvard, who was with the Henderson family at the time, though not in actual attendance upon the young Mrs. Henderson at the time of the supposed birth. She says:

"I WAS with Beatrice from the time she was three weeks old as nurse, companion and governess, until she was married. I knew her mother well, and served her as maid for about two years before Beatrice was born.

"I remember distinctly when Mrs. John B. Henderson Jr. came to me and said that she was to become a mother. She had had no children, and I congratulated her on her good fortune.

"From my experience as a nurse I am sure she was to become a mother. She left some time after that for the estate in Virginia, and I saw her several times thereafter, although I was not with her when the child was born. Three weeks after the birth she came back to Washington, and went to Bar Harbor, Maine, and at that time she was still very weak and there was every appearance that the event had taken place.

"Beatrice was one of the finest girls I have ever known. Some years ago I heard this butler say something about her being a waif from some institution and I told him to keep in his place. Later Mrs. Henderson heard it. I was shocked to think that anyone in the household would say such things about the girl who had been adored by everyone. I, of course, didn't believe it, and don't

IT MAY be that most college students obtain material for their doctor's thesis by the laborious but unexciting method of burrowing through books in a library, but Miss Elizabeth Steen went about getting hers in an entirely original manner, with the result that she almost lost her life and barely escaped the worse fate of being made the wife of a savage Indian chieftain in the heart of the Brazilian jungle.

Miss Steen is tall, blonde and in her early thirties. Her home is in San Jose, California, and she is a graduate of the State University at Berkeley. She became interested in anthropology and the study of primitive civilizations, and she journeyed here to Columbia University where she continued her studies and obtained her Master's degree. Then she went back to the University of California and began to buckle down to the long task of acquiring enough knowledge to write a thesis that would make her a Doctor of Philosophy.

Now a doctor's thesis is supposed to represent an original contribution to some field of study. After a fashion, one can do that in a library by making extracts from other people's books and putting the pieces together, to form a sort of original mosaic of second-hand pieces. Dr. Otto Heller of Washington University has on occasion disparagingly referred to that type of "research" worker as an "academic ash-man," and Miss Steen had a somewhat similar attitude.

She decided that if she was to make an original contribution, why not base it on original observation, instead of taking it from books? After all, there were still in the world a number of races living in a crude and primitive state of civilization. Why not go among some of them and study them at first hand? While Miss Steen was trying to decide on a goal, she met Professor Nordenskjold, a famous anthropologist of the University of Gothenburg in Sweden, who was visiting in this country. Professor Nordenskjold is an authority on the Indians of South America, and he immediately suggested the wilds of Brazil as a virgin field, containing Indian tribes that had never been visited by white men. To be sure, there were, he pointed out, a few difficulties in the way of studying them. Some of them spoke a language with which no one was familiar, which meant that they would be rather hard to deal with. Some of these tribes were known to nourish a murderous hatred against all whites, a hatred inherited and kept alive in tribal tradition since the early days of Spanish and Portuguese conquest, when the Indians themselves were treated with a cruelty few savages could excel. Indeed, there are tribes in the interior of Brazil which have never been seen by a white man. At least, no white person who may have seen them has ever lived to report the fact.

In discussing the matter with Miss Steen, the Swedish scholar mentioned one tribe that might repay study, provided one could get close enough. That was the tribe of Tapirape Indians. Nothing at all was known about them, except that they were to be found far in the interior of the Brazilian wilds. They lived only a short distance from the Indian tribe that had murdered Colonel Fawcett, the English explorer.

"They kept the Indians from attacking by a periodic discharge of firearms."

NEW YORK.

IT MAY be that most college students obtain material for their doctor's thesis by the laborious but unexciting method of burrowing through books in a library, but Miss Elizabeth Steen went about getting hers in an entirely original manner, with the result that she almost lost her life and barely escaped the worse fate of being made the wife of a savage Indian chieftain in the heart of the Brazilian jungle.

Miss Steen is tall, blonde and in her early thirties. Her home is in San Jose, California, and she is a graduate of the State University at Berkeley. She became interested in anthropology and the study of primitive civilizations, and she journeyed here to Columbia University where she continued her studies and obtained her Master's degree. Then she went back to the University of California and began to buckle down to the long task of acquiring enough knowledge to write a thesis that would make her a Doctor of Philosophy.

Now a doctor's thesis is supposed to represent an original contribution to some field of study. After a fashion, one can do that in a library by making extracts from other people's books and putting the pieces together, to form a sort of original mosaic of second-hand pieces. Dr. Otto Heller of Washington University has on occasion disparagingly referred to that type of "research" worker as an "academic ash-man," and Miss Steen had a somewhat similar attitude.

She decided that if she was to make an original contribution, why not base it on original observation, instead of taking it from books? After all, there were still in the world a number of races living in a crude and primitive state of civilization. Why not go among some of them and study them at first hand? While Miss Steen was trying to decide on a goal, she met Professor Nordenskjold, a famous anthropologist of the University of Gothenburg in Sweden, who was visiting in this country. Professor Nordenskjold is an authority on the Indians of South America and he immediately suggested the wilds of Brazil as a virgin field, containing Indian tribes that had never been visited by white men. To be sure there were, he pointed out, a few difficulties in the way of studying them. Some of them spoke a language with which no one was familiar, which meant that they would be rather hard to deal with. Some of these tribes were known to nourish a murderous hatred against all whites, a hatred inherited and kept alive in tribal tradition since the early days of Spanish and Portuguese conquest, when the Indians themselves were treated with a cruelty few savages could excel. Indeed, there are tribes in the interior of Brazil which have never been seen by a white man. At least, no white person who may have seen them has ever lived to report the fact.

In discussing the matter with Miss Steen, the Swedish scholar mentioned one tribe that might repay study, provided one could get close enough. That was the tribe of Tapirape Indians. Nothing at all was known about them, except that they were to be found far in the interior of the Brazilian wilds. They lived only a short distance from the Indian tribe that had murdered Colonel Fawcett, the English explorer, a few years ago. They might be a good subject for study, Dr. Nordenskjold suggested, since no white person had ever visited them.

After such a description it might be safe to assume that most students, particularly women, would have decided a library wasn't such a bad place in which to do research work after all. But on Miss Steen it had exactly the opposite effect. It looked to her like an interesting adventure. And if it proved to be dangerous, why, that would make her thesis that much more interesting and her contribution just so much more original. Members of her family called her attention to the fact that she might not return to make any contribution at all to her science.

MISS STEEN laughed at their warnings and promptly began to make her preparations. She obtained a leave of absence from the Graduate School of the University of California, got together the proper equipment for a jaunt into the jungle, and blithely set sail for Rio de Janeiro last March. From Rio she journeyed to the city of Sao Paulo and there began to make arrangements to journey inland.

She went to the Indian Office there to get more detailed information. When she revealed her purpose to go in and take up residence with the Tapirape Indians, the officials threw up their hands in amazement and immediately launched forth torrents of eloquence in an effort to dissuade her. In the first place, she could never get to them, they explained, because no white man or native would be foolhardy enough to serve as her guide. And if she ever did get to the Tapirapes it would hardly do her any good, because they would either make her a prisoner for life or kill her. In fact, Miss Steen was informed the Tapirapes had a particularly unsavory reputation. Members of other Indian tribes who had had dealings with them or had been at war with them, testified that the Tapirapes were anthropophagous. That is, they were man-eaters. Not out and out cannibals, but they had the habit of eating the heart and brains of their slain enemies. They believed that in that way they could acquire their enemy's cunning and his courage to add to their own.

And these esteemed comestibles didn't necessarily have to be furnished by an enemy. They might also be derived from persons who possessed unusual skill or powers of magic, and since the display of any sort of skill with which the Indians weren't familiar was likely to be regarded by them as a work of magic, it was more than probable that any white person who came among them would soon whet their appetites. For the zeal for self-improvement was apparently the one virtue the Tapirapes shared with the more enterprising of white nations, though their manner of attaining that advanced stage wasn't a healthy one for casual visitors.

MISS STEEN listened to all these earnest explanations and then replied that these eccentricities made the Tapirapes just that much more enticing, the very subject for the most original of theses.

"But it is suicide!" they insisted. And seeing that even that warning couldn't swerve her from her purpose, they flatly refused to give her guides or escort, saying they would not be a party to such folly. Whereupon Miss Steen pocketed the Government maps they had given her, thanked them for their paternal interest, and set out by herself.

Her baggage and motion picture camera were loaded on a train at Sao Paulo and she journeyed into the interior, past acre after acre of coffee plantation, until she came to Vianapolis, the end of the line. There she hired an automobile and for two days was driven over terrible roads at break-neck speed until she arrived at Goyaz, ramshackle capital of the district of that name. Spring floods made further progress impossible, and she had to stay there a month to let the waters subside. Even when she set out again early in May there were still many flooded sections of road that had to be crossed, and time and again the party had to halt to improvise a bridge. Finally she arrived at Leopoldina, on the Araguaya River. It was a crude settlement, the last Government outpost, although 200 miles farther up the river there were a few huts on Bananal Island where a trader and a few half-civilized natives maintained a sort of post.

Again, at Leopoldina, Government officials tried to dissuade her from going further. She asked for guides, but these were refused and so Miss Steen went out to hunt some up for herself. To her surprise she was unable to find anyone willing to accompany her. She came across a few experienced rivermen, familiar with the country, who as first seemed interested, but when they learned her destination, they shook their heads firmly and withdrew. It was foolhardy, they declared. Too many Indians interested in finding white targets for their arrows.

One shouldn't accuse these men of cowardice too hastily. This was in the heart of the Matto Grosso, a wild, uncivilized region, where brute strength rules and law and order are unknown. It is the refuge of outlaws and renegades, but an inhospitable refuge at best, for it is inhabited by Indian tribes, most of them hostile and some of them aggressively murderous.

Finally despairing of any assistance, she decided to go herself, to journey up the river without any guide or help of any kind. She hired a canoe and when the officers saw that she was making no idle threat, they relented and decided to give what help they could. Colonel Carlense Da Costa, of the Indian Service, with ten soldiers and guides, agreed to accompany her. But first he had a mission to attend to elsewhere. If Miss Steen would wait until he returned, he would set out with her. The Colonel departed and Miss Steen waited. She waited a full month and then decided that she was very probably being deceived by the Colonel who hoped to discourage her plans by exhausting her patience.

She loaded her luggage into her canoe and made ready to depart alone. There were no soldiers to send with her, but one of the officials felt that she should at least have a guide. He therefore commanded an aged Negro, familiar with the river, to accompany her. The Negro protested, but pressure was brought to bear and he finally consented on condition that his young son be permitted to accompany him. Finally Miss Steen set out in her native canoe with the two Negroes, but they proved more of a hindrance than a help, because they had hardly got away from Leopoldina before the old man decided that he wasn't hired to do any rowing, and Miss Steen thereupon found herself and the younger man acting as oarsmen for the old guide who dozed amidships, with practically no guiding to do, since the river proved an easy highway to follow, though rowing upstream was no picnic.

AT NIGHT they camped on sandbars in the river. After eight days of steady labor in hot, steamy weather and goaded by numerous insects, the party finally arrived at Bananal Island, where the two guides made their departure and left Miss Steen to her own devices.

No one on the island would go with her and she was again about to venture forth alone, when the sound of a motor boat was heard coming up the river and soon Colonel Da Costa and his ten guides and soldiers appeared in their long canoes propelled by outboard motors. Since nothing could dissuade her, the Colonel would go with her to help as best he could.

Up the Araguaya the party set forth in the direction of the Tapirape village and after a week of traveling came to the mouth of the Tapirape River. For five days they journeyed up this river, under great difficulties, for the dry season had set in and there were great distances where they had to carry their heavy boats over the shallow areas infested with snakes and crocodiles. Ultimately they found Indian tracks and curious fish nets near the banks. They left the boats under guard and turned inland, following a crude trail for four days, the last two of which they suffered greatly from thirst and were unable to eat their dried beans and rice for lack of water.

A Tapirape Indian was spied hiding behind a tree. He was hailed by one of the natives in the party who spoke Tupi, a dialect known to many of the Indian tribes. The Tapirape approached and led them to his village, where the whole tribe, numbering 220 persons, gathered about them in awe. Miss Steen immediately made overtures of friendship by handing out presents of beads. The Tupi spokesman helped matters, too, and they were welcomed. The visitors were offered roast monkey meat, bananas and peanuts, and plenty of water.

Miss Steen immediately began to look things over. She learned that the natives always went about stark naked, except that the women wore a small loin cloth which they wove of cotton. The women were also tattooed about the face. The natives were short, lighter in complexion than other Brazilian Indians, and lived by fishing, hunting and raising vegetables. They did some weaving of grasses, made earthenware bowls, and lived in communal houses, each under its chief.

ALTHOUGH Miss Steen wore breeches, it was soon discovered that she was a woman, and immediately one of the chiefs, by means of the Tupi interpreter, signified his desire to make Miss Steen his bride, in fact, his eighth bride, for it was learned that he already had seven wives. Miss Steen refused the flattering offer, but the chief was persistent.

That night, after she had inclosed herself in her zipper tent, she was awakened by the sound of Indians fumbling about for a way to get in, but they couldn't manipulate the zipper fastening and were afraid to cut the tent, fearing some magic. Miss Steen didn't shoot or cry out for fear the whole party would be attacked. After vainly trying to enter the tent for an hour, the Indians finally crept over to attack the Colonel and his party, who were sleeping in hammocks. But the Colonel awoke suddenly, flashed an electric torch in the Indians' faces and they retreated with shrill cries.

Next morning the Colonel insisted on an immediate departure. It was evident that the chief had decided to annex Miss Steen and would not hesitate to kill the Colonel and his men at the first opportunity. Miss Steen didn't relish the idea of a permanent residence among the Tapirapes, so they departed, although they were followed for two days by the Indians, who were kept from attacking the party only by the periodic discharge of firearms in the daytime and the flashing of the electric torch at night. On the way back to civilization Miss Steen stopped to study a more friendly tribe of Indians, from whom she obtained considerable material for her doctor's thesis.

Her chapter on the Tapirape Indians will undoubtedly be the most exciting and original contribution her book will have for the science of anthropology, but it won't be nearly as original as the contribution she almost was compelled to make to the community life of the Indians. Miss Steen, in spite of her experiences, speaks of making another trip to the Brazilian jungles in the near future. She doubts, however, that she'll venture among the Tapirapes again. One night there was almost too many.

“Devil Judd Tolliver” Dies With His Boots Off

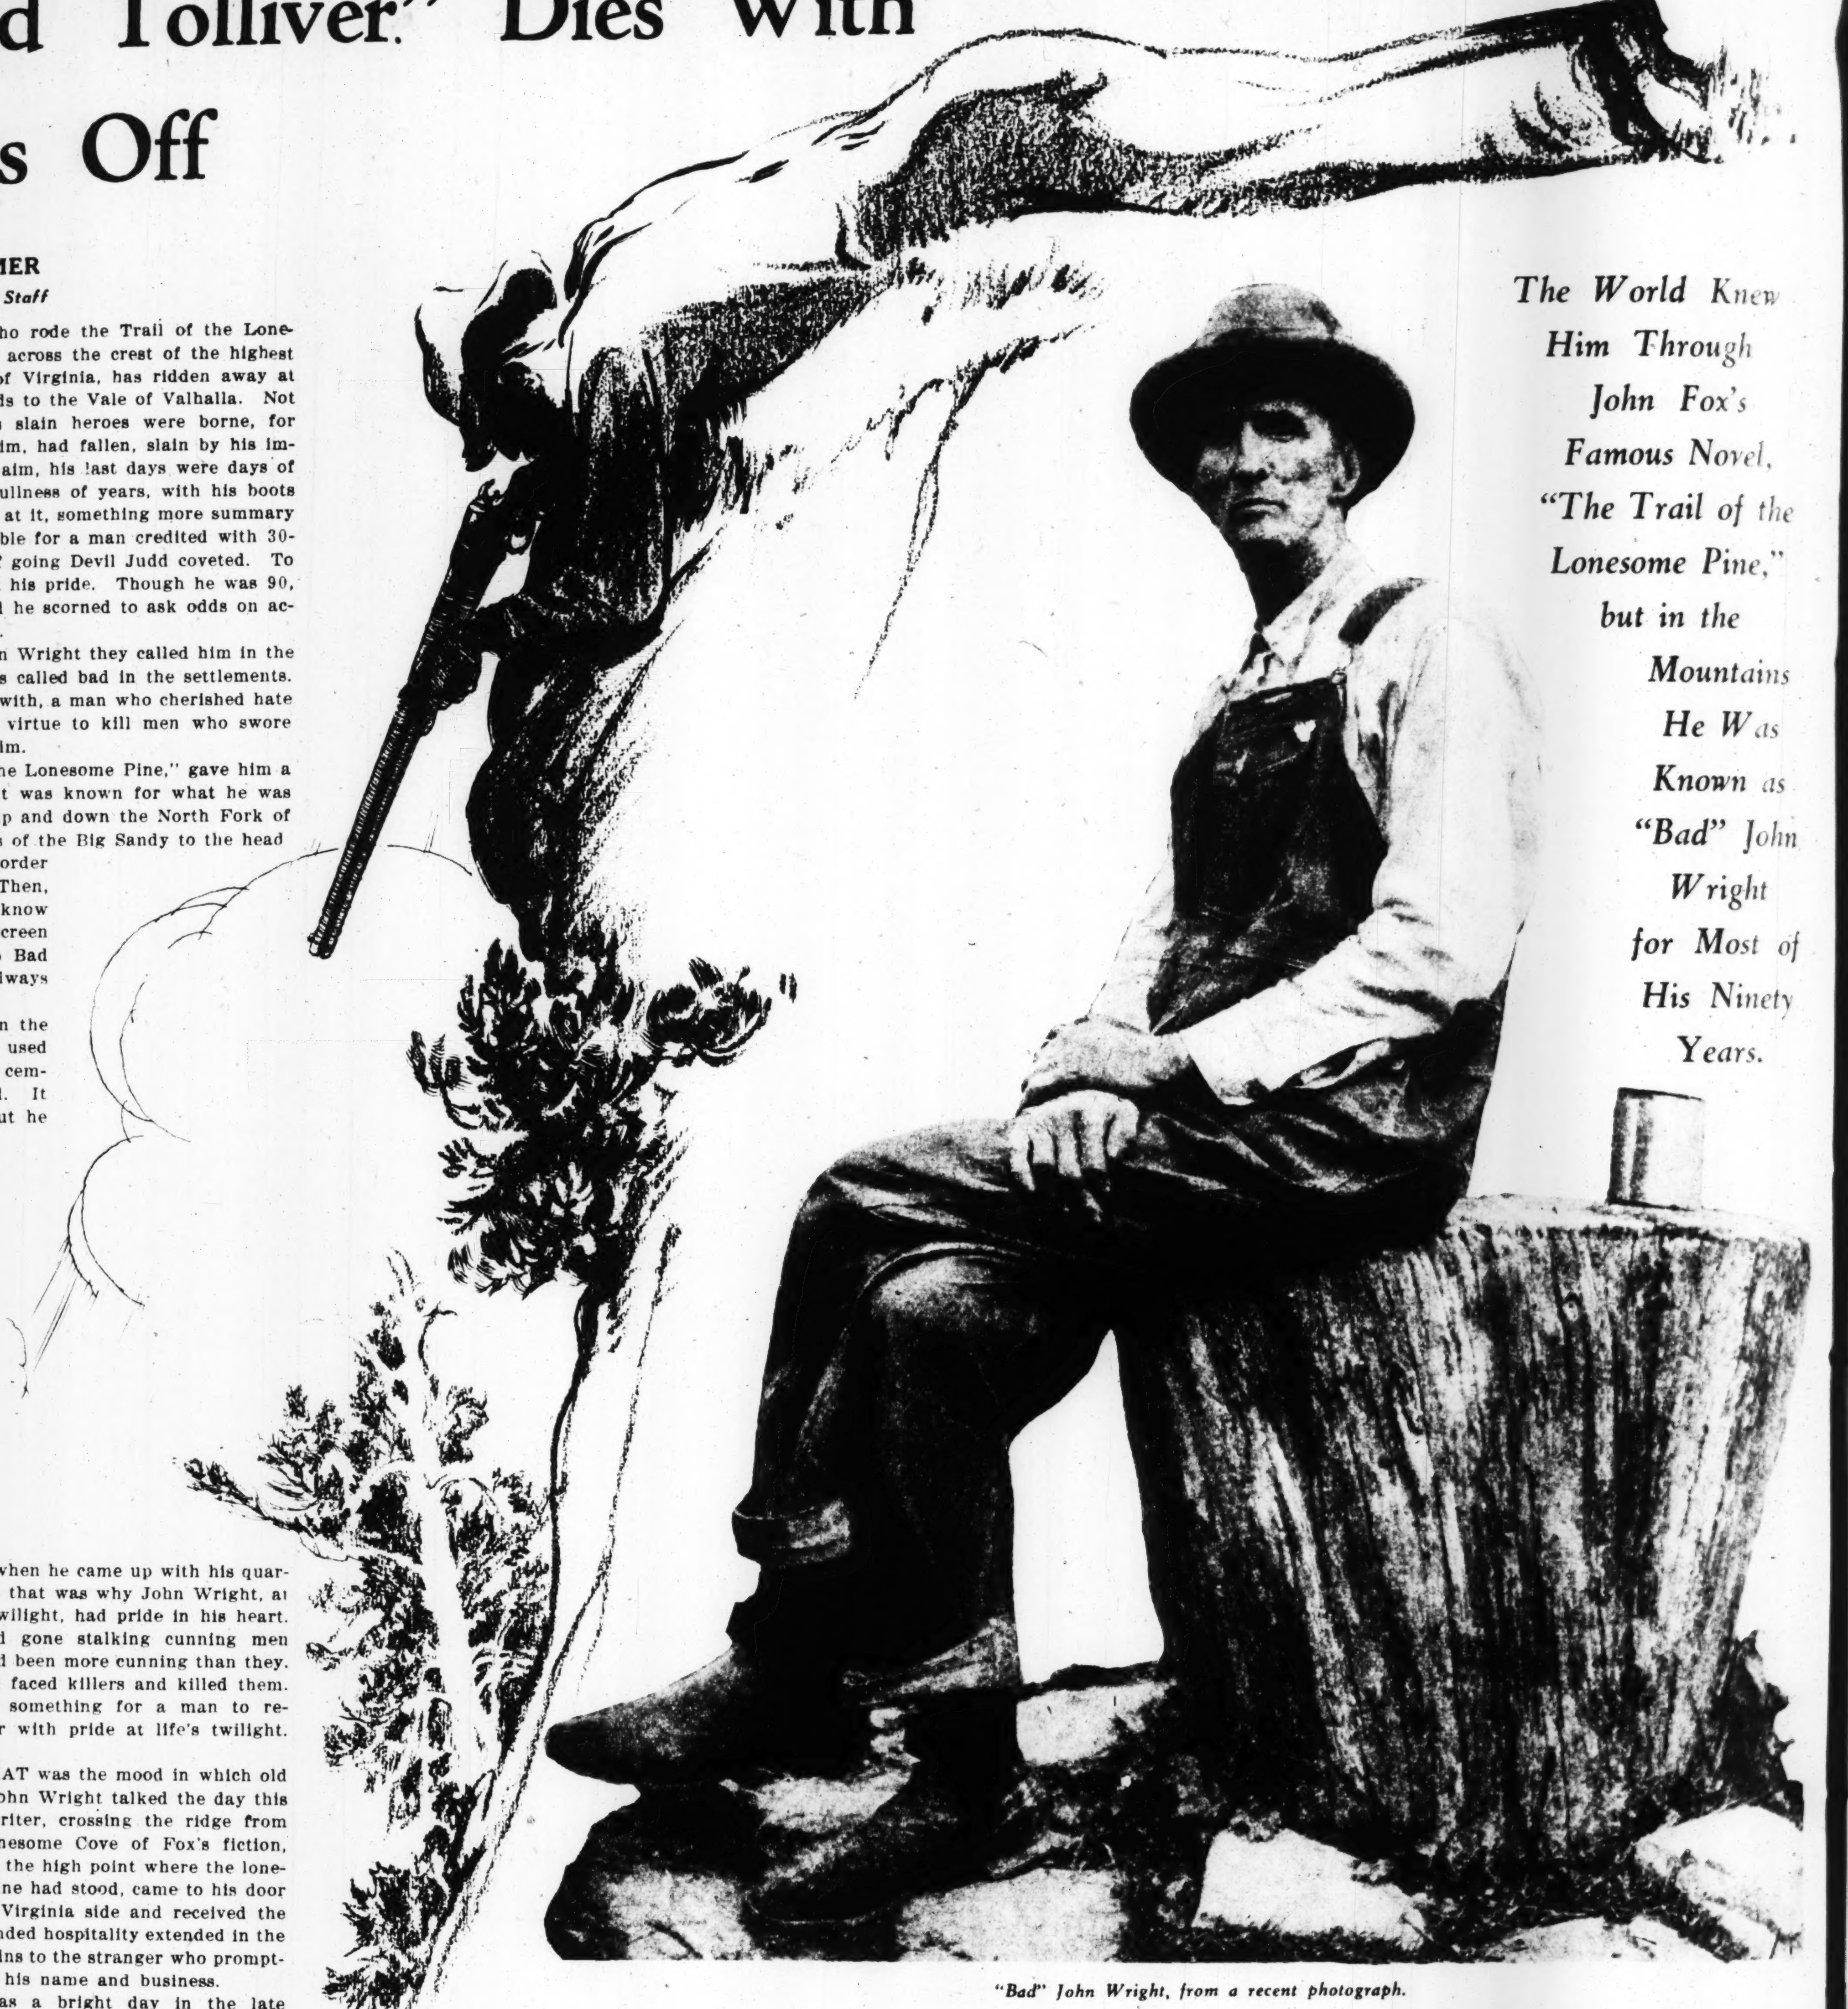
By F. A. BEHYMER
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

DEVIL JUDD TOLLIVER, who rode the Trail of the Lonesome Pine, winding its way across the crest of the highest Cumberlands to the Vales of Virginia, has ridden away at last along the trail that leads to the Vale of Valhalla. Not borne by the Valkyries, as slain heroes were borne, for though many men, facing him, had fallen, slain by his implacable spirit and his sure aim, his last days were days of peace and he died, in the fullness of years, with his boots off. If, in a way of looking at it, something more summary would have been more suitable for a man credited with 30-odd notches on his gun, still it was the kind of going Devil Judd coveted. To have died by the hand of man would have hurt his pride. Though he was 90, his hand was still steady and his aim true, and he scorned to ask odds on account of his years in a fair fight with any man.

John Wright was his true name. "Bad" John Wright they called him in the mountains. Not bad in the sense that a man is called bad in the settlements. Bad in the sense of being a bad man to meddle with, a man who cherished hate as something sacred and accounted it a virile virtue to kill men who swore by the same code, to keep them from killing him.

Long before John Fox Jr., in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," gave him a wider fame as Judd Tolliver, Bad John Wright was known for what he was all along the barrier borderland of Kentucky, up and down the North Fork of the Kentucky and the Elkhorn, from the breaks of the Big Sandy to the head waters of the Cumberland, and across the border as far as the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia. Then, more than 20 years ago, the outland came to know him as the feud fighter of fiction and play and screen and song. Not that it made any difference to Bad John Wright. He kept on living as he had always lived, and died, the other day, as he had lived.

Across the Cumberland ridge from where, on the Virginia side, Wright spent his last days, there used to be, on the headwaters of the Elkhorn, a little cemetery that was called Wright's buryin' ground. It was not exactly Wright's personal cemetery, but he had done more than anybody else to fill it and it was according to the mountain men's notion of giving credit where credit was due that they called it his. Part of it is there yet, graves marked by tilting, unchiseled stones, but most of it has been obliterated by the town builders who came when Wright sold his land rights over the divide in Lonesome Cove.



The World Knew Him Through John Fox's Famous Novel, "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," but in the Mountains He Was Known as "Bad" John Wright for Most of His Ninety Years.

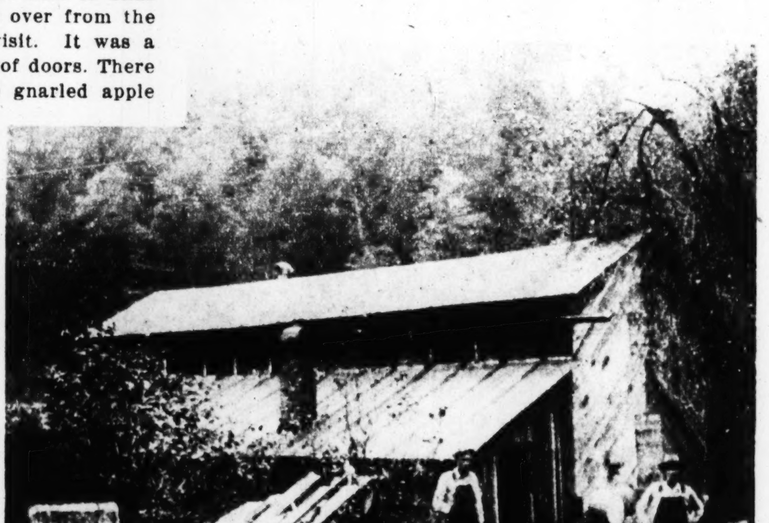
"Bad" John Wright, from a recent photograph.

IT IS only fair to the memory of Wright to say that, from first to last, when he was doing more than any other man to fill graves in the buryin' ground, he was an officer of the law in one way or another, and he always said that all his killing was done in the line of duty. If, in the days of the Wright-Hall feud, or at other times, personal feelings were involved, it was something that couldn't be helped, and Wright was not the man to draw fine distinctions in such matters. Generally speaking, the circumstances under which he did his killing were such that it was reasonably certain that somebody would be killed. It was up to him to see that he wasn't the one. It was something that he spoke about with a certain pardonable pride. It couldn't be called satisfaction. Something finer than that. The pride of the victor in a game where victory went to the player who was a split second quicker than the other, or the pride of a capable workman in a well-done task.

Considered as a game, it was a rough game that Wright played in the late years of the last century and the early years of this. The mountain border was not only fertile soil for family feuds, but it was the playground of desperate men who committed foul deeds in one state and fled across the border to the haven of the other. They were men whose boast it was that they would not be taken alive. The officer who went after them faced ambush or, eluding that, a fight to the death when he came up with his quarry. So that was why John Wright, at life's twilight, had pride in his heart. He had gone stalking cunning men and had been more cunning than they. He had faced killers and killed them. It was something for a man to remember with pride at life's twilight.

THAT was the mood in which old John Wright talked the day this writer, crossing the ridge from the Lonesome Cove of Fox's fiction, passing the high point where the lonesome pine had stood, came to his door on the Virginia side and received the openhanded hospitality extended in the mountains to the stranger who promptly tells his name and business.

It was a bright day in the late autumn and Wright was host to Silas Ratliff, who had come over from the Kentucky side for a visit. It was a day fit for visiting out of doors. There were chairs under the gnarled apple tree and a weathered stump by the well with its chain windlass. It was a suitable place for men to sit and talk about men's affairs. Wright's wife kept herself within and while the visit lasted did not appear, answering from the depths of the house when her man, finding his memory at fault, called to her.



John Wright's home in the mountains, where he was visited by the author of this story.

His were the mellow memories of a man who could count 90 years back to the cabin on the North Fork at the mouth of Boone, Letcher County, Kentucky, where he was born. He had growed up in the mountains, but as boy and man he had seen a good bit of the world. He was a scout with Morgan's raiders on the Confed side. The Union ketched him and put him in the prison house at old Fort Smith and after they let him out he joined up with the Union and fit through to the end of the war. So you might say he had been on both sides in that trouble, but as for the troubles in the mountains later on, he was always on one side—the side of the law. For many years he was in the Government secret service, and for 25 years he was justice of the peace and deputy sheriff in Letcher County. Them early days there was feuds, worlds of 'em, but him, he was always on the side of the law, and he never had a family feud on earth. When there was trouble he went after whoever was making it, and sometimes they tried to kill him, in which case he generally was too quick and they got kilt instead. That, or he brought them in and sent them to Frankfort prison.

Some of them organized what they called regulators and said they were going to help enforce the law but they went plumb contrary to the law. He went out looking for them. Six men he had with him. They came up with the regulators on Boone. There were eleven of them. They had a big fight and one man was killed and two wounded. After that the regulators didn't last long. He brought in 19 and sent them to Frankfort and when they came out they were the quietest people you ever saw. First to last he had sent more men to the pen than you ever seen or heard tell of, maybe 50.

There needn't to have been killin's, not so many anyway, but sometimes they wouldn't surrender and when they wouldn't something had to be done. There was that one who stole a horse at Cynthiana. "I followed that feller through West Virginia and Tennessee to Cumberland Gap. He pretty nigh kilt two horses. When one of them was wore out he took another. I caught up with him at the Gap, and rode up to him and said 'I want you.' He dropped off on the other side and shot under his horse at me. His horse jumped away and I shot him between the eyes. He had three guns and $930 in a belt. I never did find out who he was."

Bringing them in, dead or alive, was something the war had fitted him for. He was a pretty rough boy in the war, among the enemy. That's what he went into the war for, to fight.

AFTER the war it was pretty much the same. Men in the mountins was violatin' the law. That was war, too, in a way of speakin'. It was rough work but it had to be done. Somebody had to do it and it seemed like nobody else wouldn't. There was feuds that outlasted the war. Feuds that he didn't have nothing to do with, personal, but it was his duty to break 'em up. Doin' that got both sides down on him and times he had to fight both. They laywayed him on every side of the road. But he was never where they thought he'd be. He'd be somewheres else and they'd have their laywayin' for nothin'.

Once there was nine men waitin' for him on both sides of the Lonesome Pine Trail. His conscience told him that was the wrong place for him to be. He went back to Pound and 15 miles round about to Boone's Fork.

Another time his son Mart was with him. And something said to him they didn't have no business on that road. So he said "Mart, we're in the wrong place. Let's leave it." Later he was told there was 14 men layin' for him that day, seven at Horse Gap and seven at another place.

Lots of times it was like that. They'd set traps and he'd dodge 'em. Good citizens befriended him and told him when people were layin' for him.

ONCE when he was coming from Wise a neighbor told him 20 men were layin' for him at the fork of the roads at Payne Gap. He took Mart and went there and they opened fire but they just missed him every crack. Some of them was his own kinfolks, too. You might say that looked like a family feud, but it wasn't exactly that. Even though his nephew was the leader, and the smartest one among 'em. Not smart enough though—"I outsmarted him and ketched him later and sent him to Frankfort and when he got out he never come back."

Takin' a hand in the feuds, even if they wasn't his, meant killin's. He reckoned he had kilt as many as seven men in the feuds. When there was a feud fight somebody had to die —"They died, I didn't. There never was a better shot than I was. I tried to kill every one that I shot at. I don't know how many I kilt, twenty maybe. I lost count. They say it was more'n thirty, do they? It don't seem to me like it was that many."

That suggested a discussion of fire arms and Bad John gave it as his seasoned opinion, backed up by a world of experience, that when it came to fire arms there wasn't anything better than his army 44. Not for close up shootin', anyway. He raised his voice:

"Mommy, where's my 44 gun?"

"It's out there on the table, Dad."

SAN FRANCISCO.

THE "Prof" came back to San Quentin Penitentiary the other day to serve the rest of his life sentence for murder. "Prof" is what the old-timers call him. The newcomers refer to him respectfully as "the professor." His name is Damasus Garcia Dolores Gallur, but such a sonorous name hardly seems to fit a bent, unromantic, old figure like the "Prof." The prison records list him merely as Convict No. 29,080. That fits, all right.

Gallur is a broken and disappointed man. The hope and enthusiasm he used to show before his parole came are quite vanished now. He mopes around the old men's quarters and sits with his shocky, graying head in his hands. There's nothing left to live for. During the first 14 years of his term he gained nation-wide acclaim as a composer and bandmaster. His music is still played throughout the United States. For 13 of his 14 years he conducted the San Quentin Band, a picked organization of 50 convict musicians, and for a similar period he directed the prison orchestra. He wrote hundreds of selections in his cell. Indeed, he won a prize of $1000 with one composition in competition with hundreds of other musicians who didn't have to write their music on a prison bench. It was a march dedicated to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, held in San Francisco in 1915.

And all that he did during those 14 years was performed under the inspiration of hope—hope for future freedom. All that Gallur asked for was a chance to return to the outside world and take his place in musical affairs. Formerly he had been a solo cornetist in John Philip Sousa's band. With his added reputation as bandmaster now behind him, he felt he could reestablish himself and live down the stigma of murderer.

The chance came eventually, but now it is gone. On Saturday, January 24, the gates of San Quentin opened again for Gallur after 18 months of freedom. He wept as he walked back into the yard. Sick and penniless, he had been unable to find work and the prison authorities ordered his parole canceled.

He found the band that he loved, his "child," as he called it, under the leadership of another, also a murderer under sentence of life imprisonment. Prison authorities found him too old and too weak for penal labor, so they sent him to the old men's ward.

Gallur's career has been a hectic one since that day in 1915 when he shot and killed L. B. Hotchkiss, a money lender, with whom he had quarreled over money matters. Romance and intrigue have been crowded into the bandmaster's life. The name of Gallur has been in the papers month after month.

HOW he tricked his fellow convicts into believing that he was making a fortune out of his composition while in prison, forms one of the most interesting chapters of his story—but to begin at the beginning.

Gallur was pursuing a successful career as a music teacher in Oakland when the quarrel with Hotchkiss occurred and Gallur killed him.

His trial for murder attracted much attention. While he pleaded momentary insanity, his lawyers were obliged to face a battery of attorneys who had been engaged by Gallur's relatives for no other purpose than to put him away for life. They feared for their safety should he ever return to the outside world.

Gallur made a spectacular fight against a life sentence. But there were circumstances that would not be explained away. One was that after the murder he had secreted his victim's body in a closet while he strode up and down the dead man's home in rage.

An hour afterwards, still in the heat of temper, he had dragged the body from its hiding place. A maniacal idea overcame him. He would string the corpse to a flagpole outside the house. Gallur was thus engaged when deputy sheriffs arrived to arrest him. They had been summoned by neighbors who heard the shots.

Prison the Only Sanctuary "Prof" Gallur Could Find

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

Famous Bandmaster Who Lived for Years in Hopes of a Parole Now Back in San Quentin Because He Couldn't Find Work.

SAN FRANCISCO.

THE "Prof" came back to San Quentin Penitentiary the other day to serve the rest of his life sentence for murder. "Prof" is what the old-timers call him. The newcomers refer to him respectfully as "the professor." His name is Damasus Garcia Dolores Gallur, but such a sonorous name hardly seems to fit a bent, unromantic, old figure like the "Prof." The prison records list him merely as Convict No. 29,080. That fits, all right.

Gallur is a broken and disappointed man. The hope and enthusiasm he used to show before his parole came are quite vanished now. He mopes around the old men's quarters and sits with his shocky, graying head in his hands. There's nothing left to live for. During the first 14 years of his term he gained nation-wide acclaim as a composer and bandmaster. His music is still played throughout the United States. All that Gallur asked for was a chance to return to the outside world and take his place in musical affairs. Formerly he had been a solo cornetist in John Philip Sousa's band. With his added reputation as bandmaster now behind him, he felt he could reestablish himself and live down the stigma of murderer.

He found the band that he loved, his "child," as he called it, under the leadership of another, also a murderer under sentence of life imprisonment. Prison authorities found him too old and too weak for penal labor, so they sent him to the old men's ward.

Gallur's career has been a hectic one since that day in 1915 when he shot and killed L. B. Hotchkiss, a money lender, with whom he had quarreled over money matters. Romance and intrigue have been crowded into the bandmaster's life. The name of Gallur has been in the papers month after month.

HOW he tricked his fellow convicts into believing that he was making a fortune out of his composition while in prison, forms one of the most interesting chapters of his story, but to begin at the beginning.

Gallur was pursuing a successful career as a music teacher in Oakland when the quarrel with Hotchkiss occurred and Gallur killed him.

His trial for murder attracted much attention. While he pleaded momentary insanity, his lawyers were obliged to face a battery of attorneys who had been engaged by Gallur's relatives for no other purpose than to put him away for life. They feared for their safety should he ever return to the outside world.

Gallur made a spectacular fight against a life sentence. But there were circumstances that would not be explained away. One was that after the murder he had secreted his victim's body in a closet while he strode up and down the dead man's home in rage.

An hour afterwards, still in the heat of temper he had dragged the body from its hiding place. A maniacal idea overcame him. He would string the corpse to a flagpole outside the house. Gallur was thus engaged when deputy sheriffs arrived to arrest him. They had been summoned by neighbors who heard the shots.

That defeated the plea of temporary insanity, and Gallur in the fall of 1915 entered San Quentin under sentence of life imprisonment.

At once he plunged into his musical endeavors. He found in prison a small orchestra and a number of prisoners with musical training. There were others with a liking for music, potential players who needed instruction and instruments.

Prison workers heard of Gallur's ambition and came to his support. They obtained funds for instruments. Gallur, meanwhile, was training those who were able to get instruments from relatives. Before long the prison authorities were amazed at the ability diplayed by the prison band that Gallur had organized in a remarkably short time and was conducting.

Then he began composing music for his men to play. They held the admiration of prisoners and visitors alike when they played Gallur's original compositions at Sunday morning concerts within the prison walls.

As fast as a composition became popular at the prison Gallur sent it out to other bands throughout the country, to publishing houses and to musical organizations.

HE GAINED much popularity. Then came word of the exposition prize march competition. Gallur at once set to composing a piece to enter in the contest. He wrote a march full of the spirit of the world outside and his was adjudged the best of the avalanche of marches submitted.

Another composition that started with the prison band he called "The Gold Stripe March" and its popularity went outside the walls. Visitors to San Quentin asked first to meet the bandmaster. Dressed in his neat conductor's uniform, he was a picturesque sight, for when his organization played, its members, serving terms for a wide range of offenses, were allowed to discard the prison gray for gold-braided costumes.

Gallur seemed oblivious to his surroundings. He seemed to live in the environment of the music that he loved. His face beamed as he spoke of his work with the band and orchestra. But to friends Gallur confided that he was pining for freedom and groups were formed on the outside to work for his parole.

"Prof" Damasus Gallur.

Then came another chapter that brought Gallur more prominently into the limelight. There had been bloody race riots at the prison, wild, terrible battles in the jute mill between the Filipinos and the Americans.

At the height of the turmoil a new warden, Frank J. Smith, assumed charge. Smith at once displayed an understanding of human problems. When the riots had been stopped, Warden Smith remarked one day to his secretary:

"I think one of the causes of discontent is the dull, cold, gloomy atmosphere of the mess hall. A thousand men sit down to eat at a time. That's when their thoughts turn to home and that's when they get melancholy. Why not let them have music with their meals?"

Not a word was said to the convicts. But on the appointed day as the lines of felons filed into the gigantic mess hall Gallur's band seated on an improvised dais at the head of the room struck up a jazz two-step.

Felon feet switched instantly from the dull shuffle of a lockstep to the rhythm of jazz. The men burst into smiles. The practice has been continued to this day.

ABOUT this time stories were leaking out of the prison about the fortune that Gallur was accumulating by selling his compositions outside. He showed many checks for royalties to his fellow convicts. Most of them were for amounts in four and five figures.

He became more of an idol than he had been before. Everyone who could gain his hearing befriended him. Some stories estimated his wealth at $50,000. Others said he had earned more than $100,000 since his imprisonment. Gallur modestly added to the color of the situation by telling of fabulous salaries that were offered him by music houses and musical organizations all over the country for his services. So he pleaded for parole.

Time and again his case came before the State Board of Prison Directors. Each time his plea for parole was denied. Influential friends on the outside came to his aid. The board was divided on the question of freeing him.

The opposing group always cited the grim flagpole incident at the time of the murder as proof that Gallur was not sane and that freeing him might prove a dangerous mistake.

And then romance entered the case. Prison authorities for months had been attracted by a beautiful young woman who called every Saturday to visit the bandmaster and spent every minute of her allotted visiting time in absorbing conversation.

Guards noticed the twinkle in their eyes and a love affair was suspected. Finally both admitted that through correspondence they had fallen in love. The girl, a music teacher from a nearby town, wanted to marry Gallur and said she would wait for him until he was freed on parole.

The affair continued and Gallur showed his fellow musicians love notes from his sweetheart.

Still the years passed without success in the fight for freedom.

"I'm getting old," he would say to callers weeping. "Why won't they give me a chance to make good before I become too infirm to work and to show them that I can come back?" Many were touched by the earnestness of his pleas.

Then in August, 1929, after he had served fourteen years in prison, Gallur stepped out of his "band office" off the prison yard one morning, staggered, and fell headlong down the stairs. Guards and convicts rushed to his aid. They carried him to the prison hospital. Doctors said it was apoplexy and a hopeless case. For weeks Gallur lay in a stupor, paralyzed and unable to utter a word.

THEN, slowly, he began to show signs of returning vitality. The story of his plight was circulated outside.

Friends came to his aid. A prominent musician who had played with him under Sousa organized a group of musical people who volunteered to sponsor him if he were released on parole and to arrange for his care.

Finally the prison board agreed, and in August, 1929, he was allowed to leave San Quentin on parole. Still partially paralyzed, he was taken by automobile to the most expensive hospital in San Francisco and provided with the best care at a cost of something like $50 a day.

But his sponsors suddenly were jolted by an unexpected situation. They learned to their surprise that the story of Gallur's wealth accumulated while in prison was a myth and that his "fortune" amounted to only a few hundred dollars.

It developed that while Gallur's composition had been played throughout the country, he had not profited financially as he had given his fellow prisoners to believe. To the contrary, it developed that he had deliberately set out to deceive them so that his importance would increase in their eyes.

When he received notice of a $10 royalty, he altered his letter to read $1000 and so the impression of his wealth grew wildly. At about that time it came to light that a group of former prisoners had perpetrated a daring fraud before his release, collecting thousands of dollars from sympathizers of Gallur on the pretext that the money was needed to campaign for his liberation.

NONE of these contributions, of course, were used in behalf of Gallur, nor did they have anything to do with his parole. The prison directors convinced themselves that Gallur was innocent of any part in the fraud.

Nor did Gallur's romance materialize, for the prison regulations forbid a paroled man to marry.

When it became known that Gallur could not finance the expensive suite set up for him in the exclusive hospital to which he had been taken, he was removed at the expense of his sponsors to more moderately-priced quarters in a suburban hotel and there he regained his health.

Efforts to find him work failed and in desperation he went to Los Angeles. He did find a place there composing music in a talkie studio but lack of experience made itself evident and a short time later he was out of employment.

For weeks he tramped the streets looking for work that he could not find. Without funds and in weakened health, he begged for money to return to his native Spain but the prison directors would not permit him to leave the country. Finally, in desperation, he reported to the state parole officer in Los Angeles. His return to prison was ordered at once.

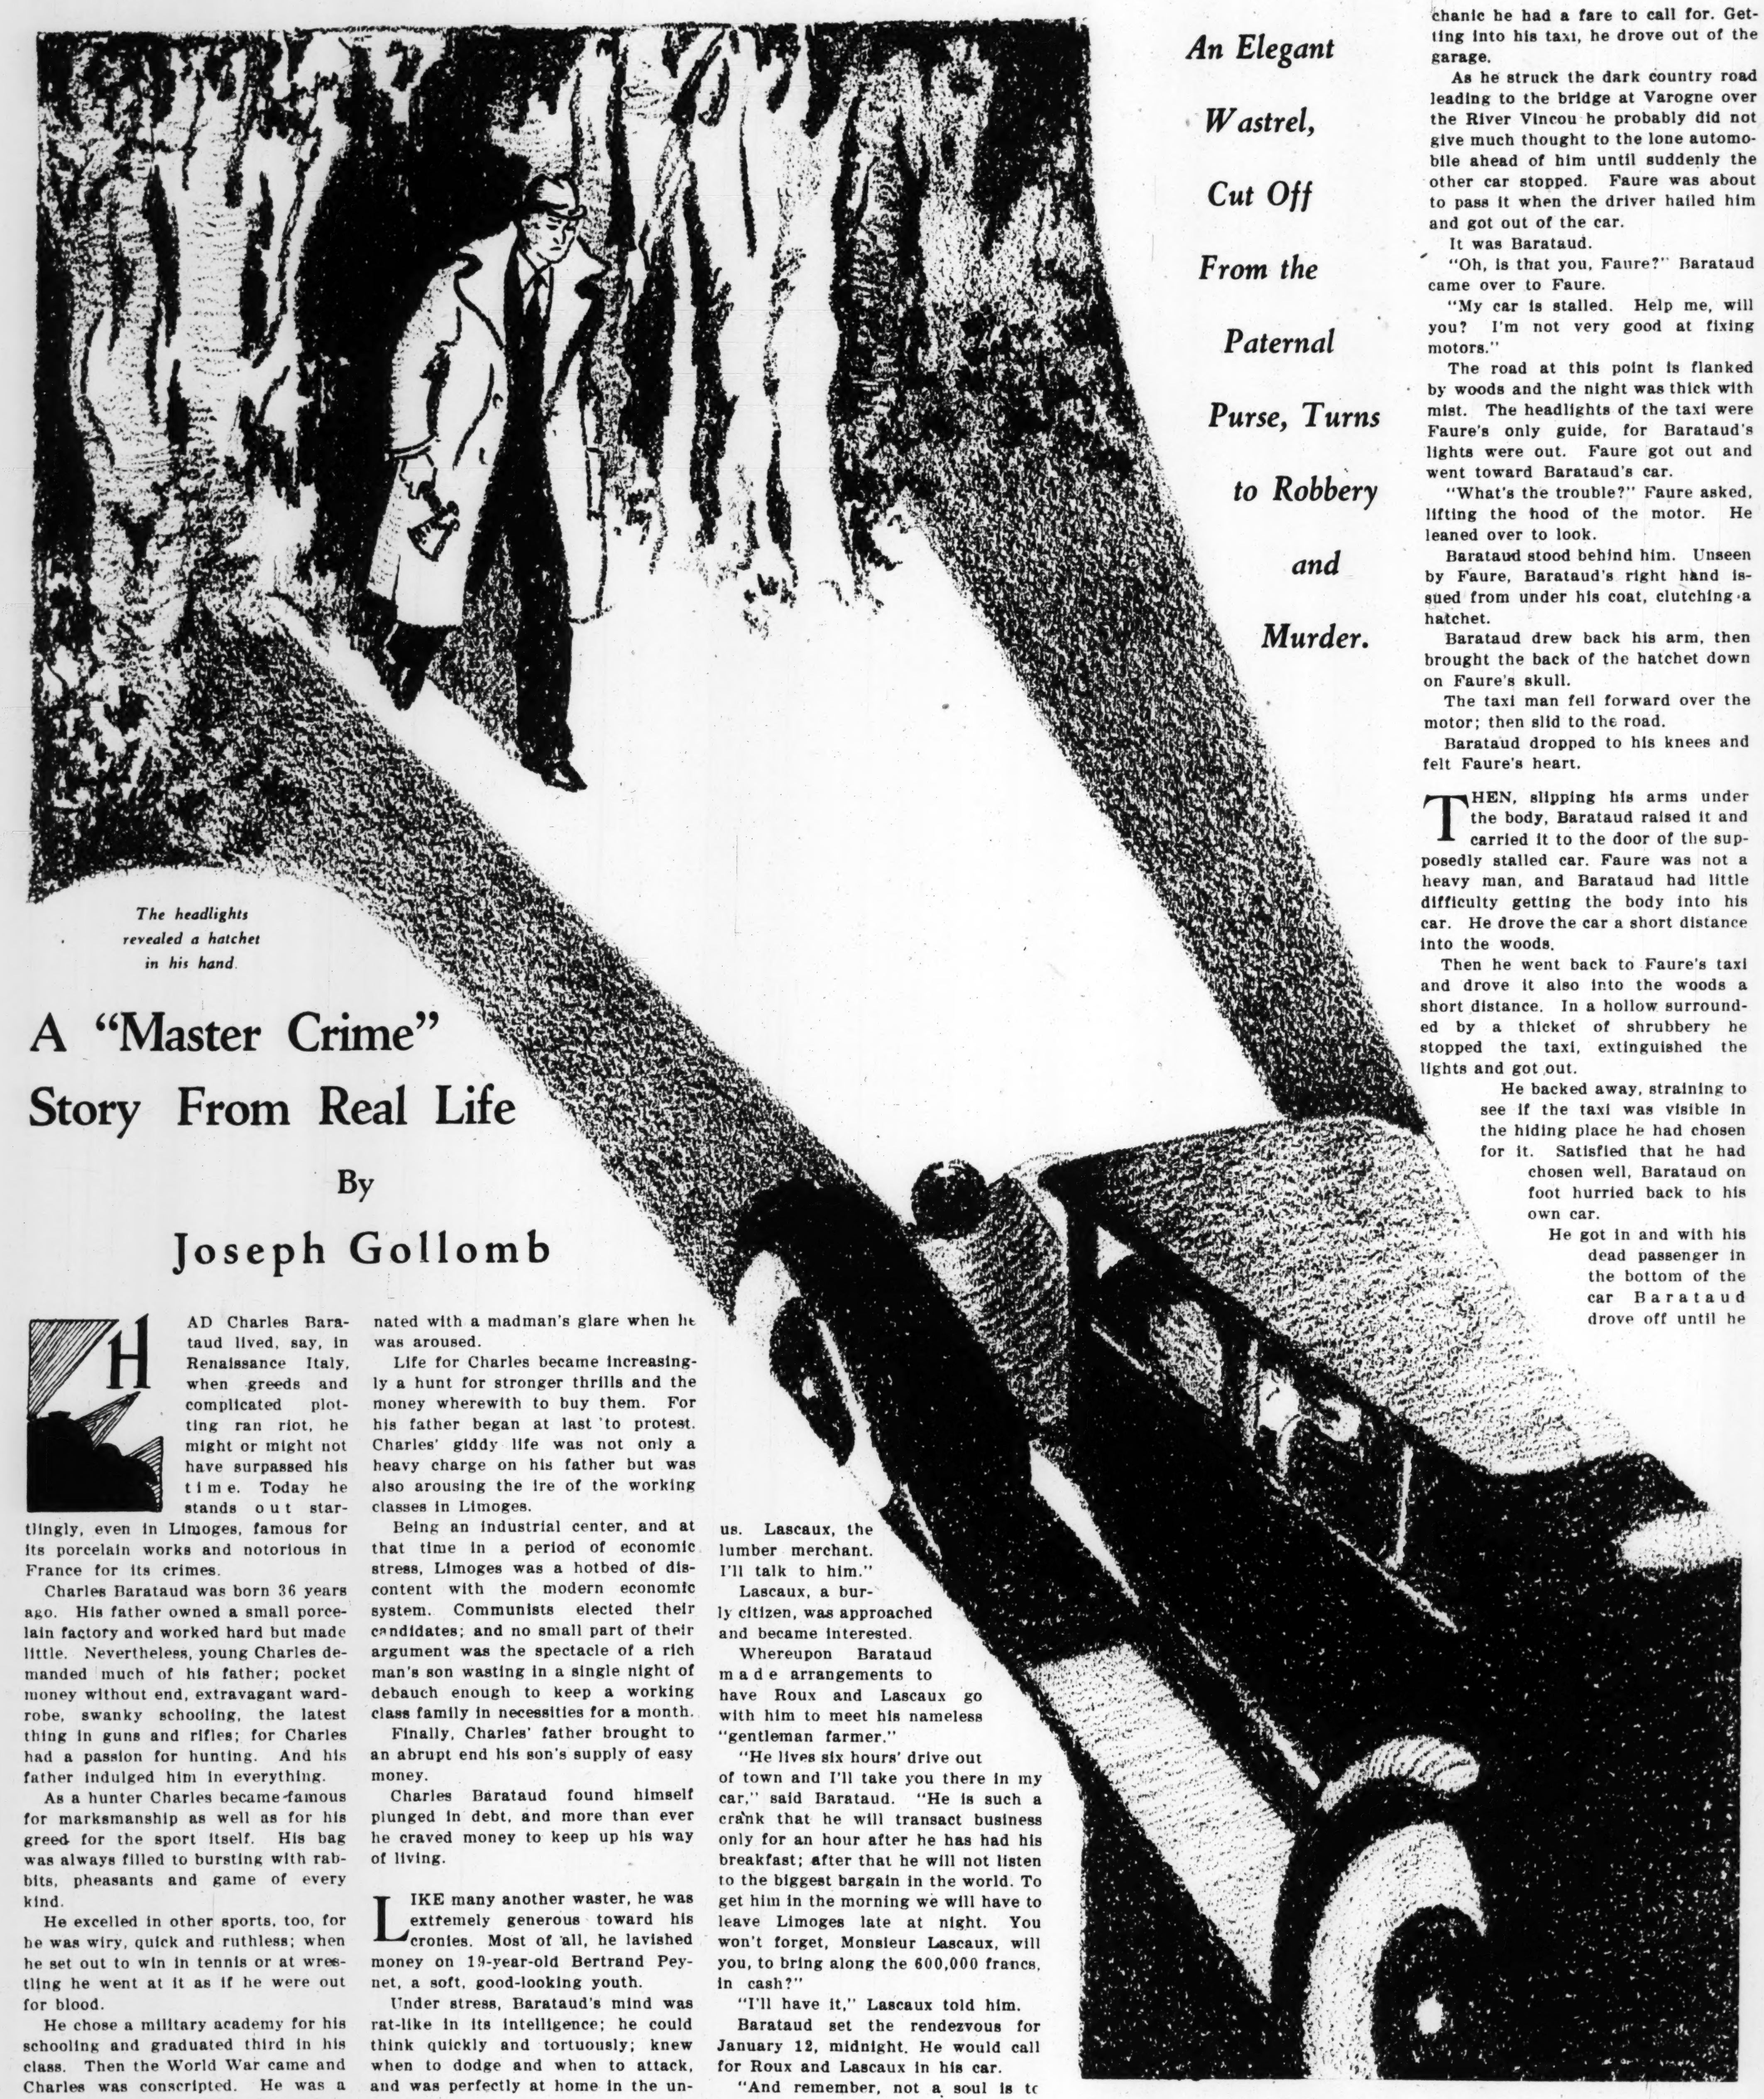
The SINISTER DESIGNS of MONSIEUR BARATAUD



The headlights revealed a hatchet in his hand

An Elegant Wastrel, Cut Off From the Paternal Purse, Turns to Robbery and Murder.

A "Master Crime" Story From Real Life

By Joseph Gollomb

HAD Charles Barataud lived, say, in Renaissance Italy, when greeds and complicated plotting ran riot, he might or might not have surpassed his time. Today he stands out startlingly, even in Limoges, famous for its porcelain works and notorious in France for its crimes.

Charles Barataud was born 36 years ago. His father owned a small porcelain factory and worked hard but made little. Nevertheless, young Charles demanded much of his father; pocket money without end, extravagant wardrobe, swanky schooling, the latest thing in guns and rifles; for Charles had a passion for hunting. And his father indulged him in everything.

As a hunter Charles became famous for marksmanship as well as for his greed for the sport itself. His bag was always filled to bursting with rabbits, pheasants and game of every kind.

He excelled in other sports, too, for he was wiry, quick and ruthless; when he set out to win in tennis or at wrestling he went at it as if he were out for blood.

He chose a military academy for his schooling and graduated third in his class. Then the World War came and Charles was conscripted. He was a disobedient soldier, but made good as a killer.

His father meanwhile also made good in his line. The war brought him such prosperity that when young Charles was demobilized in 1919 he came back to find his father one of the richest manufacturers in the country.

Charles need do nothing now but spend his father's money. The war had aroused strong lusts in natures like Charles', and he plunged into a career of dissipation in Limoges that enriched many a night club and dive there and became a drain on his father's purse.

In the early part of 1928, when this story properly commences, Charles Barataud was a hectic figure to contemplate. Of middle stature and wiry as ever, he was keyed up by drugs and alcohol until his nerves were taut as fiddlestrings. He might have been considered good-looking, for he had a slender, oval face, a high forehead and a head of glossy, curling, black hair, but his nose was a little like a hawk's; his mouth was a cruel slit, and his eyes were extraordinary. They had thick lids, over staring white orbs, with small, black pupils that glittered, and a shifty expression in them alternated with a madman's glare when he was aroused.

Life for Charles became increasingly a hunt for stronger thrills and the money wherewith to buy them. For his father began at last to protest. Charles' giddy life was not only a heavy charge on his father but was also arousing the ire of the working classes in Limoges.

Being an industrial center, and at that time in a period of economic stress, Limoges was a hotbed of discontent with the modern economic system. Communists elected their candidates; and no small part of their argument was the spectacle of a rich man's son wasting in a single night of debauch enough to keep a working class family in necessities for a month.

Finally, Charles' father brought to an abrupt end his son's supply of easy money.

Charles Barataud found himself plunged in debt, and more than ever he craved money to keep up his way of living.

LIKE many another waster, he was extremely generous toward his cronies. Most of all, he lavished money on 19-year-old Bertrand Peynet, a soft, good-looking youth.

Under stress, Barataud's mind was rat-like in its intelligence; he could think quickly and tortuously; knew when to dodge and when to attack, and was perfectly at home in the underworld.

With only his character and his wits to enable him to find the ready money he must have, he sought out a man by the name of Roux, a real estate agent. Roux in the past had fallen foul of the law, but he had paid with prison, and was slowly regaining public confidence by his efforts to live down his past.

"Look here, Roux," Barataud said to him, "if you can find a customer I have a bargain that should bring you and me handsome commissions. I know an old eccentric who has timber land worth a million francs. It has been taxed at that by the authorities. For a couple of days I have an option to buy it for 600,000 francs. If I can sell that land it will not only be a bargain for the buyer, whoever he may be, there will also be 30,000 francs apiece for you and me. But there is a condition attached to the sale. This old codger once got a bad check, and he has a perfect phobia on the subject of checks. He will sell his timber land at a real sacrifice, but only if he gets the purchase price cash in hand. . . . What do you think of it?"

Roux pondered Barataud's proposition.

"I think I know just the man for us. Lascaux, the lumber merchant. I'll talk to him."

Lascaux, a burly citizen, was approached and became interested.

Whereupon Barataud made arrangements to have Roux and Lascaux go with him to meet his nameless "gentleman farmer."

"He lives six hours' drive out of town and I'll take you there in my car," said Barataud. "He is such a crank that he will transact business only for an hour after he has had his breakfast; after that he will not listen to the biggest bargain in the world. To get him in the morning we will have to leave Limoges late at night. You won't forget, Monsieur Lascaux, will you, to bring along the 600,000 francs, in cash?"

"I'll have it," Lascaux told him.

Barataud set the rendezvous for January 12, midnight. He would call for Roux and Lascaux in his car.

"And remember, not a soul is to know about our leaving," he warned. "We don't want anyone to get ahead of us."

THAT evening Barataud went to the garage where he kept his car and dawdled about, gossiping with the mechanic there. His eyes as he talked, however, were sharply on the lookout.

After some time a taxi rolled in. It was owned by the man who was driving it, Etienne Faure, who made a good living with his taxi for himself, his wife and his two children. By dint of long hours and hard work he had managed even to buy their home, a single-story house with a bit of garden.

Faure joined Barataud and the mechanic in small talk. Then Barataud excused himself, saying he had a "gallant" date to keep. He left in his own automobile.

The taxi driver kept on chatting with the mechanic. The telephone in the garage office rang.

"Excuse me a moment, Etienne," the garage man said. "I hear the telephone."

He came back soon. "Etienne, it's for you," he said. "A woman's voice, but not your wife."

Faure was puzzled. "Who else would know that I am at the garage, he wondered.

The mechanic gave him a nudge. "Go on, you rascal, trying to pull the wool over my eyes! But don't worry, I shan't tell your wife."

"Oh, stop it!" Faure said, impatiently. "You know I don't play around with women."

"Just the same, it sounds like a woman's voice."

Faure went into the office and took up the receiver.

"This is Faure," he said.

"YOU don't know me," said a voice, a woman's apparently. "But several times I rode in your taxi, and tonight I came past just as you were entering the garage. I'm out on the road near the Vincou Bridge. I went out driving with a man—we have had a quarrel. I am waiting for you to take me into the city."

"But I'm through for the day," Faure protested.

"I'll pay double fare."

Faure hesitated, then said he would come.

"I'm counting on you," said the voice.

Faure went back and told the mechanic he had a fare to call for. Getting into his taxi, he drove out of the garage.

As he struck the dark country road leading to the bridge at Varogne over the River Vincou he probably did not give much thought to the lone automobile ahead of him until suddenly the other car stopped. Faure was about to pass it when the driver hailed him and got out of the car.

It was Barataud.

"Oh, is that you, Faure?" Barataud came over to Faure.

"My car is stalled. Help me, will you? I'm not very good at fixing motors."

The road at this point is flanked by woods and the night was thick with mist. The headlights of the taxi were Faure's only guide, for Barataud's lights were out. Faure got out and went toward Barataud's car.

"What's the trouble?" Faure asked, lifting the hood of the motor. He leaned over to look.

Barataud stood behind him. Unseen by Faure, Barataud's right hand issued from under his coat, clutching a hatchet.

Barataud drew back his arm, then brought the back of the hatchet down on Faure's skull.

The taxi man fell forward over the motor; then slid to the road.

Barataud dropped to his knees and felt Faure's heart.

THEN, slipping his arms under the body, Barataud raised it and carried it to the door of the supposedly stalled car. Faure was not a heavy man, and Barataud had little difficulty getting the body into his car. He drove the car a short distance into the woods.

Then he went back to Faure's taxi and drove it also into the woods a short distance. In a hollow surrounded by a thicket of shrubbery he stopped the taxi, extinguished the lights and got out.

He backed away, straining to see if the taxi was visible in the hiding place he had chosen for it. Satisfied that he had chosen well, Barataud on foot hurried back to his own car.

He got in and with his dead passenger in the bottom of the car Barataud drove off until he reached the River Vincou. He stopped the car at a steep point on the river bank. The road was deserted and Barataud knew there was little likelihood of anyone coming by at that hour. He had prepared for all this, and behind some shrubbery he got several stones of the size he wanted.

ONE by one he disposed of the stones in Faure's pockets. Then hoisting the dead taxi driver to his shoulder, Barataud carried the body to the river and threw it in.

On Barataud's car there was a movable headlight. For a few seconds he turned its beam on the black water where he had sent Faure down. Then, satisfied with his job, he went back to his car and drove off.

When he came to the point in the road near where Faure's taxi was hidden Barataud stopped. Raising the hood of his own motor, he did something to it that would make it seem powerless until he himself attended to it. Abandoning his car, he struck into the woods and came to Faure's taxi. He took Faure's seat and drove the taxi out of the wood and on to Limoges.

In the city he drove to his father's factory yards and roused the night watchman.

"Open the door to the truck garage," Barataud ordered. "My car got stalled out in the country and I borrowed this one to come back with. I'll call for it late tomorrow night."

The watchman was accustomed to the younger Barataud's vagaries, thought nothing of this incident and went back to sleep after the other had gone.

From the factory yards Barataud went to a public telephone and called up his crony, Peynet, at his home.

"Bertrand? This is Charles," he said. "Come on, I've got some lively company. Say nothing, of course, where you are going."

Between Barataud and Peynet there was a strong attachment and companionship in debauchery. Despite the 15 years' difference in their ages, Bertrand Peynet had every reason to believe Barataud, his devoted friend.

"ALL right, Charles, I'm coming," Peynet said. "Yes I'll keep quiet about it."

He joined Barataud at a rendezvous. Peynet asked Barataud where the others were who were to join them. Barataud said:

"Oh, you know those gay devils. They have no sense of time when it comes to keeping an appointment. They'll show up any minute, I'm sure."

No one came, but Peynet got home long after sunrise.

All that day Barataud kept to his room. Late in the evening he went to the garage, where he had left Faure's taxi and called for Roux and Lascaux to take them to the "old eccentric" who had such a bargain in timber land for them.

"Whose car is this?" Roux asked, as he and Lascaux got into the automobile Barataud had brought. "It doesn't look like yours."

"What difference does it make?" Barataud asked angrily. Then, in a change of tone. "My own car is stalled on the road and I borrowed a friend's car for our trip. On our way back I will try to fix my own car and bring it back with us. . . . Lascaux, you have the money with you, 600,000 francs?"

"I have it," Lascaux told him.

They drove off, Barataud at the wheel, Roux and Lascaux in back. Barataud had not a word to say as they left the city behind and entered the forest flanked road. Roux and Lascaux noticed that he seemed under great nervous tension; and thought it was anxiety to put the sale through.

Suddenly the car stopped and Barataud got out.

"Wait here," he said to them, his voice tight with nerves. "My car is in the woods here. I'll see if it's all right and will be back in a few minutes."

Roux and Lascaux waited. Roux, who knew Barataud better than Lascaux did, wondered what had come over Barataud, so curious was his behavior. Lascaux, who had most of his available fortune in his pocket, was also uneasy about Barataud's manner and conscious of the darkness and the loneliness of the road.

In a few moments they saw Barataud emerging from the woods. Then the headlights of their car revealed something he had in his hands.

It was a hatchet.

And they saw the man's eyes. Roux half rose in his seat. Lascaux, who had secretly brought a weapon along, took out a revolver.

Roux cried out: "Barataud, what are you doing with that hatchet?"

Barataud did not answer. His staring white eyes, with their black pupils shrunken, sent a chill through his two passengers. Slowly he opened the door and insinuated himself into the car; the hatchet he held in back of him.

"Barataud, do you hear me?" Roux shouted. "What are you doing with that hatchet?"

ROUX'S arms were out, ready to parry and strike.

Lascaux raised his revolver.

For the first time, Barataud saw it. He stared at it. The maniac glare in his eyes wavered before the reality of Lascaux's revolver. The weapon must have dissipated the fog of blood in Barataud's brain. The hand with the hatchet wavered, dropped. Barataud shrank out of the car.

"I—I"—he stammered—"I meant to fix my car with it."

"With the hatchet?" Lascaux demanded.

"Yes, why not?"

"Where did you find it?" Roux asked sharply. "You didn't have it when you left us?"

"Oh, it was in my own car. But what does it matter?" It was Barataud who was impatient now. "We're going back to town?"

"What!" the two men cried. "What about that timber deal?"

"Nothing!" Barataud's voice was harsh. "I played a joke on you!"

His passengers did not reply. They watched him sharply, Roux half out

THE LOST EXPEDITION

The Tragedy of Andree's Fatal Polar Exploit as Seen From the Inside.

Discoveries That Were Made on White Island

This is the fourteenth installment of the official story of Andree and his associates, Strindberg and Fraenkel.

A Narrative Reconstructed From the Diaries of S. A. Andree and Nils Strindberg by Professor Nils Lithberg, President of the Swedish Anthropological and Geographical Society.

WHITE ISLAND forms the eastern edge of that island world designated by the name "Svalbard" (the ancient and now resumed Norwegian name of the Spitzbergen archipelago).

According to information given by Peder Eliassen, captain of the Bratvaag, almost all of the island is covered by an ice cap, the height of which amounts to 200 to 300 meters above the sea.

Only in two places can bare ground be seen. One of these lies on the northeast side of the island, the other on the southwestern corner.

The naked land at the last mentioned place extends along the coast for several kilometers. It rises from the shore toward the ice cap.

The breadth of the island varies. Where Andree's camp was found it is a couple of kilometers across. About the middle of the bare stretch of land a point projects into the sea.

The ground consists partly of solid rock—covered here and there by blocks of stone—and partly of sand and gravel. On the level part rise a few low mounds of rock.

On the visit of the Bratvaag on August 5 and 6 last, there lay here in a few places caps of snow or ice.

Such a crust of ice existed at Andree's camp, which lay in the shelter of a shelf of rock which rose about three meters above the ground.

THAT Andree's camp, pitched in 1897, was not discovered until the summer of 1930 was chiefly due, undoubtedly, to the prevailing favorable climatic conditions of the past year. The melting of the snow seems to have been greater than for many years past.

It was during the walrus fishing that the Andree camp was discovered by the sealers of the Bratvaag.

It is significant of the situation that, as we now know, at least one ship had landed a party on the island earlier in the summer and had found objects belonging to the Andree camp. Theodor Grodahl of Tromsoe had visited the place with his ship Hanseat.

Strangely enough, he was hunting relics of a polar expedition—not of Andree's, but of Nobile's airship party.

On July 9 he landed with two men on the southwest point of the island, the only visible part not covered with ice.

Grodahl and his men searched the whole of the space between the shore and the inland ice, and on a point northeast of the landing place found—just where Andree's camp was afterwards discovered—an almost completely destroyed sheetiron box. By the side of it lay a peg, about eight inches long, evidently formed by human hands.

On September 5 the Isbjorn (carrying a press expedition) arrived at the island to examine the site of Andree's camp.

The Isbjorn left White Island on September 8.

From what we now know, it may be said with certainty that few if any remains of the Andree expedition's equipment are left on White Island. We feel sure that we now have practically all the material that can be obtained to form a picture of the situation at the time when the explorers perished.

The Bratvaag's find was made in three places: (1) The boat and a sledge lying together; (2) Andree's body and (3) Strindberg's grave.

Strindberg's grave on White Island.

THE Isbjorn's find was made chiefly in two places: (1) A sledge was discovered somewhat to the left of the boat, with several articles of equipment around it, and (2) a square bounded on the left by a bone of a whale, on the north and east by a stump of driftwood, and on the south by the gradually sloping wall of rock close to which Andree's remains had been found.

The principal find within the square was Fraenkel's skeleton.

On comparison at Tromsoe, in the presence of representatives of the two expeditions, between the plan sketches made on the visits of the Bratvaag and Isbjorn, it was discovered that the boat and the sledge found by the Bratvaag, together with the sledge discovered by the Isbjorn, formed one "find complex.'

A second "find complex" was formed by the remains of Andree, discovered by the Bratvaag, and Fraenkel's skeleton with the square construction around it discovered by the Isbjorn.

Knut Stubbendorff (newspaper correspondent), the leader of the Isbjorn expedition, had christened the former place the "material depot" and the latter the "hut." However, the denomination, "material depot," might be misleading. One should rather employ the term, "parking place for the sledges."

The term "hut," too, may not be quite satisfactory, as one naturally thinks of a house with walls in connection with this word. There cannot have been any such erection here.

The two driftwood stocks and the whalebone, lying like sides of a square, point rather to the presence of a tent, on the skirt of which the relics now found had been placed to hold the tent cloth fast.

In the following remarks we shall call the first place "the open camp around the sledges," and for the second we shall employ the more neutral expression, "the dwelling."

The camp place lay about 200 meters from shore, and the height above the sea was estimated about 10 meters.

The first object found at the open camping place was the canvas boat.

WHEN it was being hewn free from the ice it was discovered that, below it, there was a sledge, to which it was still tied fast.

The sledge lay with its head toward the north. The northern end of the boat, therefore, can be termed the bow and the southern end the stern.

This is probably why the port rail is so badly damaged, as it probably was trampled by bears in former years.

The sledge below the boat was standing on the bare ground, so when it was hewn from the ice large stones were dug out with the sledge.

About six meters west of the boat another sledge was found, with a layer of hard ice beneath it. Excepting the few articles of clothing—stockings among other things—that were lying on it, it was empty.

Nearby were found other articles frozen in the ice.

Among these may be mentioned a Swedish flag with the union mark, a box of ammunition, a handkerchief marked N. S. and a pair of stockings which never had been used.

It seems that we may suppose that when Andree and his comrades left their belongings here the place was covered by a crust of ice, just as on the occasion of the visit of the Bratvaag.

The Bratvaag's find of only two seldges was perplexing. By the memoranda from the journey over the ice, it was known that each man had drawn his own sledge—that there had been three sledges in all.

The riddle was solved by the Isbjorn when, about seven meters southwest of the boat, the third sledge was found. It rested on the naked earth, but this might be the result of the ice around it having melted away.

It was empty, but scattered around there were found a number of objects. Most of these were lying together on and around a piece of balloon cloth. This seems to have served as a waterproof covering which was pulled away by animals, leaving the objects scattered.

Quite near the sledge there were found two baskets about half a meter square and one-third of a meter deep. Here we clearly have the provision baskets mentioned in the diaries.

At the same place there were also found the three pairs of Canadian snowshoes forming part of the equipment of the expedition.

Before we give a detailed account of the objects found around the sledges and in the boat we shall examine the dwelling more closely.

No proper tent cloth was observed, but here and there within the square were found pieces of wood which seem to have been employed as a substructure for the tent floor.

Here and there were also remains of some kind of red rubber cloth, believed to have formed the tent bottom.

It was about the middle of the tent that Fraenkel's remains were found, and behind them, close to the northeastern wall, lay a sleeping sack of reindeer skin, frozen and wrinkled. It was on the low ridge of rock just above the sleeping sack that Andree's body was found.

Andree and Fraenkel had thus perished within the tent, and very near each other. They had been lying on the floor of the tent and the sleeping sack lay beside them.

Several articles of equipment also were found in the tent.

RIGHT over Fraenkel's skeleton there was a provision basket lying upside down, with a piece of canvas fastened to it which had served as a lid. Among the clothes from the trunk of Andree's body were discovered, among other things, several stockings, mittens and the torn remains of a white blanket with a blue border.

Finally, among the things found near Andree's skeleton there may be mentioned an ax, a tin of lanoline ointment inclosed in a tin box, and a long fishing line fashioned of a string and some bent pins.

Between the two bodies there lay one of the single-barreled guns.

One find which, in the first report of the discovery awakened attention, was that of a primus stove which stood on the rocky shelf above Andree's skeleton, and which was still almost quite full of paraffin.

Close to the primus stove stood an aluminum cup, and one gained the impression that the rocky ledge had served as some kind of shelf.

This was confirmed, too, by the Isbjorn's find when, on the same ledge above Fraenkel's remains, there were found a spirit stove, a cooking vessel and an aluminum spoon. A fruit knife also was found here.

Down in the tent lay other cooking utensils—even a pan and a plate on which were some remains of food.

There were also some provision boxes. Here, too, lay a wooden box, containing sewing material and the expedition's supply of money, amounting to 160 rubles and $80 in gold and silver.

Many articles lay spread about outside the tent. Among these were the expedition's medicine chest, containing medicine and bandages; a wooden box containing a large supply of matches, and the bronze grapnel.

Here, also, spread about, lay parts of the skeletons of the two men, who had died in the tent, which had been pulled outside by animals.

"Devil Judd Tolliver"

came from the depth of the house.

Sure enough, there it was on a littered table outside the door. Wright took it up and fondled it.

Yes, he was the Judd Tolliver in that book. There wasn't any doubt about it. Fact was, that writin' man, Fox, meant to put him in the book by his right name. His daughter, too, by her right name. He heard about it and went over to Big Stone Gap to see Fox about it— "We was friends. Been friends ever since Fox used to come to see me when I was jail house guard at Wise and got me to tell him about the troubles in the mountains. I told him not to use my name or my gal's name and he said what names would he use and I said any ones that pleased him and he changed mine to Judd Tolliver and hers to June Tolliver. Her right name was Alice. She's still livin', down in Alabama. Must be about 60. She was a Harmon. No, she was a Bentley. I didn't have no fault to find with Fox for the way he put me in the book. He treated me respectable."

It had been a little difficult to remember whether the June Tolliver of the story was a Harmon or a Bentley. It was the man's way of keeping track of his children. He classified them by their mothers' names. It was a handy way to keep track. When a man had had, maybe, eight wives, as people said, and was the father of 37 children, as people also said, it wasn't simple to remember which was which.

There was a Trail of the Lonesome Pine. They didn't call it that. The book man gave it that name.

BUT it was a good name for it. The trail went up the mountain on the Virginia side and down the Kentucky side to the Elkhorn, and it passed by a lone pine high on a point nigh to Killin' rock—"It was the highest tree that I ever saw, mighty nigh. They cut it down 20 year ago and used it in the dam at Jenkins."

One thing they say, tolerantly enough, about Bad John Wright is that from first to last he was indiscriminate in his marryings as he was in his killings. He could never abide in one place very long. Sometimes he lived on the Virginia side, sometimes the Kentucky.

Yes, he said, he had been married a couple of times, and did not see fit to expatiate on that theme. And yes, he had quite a few children, about twenty livin', if he remembered right, mostly married and scattered, some one place, some another. This time he had stayed in one place longer, he reckoned, than he'd ever stayed at one place before.

"How long we been married Mommy? Nine year?"

"Seven year," came the answer from the depth of the house.

It was a changing world that the old man looked out upon from where he sat on the weathered stump by the well with the chain windlass. From where he sat he could see automobiles climbing the winding ribbon of cement that has taken the place of the Trail of the Lonesome Pine, to skim down on the far side to the coal city, McRoberts, that fills Lonesome Cove and spreads far along the banks of Boone. Bad John Wright owned 3000 acres over there in the days when John Fox Jr., brought him to the world's notice as Devil Judd Tolliver. He was thinking of that, and of the changes that had come to the mountains since he practically gave his acres to the coal company, so the railroad, creeping up the north fork to the mouth of Boone, could come up to Lonesome Cove.

"Yes, I give it away, practically," he said. "I done it so's the mountain people could get their chance. It's worth millions now, they tell me, but I ain't never regretted a thing that I ever done, least of all lettin' the coal company have my land. It was the only way the mountains could be opened up."

OVER there in Lonesome Cove and up and down the banks of Boone, Wright's ancestors lived, from the time of Daniel Boone, and died, and were buried in the family burying ground. Not the one on Elkhorn where John Wright buried the men who played the game of life and death against him and lost. Another one on Boone, sacred to the memory of all the Wrights. John Wright saved that when he was selling his land to the coal company. He wouldn't suffer that to be sold. There he would rest, among his ancestors, when the summons came.

The summons came the other day and Bad John Wright went down from the mountain side into the valley of Death. He died, they say, as he had lived, courageous, proud that the summons did not come by the hand of man.

The Sinister Designs of Monsieur Barataud

of his seat, Lascaux with his revolver handy.

Barataud drove them back to the city limits, then stopped his car.

"Get out!" he ordered.

Barataud swung Faure's taxi about and was off down the river road.

His complicated plan had gone wrong. Yet it had such promise when he planned it! Faure would be missing. Faure's taxicab would be found on the main road with two men murdered in it. It was known that Lascaux carried large sums of money about him. The police would look for Faure and would not find him. The robbery and the murder would be charged against him. And Barataud would have 600,000 francs to spend and nothing to worry about. . . .

He drove to a steeply sloping road that led to the river. Without stopping the car Barataud got out and stood on the running board of the car. The car kept on plunging down the slope. Just before it reached the river Barataud jumped. He fell and rolled down the bank, but saved himself before he reached the river.

The taxicab bounded, turned a somersault and with a heavy splash disappeared under the water.

Barataud climbed back to the road and rested. Then he went back to the woods where his own automobile had been hidden all this time. He drove leisurely to Limoges.

For three days and nights he made his usual round of cafes, bars, dives, cinemas and prize fights.

Meanwhile, the whole city was agitated by the news of the disappearance of Etienne Faure.

Then the river gave up its dead. Faure's body was washed ashore near the Bridge of Varogne. A day later the river revealed the taxi.

The police of Limoges, aided by the detectives of the Federal secret service, went to work on the case.

Barataud was driving home alone one afternoon when a car drew alongside with several men in it.

"We want to talk to you, M. Barataud," said Fressard, their spokesman.

THEY drove to police headquarters. There Barataud was searched and a revolver was found.

Fressard bluntly said to Barataud: "You are arrested for the murder of Etienne Faure."

Barataud's eyes narrowed. His voice went dead as he said:

"Monsieur Fressard, accord me one small favor, and I will tell you all you want to know."

"What do you want?" Fressard asked.

"I have brought much sorrow to my father. Let me go home—under guard, of course—and say good-by to him. And if at the same time I am allowed clothes it is all I can reasonably ask of you. In return—I will confess."

Fressard thought it over. A confession would save the police much work.

"Let me have your confession," Fressard said, "and I will let you see your father."

"All right. * * * I killed Etienne Faure. I disposed of his taxi in the river. I did it to make it look as if he had done what I had planned to do and failed—to rob and kill Lascaux and Roux."

His written confession was full, circumstantial and convincing.

Barataud signed it. Then stood up. "Now to my father's house."

Barataud senior was not at home at the time. Dispiritedly Charles Barataud asked the police sergeant:

"May I go up to my room to change my linen?"

The sergeant already had been instructed by Fressard.

"Yes," he said.

Barataud went up to his den on the second floor of the house and opened the door. He knew his friend Peynet was there; he was always there at that time of the day.

"Why, Charles," Peynet cried "what"——

Barataud did not answer, but went quickly to the telephone on his desk. He took up the receiver and called a number. He got it.

"Is this the office of Monsieur Allegret, the lawyer?" Barataud asked.

Peynet exclaimed with astonishment. Barataud was speaking not in his own voice, but with an excellent imitation of Peynet's own.

"Ah, Monsieur Allegret!" Barataud spoke rapidly, still in Peynet's voice. "Listen well, Monsieur Allegret. This is Bertrand Peynet speaking. Charles Barataud has been arrested for the murder of Etienne Faure. He is innocent. I have good reason to know it. I cannot endure that he should be tried for the crime. I cannot and will not consent to live on. We are both here in this room. We have decided to die together."

The receiver clattered to the table.

Barataud darted to the wall of an alcove, where stood a rack of hunting guns. He snatched one up. Throwing the butt to his shoulder, he aimed at Peynet.

Meanwhile Allegret frantically telephoned the Barataud house. One of the detectives answered.

"Quick!" Allegret cried. "Up in Charles' room—he and Peynet mean to commit suicide"——

"Upstairs, quick!" the detective roared to his colleagues.

When they were half way up to Charles' room a shot sounded.

The police burst into the room.

CRUMPLED in a chair was Bertrand Peynet, dead, a hole in his chest.

Barataud was standing with a smoking rifle in his hand.

"You killed him!" the detective cried, seizing Barataud.

Barataud was coldly calm.

"No, he killed himself," he said. "We were to die together. I tried to kill myself, too. But the gun missed fire. . . . And I did not kill Etienne Faure."

"What! Why, you confessed!"

"I confessed to a lie. I did it to be enabled to come here and die with my friend."

"But your confession is full of detail. If you didn't kill Faure, who did?" a detective insisted.

"I know—and will not tell!" Barataud said.

That was his story and stubbornly he persisted in it througnout the 16 months it took to get the case to trial.

His father threw all the resources of a rich man into the battle to get his son acquitted, or at least to try to save him from the guillotine. The son tried to win sympathy by two not very impressive attempts at suicide while the trial was going on. The best lawyers in the land labored to prove that Charles Barataud was shielding the tragic secret of a dead friend.

The day came when the arguments on both sides had been summed up. The Judge instructed the jury in whose hands rested Barataud's life. In effect the Judge told them they were to answer on two counts: Was Barataud guilty of the murder of Etienne Faure? And was he guilty of the murder of Bertrand Peynet? If so, did the jury see any extenuating circumstances?

The jury retired. M. Brulebois, a small town notary, was foreman.

It did not take them long to agree. Barataud had murdered Etienne Faure in cold blood without the slightest circumstance in extenuation. He must die by the guillotine.

His fate decided, the jury awarded the family of the murdered man the damages they sued for, 450,000 francs.

In connection with the murder of Peynet, the jury thought there was a possibility that Barataud had killed him out of the wish to die with him. After all, they had already condemned Barataud to death. So they voted that there were extenuating circumstances in Barataud's second murder.

The little notary was instructed to fill out the blank on which the jury's verdict was to be recorded. Then the jury filed into a courtroom packed with spectators. Thousands waited outside the courthouse to hear Barataud's fate.

Brulebois, flustered, stammered as he read from the paper he had filled out. The courtroom gasped. With a shock they heard the foreman read the written verdict that while Barataud was guilty of murder the jury found there were extenuating circumstances.

EVEN in the jury box a fierce whispering sounded.

"No, no! That was not what we meant!"

For everybody knew that the notary had committed a stupendous blunder. As the verdict stood recorded, with its finding of extenuating circumstances for both murders, Barataud could not by law be sentenced to die by the guillotine.

Even the Judge was agitated. He had no alternative but to abide by the blundering verdict rendered by the foreman. He could only sentence Barataud to life imprisonment.

Someone dashed outside the courtroom with the news. A roar welled up from thousands of throats. It spread throughout the city. Crowds surged about the prison. When the newspapers announced the verdict the crowds grew and raged.

Then mounted troops came into action. Sabers flashed, the flat of their blades resounded on the bodies of the mob, and eventually the crowds were scattered.

Whereupon in his cell Barataud's mouth relaxed into a sardonic grin.

The QUAGMEYER MURDER CASE

"LISTEN here, Silo," said Dazz Grimes, the great criminologist, as he turned aside from his book and began stuffing his pipe with coarse strands of jute. "I've got to change my method."

"Change what method?" inquired Dr. Silo Lunk, Dazz's trusted associate and most intimate friend.

"My method of solving mysteries," said Grimes. "I've been in the murder business for 16 years now, and in all that time I've followed the wrong procedure. Silo, I've been reading a lot of detective stories lately, and in every one of them, including this book, the guilty party is invariably a person you'd never suspect. I'm beginning to feel that it's a mistake to solve cases scientifically. Why not start the investigation by coming right out with blunt accusations against the people who appear to be innocent?

"Well, it's an idea," said Dr. Lunk. "As to what kind of idea, I'd rather not say just yet. Please pass along some of those capital vanilla wafers of yours."

"I'd like to get a nice case now so that I could give the system a try-out," mused Dazz. "There ought to be something to it, judging by all these stories."

No sooner had the words left his lips than the telephone rang. Dr. Lunk picked up the instrument. His part of the conversation was: "What! . . . You don't say! . . . Well, that's fine! . . . Splendid! . . . You bet! . . . He'll be tickled pink! . . . Thanks so much for calling."

The doctor replaced the telephone and turned to Grimes with shining eyes.

"A murder, old top!" he exclaimed. "Old Anselm Quagmeyer, the laundry soap king, was found in his home with a bullet through his cigar pocket. That was his nephew calling. He's very anxious to have us come over and help the police."

"Well, you go ahead," said Grimes. "I'll be along as soon as I've finished this chapter. I'm right in the middle of the most exciting part of the book . . . and, oh, Lunk," he added as the doctor seized his hat, "that conscientious nephew is undoubtedly our man."

Some 30 minutes later, when Dazz entered the sumptuous drawing room of the Quagmeyer mansion, he was greeted by Dr. Lunk, Geoffrey Quagmeyer, the murdered man's nephew; Abner Crabsnap, the family attorney; Inspector Jones of headquarters, five detectives, 17 policemen, six newspaper reporters, four photographers and a good-sized battery of servants.

"Any fingerprints, boys?" asked Grimes, striding around the room and breezily rubbing his hands.

"No, but there's some hoofprints," said the Inspector. "You'll notice the window there is open about five inches. The hoofprints are on the lawn outside, directly underneath. Obviously, the assassin rode up on a horse, aimed his rifle—it was a rifle, Grimes—fired through the open widow and then galloped away."

"It's very perplexing," put in young Quagmeyer. "I haven't the faintest idea who did it. Apparently robbery wasn't the motive and I'm sure that Unk had no enemies."

Grimes and Dr. Lunk exchanged significant glances.

"A clew!" shouted the Inspector suddenly. Before the startled gaze of all beholders he thrust his arm through the open window, reached down among some vines and extracted from them a small black wallet. He hastily opened it and drew out two pieces of pasteboard.

"Two clews!" he cried. "The murderer has been good enough to leave us his photograph and calling card!"

"Let me see that picture!" said young Quagmeyer, snatching it from the Inspector's hand. "Great Scott, boys! That's Chisholm Chatham, my uncle's secretary! Go after him at once!"

"Righto!" cried the Inspector. He confronted Dazz Grimes with a broad smile of triumph. "Here's one problem I can solve without your help, you old busybody," he said defiantly.

"YEAH, and probably be sued for false arrest," sneered Grimes, as the Inspector, the policemen and the others hurried out of the room. "No you don't!" he continued as young Quagmeyer attempted to follow them. "You'll stay here, young man. I've got some questions to ask you. Lawyer Crabsnap, you'd better stick around, too."

"What do you want?" growled Geoffrey, sinking down in a chair.

"Just this," said Grimes, bending over him and staring at him fixedly: "Why did you bump off your uncle?"

"Me?" screamed the nephew, thumping his chest. "You're accusing me of the murder when you've got a photograph and a calling card for clews?"

"Just a scheme to sidetrack us," sneered Dazz. "A dodge to divert suspicion from yourself and throw it on an innocent man. The truth, now, you lizard. Why did you kill old Anselm Quagmeyer? Wanted his money, didn't you?"

"No!" shouted Quagmeyer. "I happen to know that his will leaves me only $7.50. The bulk of his estate is left to the city for a subway system."

"Oho, so that's it!" cried Grimes. "Obviously, you killed him because you were sore that he cut you off. Out with it! Where did you hire the horse?"

"Listen," said Quagmeyer, "I've never been on a horse in my life. I'm deathly afraid of them. Furthermore, I wasn't here when this thing happened. The servants heard the shot at 8:25, and I was at the movies at the time."

Further questioning was interrupted by the telephone. Dr. Lunk answered it. He listened for a full two minutes, pausing only to murmur an occasional "Oh."

Then he replaced the receiver. His face wore a sheepish expression.

"That was Inspector Jones," he announced. "He says they've caught the secretary and that the secretary has confessed. You see, Chatham lives away out near the edge of town, where they have terrible transportation service. Knowing that Mr. Quagmeyer was leaving his money to the city for a subway, he bumped him off in order to hasten its construction."

"I hope you're not sore, Quagmeyer," said Grimes, when he had recovered sufficiently to speak. "Everybody makes mistakes." He took out his watch. "It's only 12 o'clock," he continued. "What do you say to a few hands of poker?"

This MURGATROYD is NOT of the ULSTER BEAGLES

And His Horse Knows It.

"WE'RE going over to the Finif's tonight," remarks the missus to me one evening, when I'm all worn out and hot for the hay. The Finifs, incidentally, are my favorite brand of eczema. I wouldn't throw 'em a drink of water if they were drowning.

"Fine," says I, heartily. "I decided this afternoon that we would."

Sometimes it works. I've gotten out of a lot of things by agreeing quick and enthusiastic with the frau and sneaking over the impression that I'd had the nerve to originate an idea, but not this time, my little cabbage.

"I'd kind of like to stay home myself," comes back the impediment in my speech, "but we're organizing the club tonight."

"What club?" I demands.

"The riding club," she returns.

"What's the matter?" I inquires. "Can't you ride me enough, unassisted?"

"The riding club," explains Minnie, coldly, "is just another attempt on my poor part to disguise you as a country gentleman. The peasantry seeing you on horseback is likely to make a natural mistake and"——

"Listen, lady," I cuts in. "There are just 11 things I don't care for and 12 of 'em are horses. Besides, I've got a secret to tell you—something," I gulps, "something that I've been holding back for years. I haven't got a horse," I whispers.

"This is indeed a surprise," admits the wife. "The way you look most of the time I thought you roomed with one."

At the Finifs we runs into 10 or 12 folks, including Gabe Heffernan, a side-kicker of mine. He's chewing the jaw with a lanky looking English jobbie, but in a little while I gets him off in a corner alone.

"Who's the Yarmouth bleater?" I inquires.

"Cyril Belingbroke — pronounced Bluefish, probably," replies Gabe. "Haven't you met him?"

"No," I replies. "Is he essential?"

"There's much to be said on neither side of the question," says Heffernan. "Cyril's the new riding master. Of course, you've heard of the Fluffshire Fox Hounds?"

"As who has not," I shrugs, "in the riding set. What are they and what the hell do I care?"

"Belingbroke," explains Gabe, "used to be master of the bedchamber, or something like that, to the Fluffshire Hounds, the snappiest pack of poodles that ever frisked an English fen. The Belingbroke family, I may add, was for long the richest in Fluffshire"——

"Come on, come on," I interrupts, impatiently. "What do I care. How does such a bozo come to be a riding master to a lot of clucks over here?"

"The family," returns Heffernan, "went broke on some scheme for making Navajo blankets out of used razor blades, so Cyril ups with his horses and comes to America to earn his hogmet and spinach. As if that wasn't tough enough, he meets up with Fannie Finif."

At this juncture Fannie herself trots over with Cyril and introduces me to the last and least of the Belingbrokes.

"Murgatroyd," repeats Cyril. "That's a grand hunting name in Ireland. Are you, by any chance, related to Sir Seumas of the Ulster Beagles?"

"I don't think so," says I. "The only Beagle I ever knew was Patsy Beagle, Sing Sing '06."

"Are you fond of riding?" asks Belingbroke.

"It's my favorite sport," I assures him, "next to racing fish up tall flagpoles and rain drops down window panes. Ever tried 'em?"

"I'm afraid not," says Cyril. "You've done a bit of jumping, no doubt?"

"I've been married 10 years," I returns with simple dignity.

The next morning we assembles at the stables which Belingbroke had rented for the season.

"Nice morning," offers Cyril.

"I DON'T think so," I returns, but then I never agree with anybody. "Tell me—just how tame is this steed I'm supposed to ride?"

"He's well broke," answers Belingbroke.

"Bring him on," says I. "We can sympathize with each other, anyhow."

"You'll have to teach him from the beginning," suggests Joe Finif. "He's never been in a saddle before."

"I suppose," I snaps, sarcastic, "you're all four horsemen of the eclipse."

At this point a groom approaches with my horse, who I learns is blessed with the name of Gunpowder.

There's a sort of dirt track on the grounds, and accompanied by Belingbroke and the grooms we starts off. For a few hundred yards or so everything goes lovely. Suddenly Gunpowder lets go with everything he's got and I've got nothing to stop him with despite the fact that he's running straight toward a fence at least 18,000 feet high—40 inches, I was informed later.

I figures Gunpowder might stop at the barrier, but that steed's dam didn't bring up any hesitating horses. He takes the fence on the fly and I'm a vertical jockey on a horizontal bangtail, but I keeps my grip tight.

But I still have a chance of becoming a subdivision. Gunpowder keeps right on going. In the next 30 days—four minutes, Einstein estimated it—we take half a dozen hedges, a bevy of ditches and miles of barbed wire. All at once there looms before me an abandoned brewery, now used for making beer, and I'm expecting Gunpowder to take that too, when all of a sudden the groom rides up and saves the day.

"Is this what you call a safe animal?" I pants.

"'E's safe," insists the groom, "but 'e just can't resist a fence. Shall we ride back?"

"We shall not," I snaps. "Send me an airplane with a broken wing and a leaky motor or some other safe means of traveling."

I do no more riding that day, and after an hour or so Belingbroke calls it a day for all hands."

"Your frau tells me," says Gabe, "we're having dinner at your house."

"Sure," I returns. "Come on. We're serving a buffet supper off the mantelpiece."

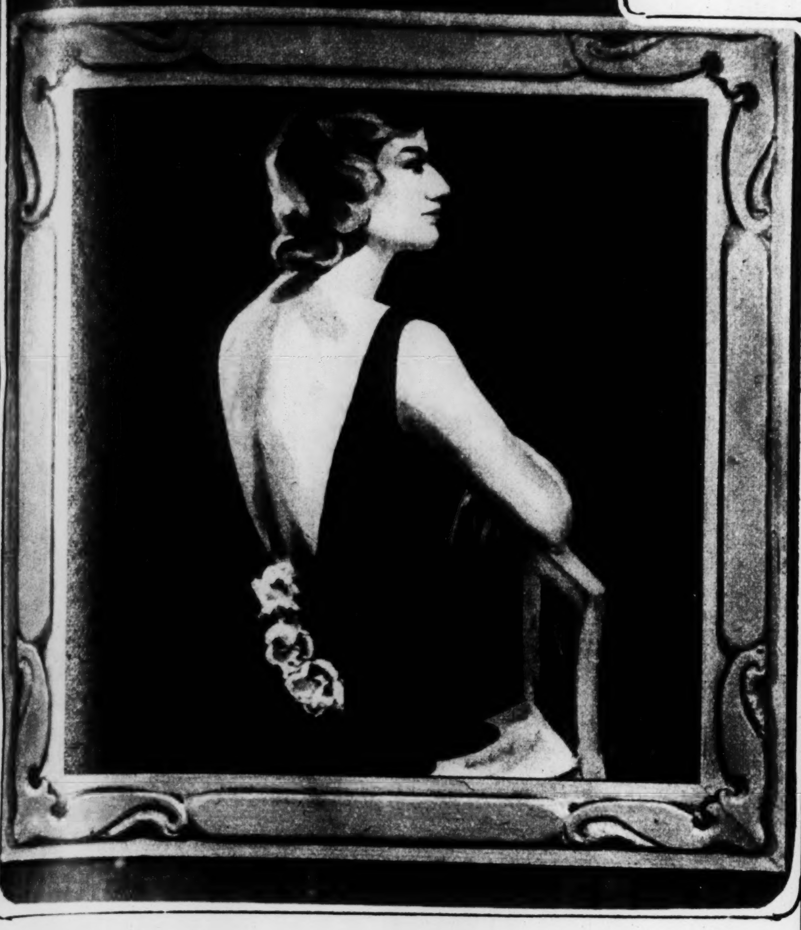
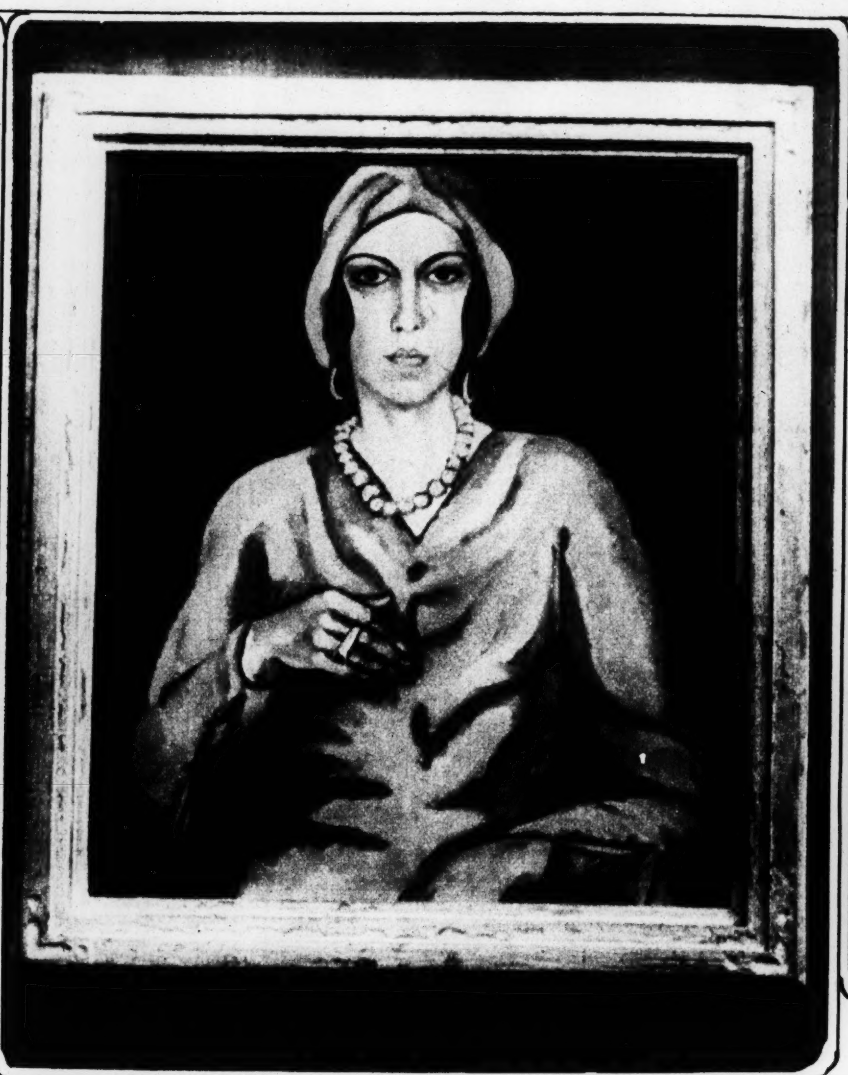
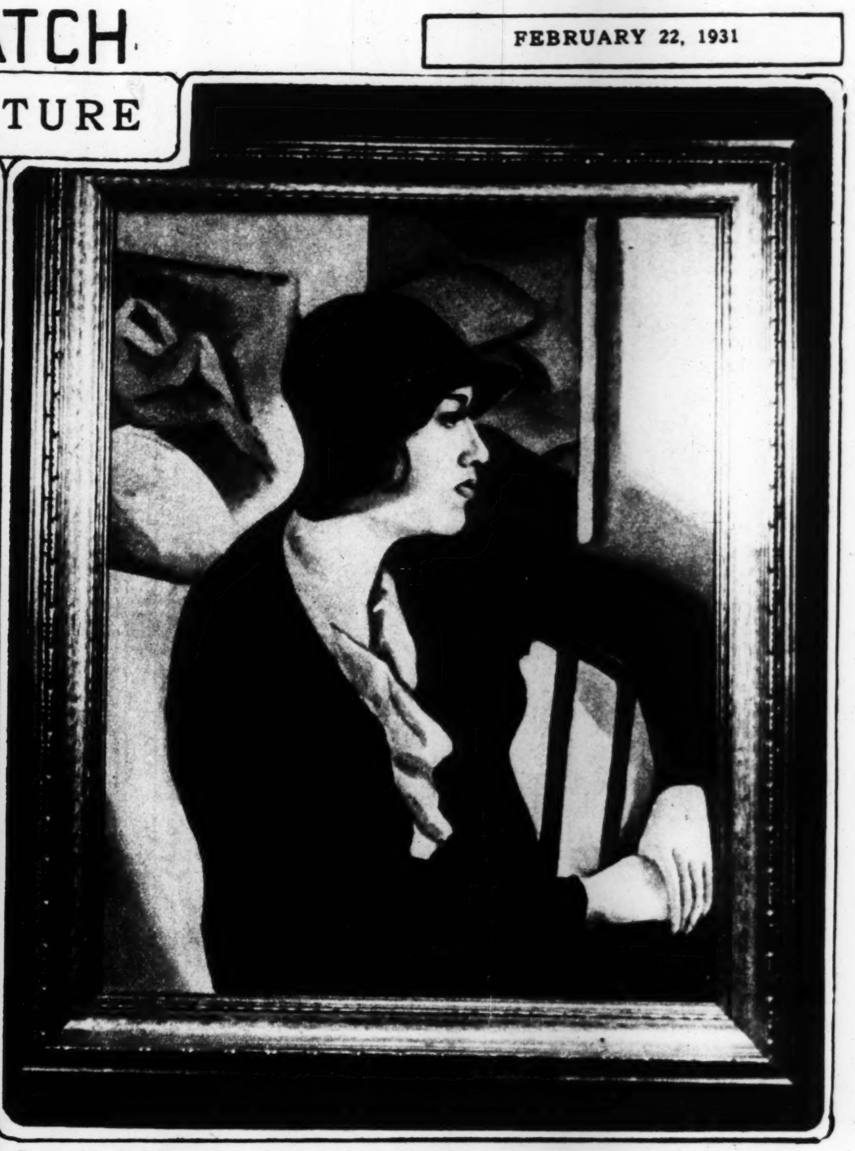
ST. LOUISANS IN MODERN PORTRAITURE



A collection of paintings by Valentine Vogel, who received her first training in St. Louis, is now on exhibition at the Noonan-Kocian galleries. The subject of the above delineation is Mrs. Milton Price of 5858 Cates avenue.



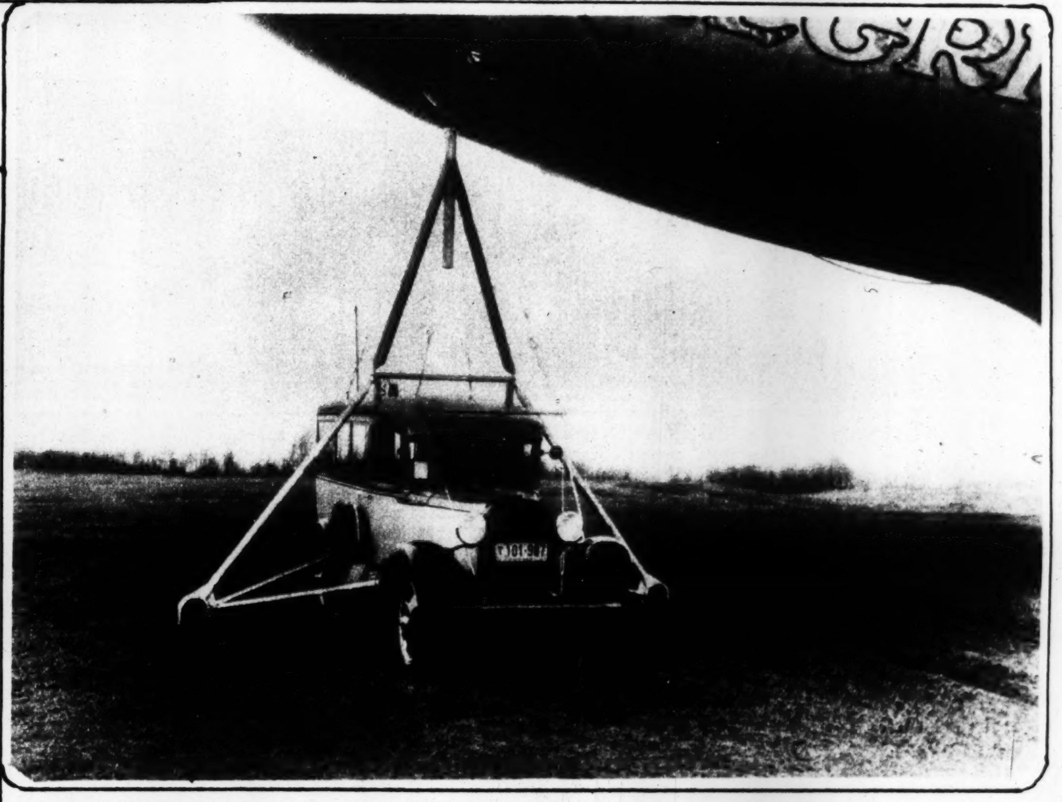
Portrait of Miss Dorothy Peterson of 4515 Lindell boulevard, an excellent example of the artist's bold—it has even been called pagan—style of brush work.



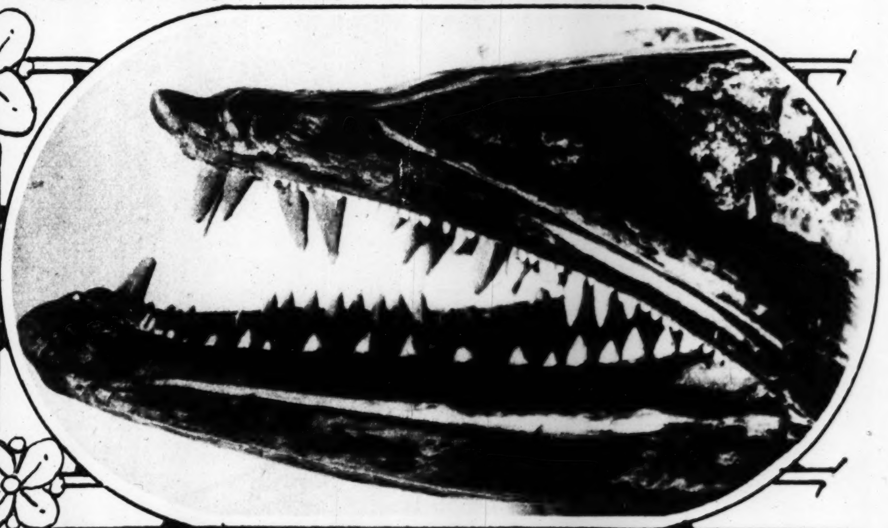
Portrait of Miss Alice Schwarz, 90 Aberdeen place, Clayton, another canvas which gives evidence of the artist's individuality and avoidance of old-fashioned conventions.

AS TOUGH AS THEY GROW—English bulldog, "Jack Dempsey," the hit of the kennel club show in New York this month. Over 2000 canines were exhibited, but not one attracted the attention Jack did.

MRS. SIGMUND ROMBERG, wife of the noted composer, from a recent studio photograph.



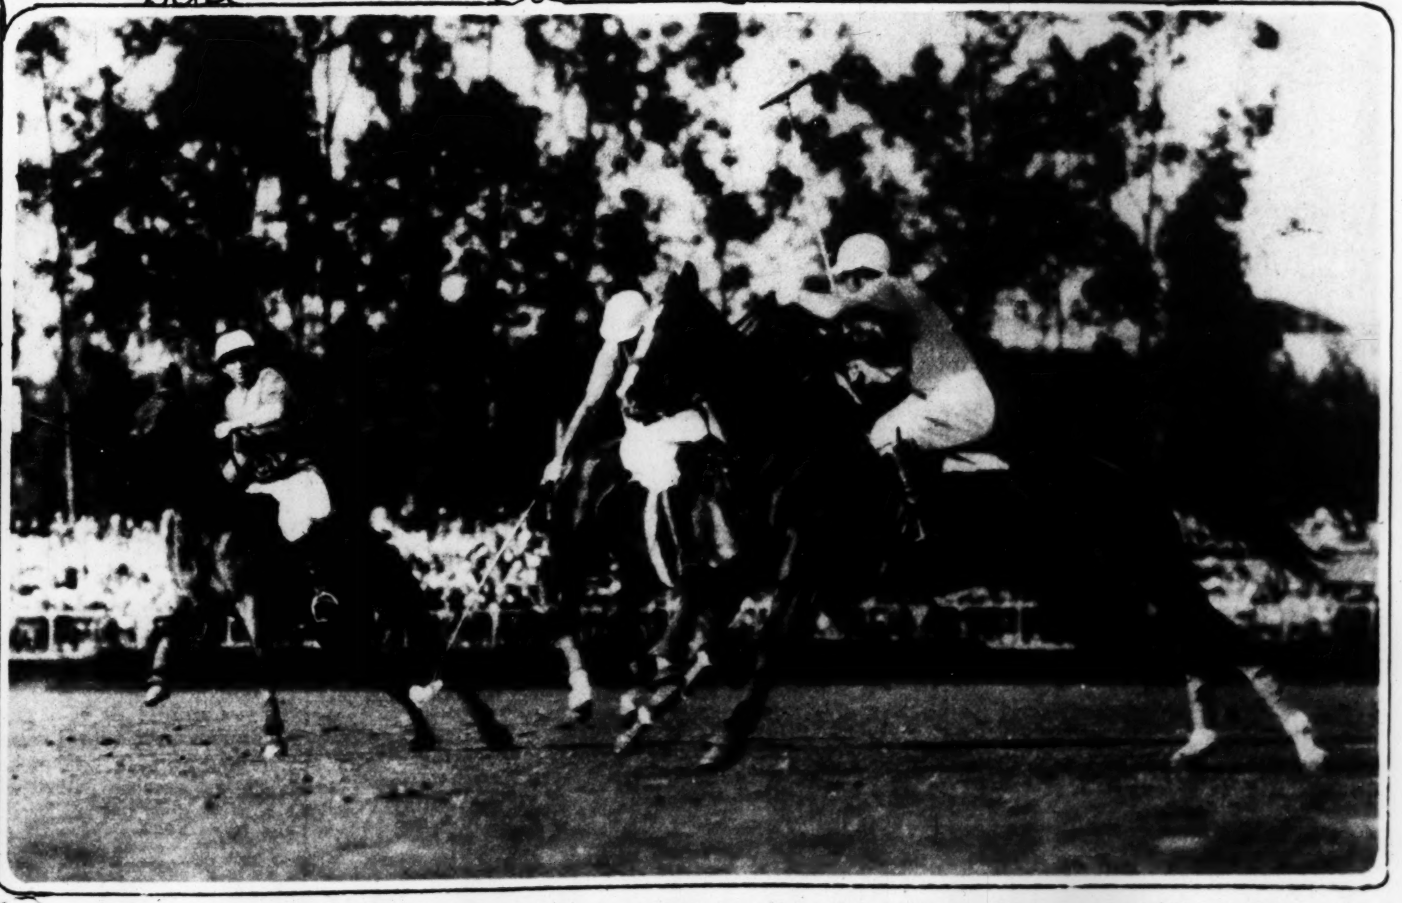
MOVABLE MOORING MAST FOR DIRIGIBLE—This automobile has side struts to prevent it from being overturned by the airship should a high wind arise.



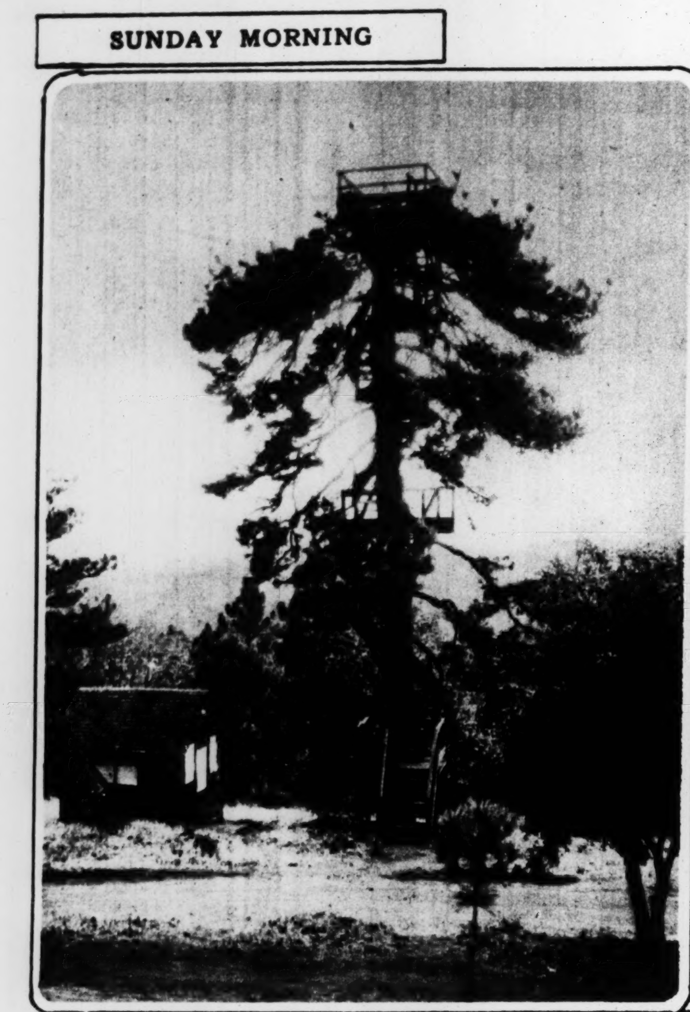
TIGER OF THE SEA—An excellent photograph of the teeth of the barracuda, most ferocious of the finny tribe.

"PICTURE BRIDES" ON WAY TO ALTAR—Four of a group of sixteen Japanese maids who were selected by their future husbands from photographs. They stopped in San Francisco en route to South American ports, where the bridegrooms-to-be live.

BIGGEST BRIDGE OF ITS KIND—A picture made from an airplane of the port of Sydney, Australia, with great steel span about completed. Its length can be judged by the good sized steamer directly under it.

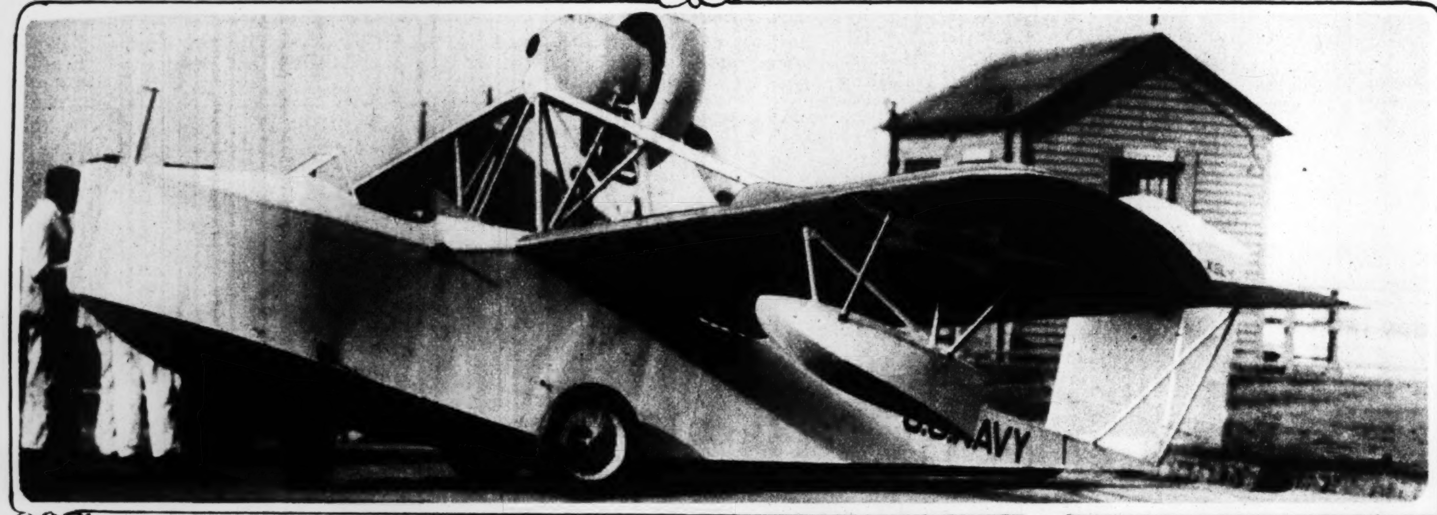


PICKING UP A HARD ONE—Juan Reynal, leader of polo team from Argentina, connecting with the ball during contest played with California team at Los Angeles. The ball, while it was in flight, was caught square on the head of the mallet.



BUILDING A HOME IN A TREE TOP—This airy retreat is under construction in San Diego County, California, by one who likes plenty of solitude and atmosphere.

IT HAD CLASS IN DAYS OF GEORGE WASHINGTON—This coach, which has just been placed in the National Museum in Washington, has an authentic record of having been auctioned off at Mount Vernon in 1802.



AIRPLANE FOR SUBMARINES—This craft can be taken apart in three minutes by a trained crew and stowed away in the eight-foot torpedo tube of an undersea fighting ship. The hull is duralumin, carries only one pilot, and can make 100 miles an hour in flight.

LIVING IN A WORLD OF LIFELONG SILENCE—Two young monks, in Trappist colony in Reichenberg, Austria, being taught the sign language by an older inmate. In this retreat words are never spoken.

Make Sure You Sleep Tonight

A Drugless Way to Get 8 Hours of Sound, Natural Sleep

HERE is a way you can be sure of getting a "good night's sleep" tonight. A way that is safe, sane and simple—that entirely avoids the use of drugs or sedatives.

It is a way that over 20,000 doctors advise. Because it gives you sound sleep! Natural sleep! Restful sleep that rebuilds and rejuvenates you in mind and body! When you wake up in the morning your entire system shows the results of the rest you've had.

Thousands of people all over the world have found Ovaltine will do this for them. Without forming the slightest habit, as with drugs. In 54 countries of the world Ovaltine is the recognized best "nightcap".

Developed some years ago by a Swiss scientist, Ovaltine is now produced under license in the United States according to the exact Swiss formula. It is a pure food-drink—you merely mix a few teaspoonfuls in warm milk and drink it just before you go to bed. Then go to sleep. And while you sleep, Ovaltine does several remarkable things for you.

Does Three Things

First, it induces sound, restful sleep by a natural process.

Second, it aids digestion, since it contains in high proportion a remarkable food property known as diastase, which is a natural food substance with the power to digest the starch content of other foods in your stomach. Ovaltine, because of its high proportion of diastase, will digest four to five times its own weight of other foods in your stomach, and thus lifts a great burden from your digestive organs.

Third, it rebuilds worn-out nerve cells. Because it contains in concentrated form a nerve restorative called "lecithin" which is taken from eggs. Lecithin rebuilds nerve tissues as you sleep.

During the World War, Ovaltine was used by the Red Cross as a standard ration for invalid, nerve-shattered soldiers.

Try It Tonight

Just try Ovaltine tonight. Note how quickly you go to sleep. See how differently you feel tomorrow. A few weeks' use of Ovaltine will make an amazing difference. Your whole appearance will show the result of this restful sleep and new vitality.

Take Ovaltine not only for sleeplessness, but whenever you feel nervous or run down.

Thousands of people, on doctors' advice, also take it as a stomach "conditioner". So whenever you begin to "feel" your stomach, just take 4 teaspoonfuls of Ovaltine in a half glass of warm milk with your meal. You will be surprised at the way it helps your stomach and rests your stomach.

For Ovaltine, when taken with a meal, will digest the major portion of all the starch content of other foods you have eaten. In this way Ovaltine not only relieves distress but actually helps the cause of the trouble.

Also this is one of the reasons why Ovaltine helps to put you to sleep at night, for digestive unrest is one of the main causes of sleeplessness.

Start tonight! Just 'phone your druggist or grocer for a tin of Ovaltine. Mix 2 to 4 teaspoonfuls in a glass of warm milk and drink just before you go to bed.

Whatever you think of the claims made for Ovaltine, just try it! It has brought restful sleep and teeming energy to thousands. You'll be surprised at what it does for you.

THE fag-end of Winter. Human vitality—your doctor will tell you—at the lowest ebb of the year. Children pale, listless. Appetites jaded, hard to please. Here are some of the reasons why—

For four months, the sun has been hidden, or distantly pale. Our bodies could gain little vitality from its rays. We have lacked exercise, lived in arid, artificially-heated rooms. We haven't thrown off the poisons that we discharge in perspiration during the warmer months. And our heavier diets and inactivity have levied against our health-guarding reserve.

Now comes Lent. February 18 to April 5. And our bodies need a change. Change of routine. And seasonal foods.

We need citrus fruits, now, more than ever. They stimulate the appetite naturally and tend to alkalinize the tissue fluids.

We need fish and eggs and cheese because our bodies are demanding vital quantities of iodine and protein and lime.

We need green and root vegetables to offset the heavy acid residue of our Winter diet—meats and breads and cereals.

We need milk, because it is an almost perfect food—easily digested, and containing not only protein and fat, but also salts and vitamins. And nuts, in some form, for they are abundant in concentrated iron and other minerals. And we need to forget that nuts are hard to digest—for it isn't true, when they are eaten with the meal.

The Kroger Food Foundation has selected four Lenten dinners containing exactly the seasonal foods that you and your children need. Foods that will enrich and replenish tired tissues and cells. Each dinner meets four important requirements—(1) diet variation; (2) essential food values; (3) ease in preparation; (4) appetite appeal. Each dinner utilizes one or more of the six major Lenten foods—fish, eggs, cheese, oysters, vegetables and fruits.

THE STORY OF A gallon of gas

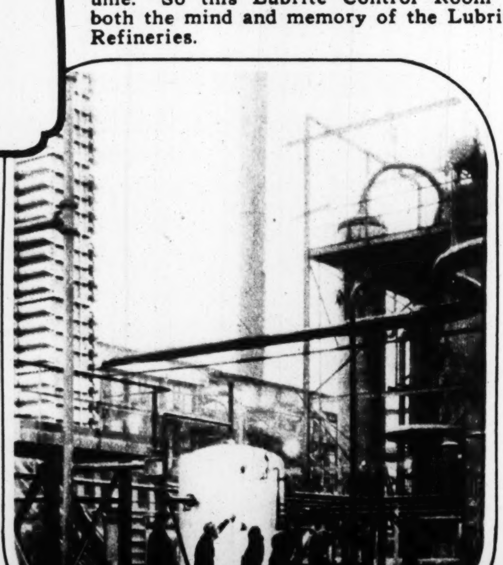
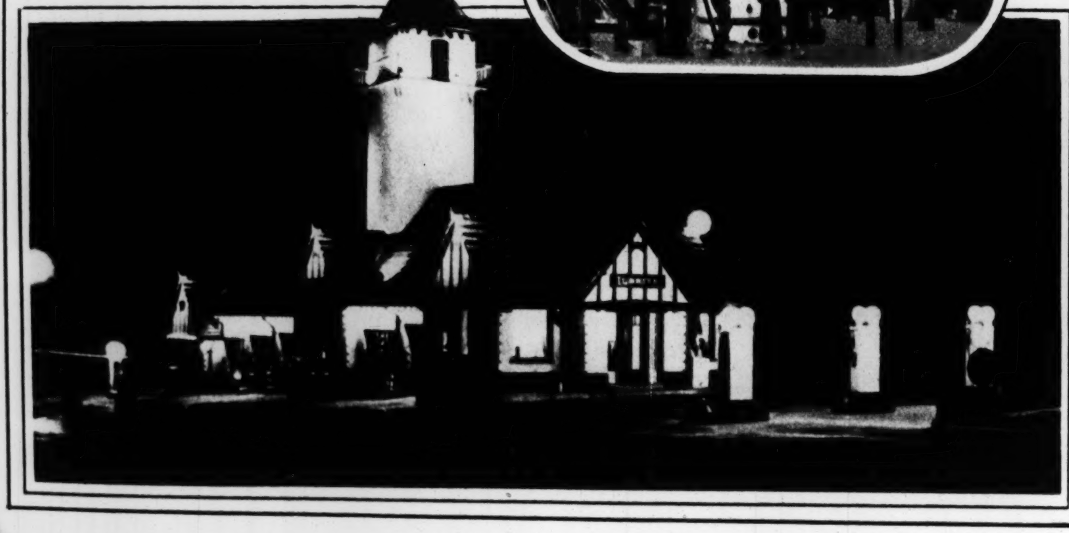
1. The touch of a finger controls all the giant forces that turn crude oil into Mobilgas. The glance of an eye tells the exact progress of each process. Machine-made charts continuously record each change in temperature, pressure and volume. So this Lubrite Control Room is both the mind and memory of the Lubrite Refineries.

2. To these Bubble Towers comes the gasoline after it has been refined. This particular process increases the yield of pure Mobilgas—to meet the rapidly growing requirement of St. Louis motorists for modernized gasoline.

3. The Tower Station at 7501 Clayton Road is one of the convenient Lubrite Stations so easy to recognize and remember. Here a carefully picked personnel serves your car with Mobilgas or Mobilgas Ethyl. All cars thrive on this steady diet—and stay young with the complete Lubrite Service.





"...and Three Packages of OLD DUTCH"

Old Dutch Cleanser—the modern perfect cleanser! Keep it handy at all times in the bathroom, kitchen and laundry of your home. There's nothing else like it; you don't need several styles and kinds of cleaners. Think of this added convenience in Old Dutch; it's all you need for all your cleaning.

Cleans Quicker—quicker than anything else you can use. Help yourself to more time with Old Dutch.

Cleans Safely... because it contains no harsh, chunky grit and doesn't scratch. Old Dutch protects the surface. Keeps lovely things lovely. And it's kind to the hands.

Healthful Cleanliness—is brought to your home by Old Dutch because, with one smooth sweep, it removes the invisible impurities with the visible dirt—and does it all so easily. It is economical to use for the simple reason a little Old Dutch goes a long way.

Johnson & Johnson introduce

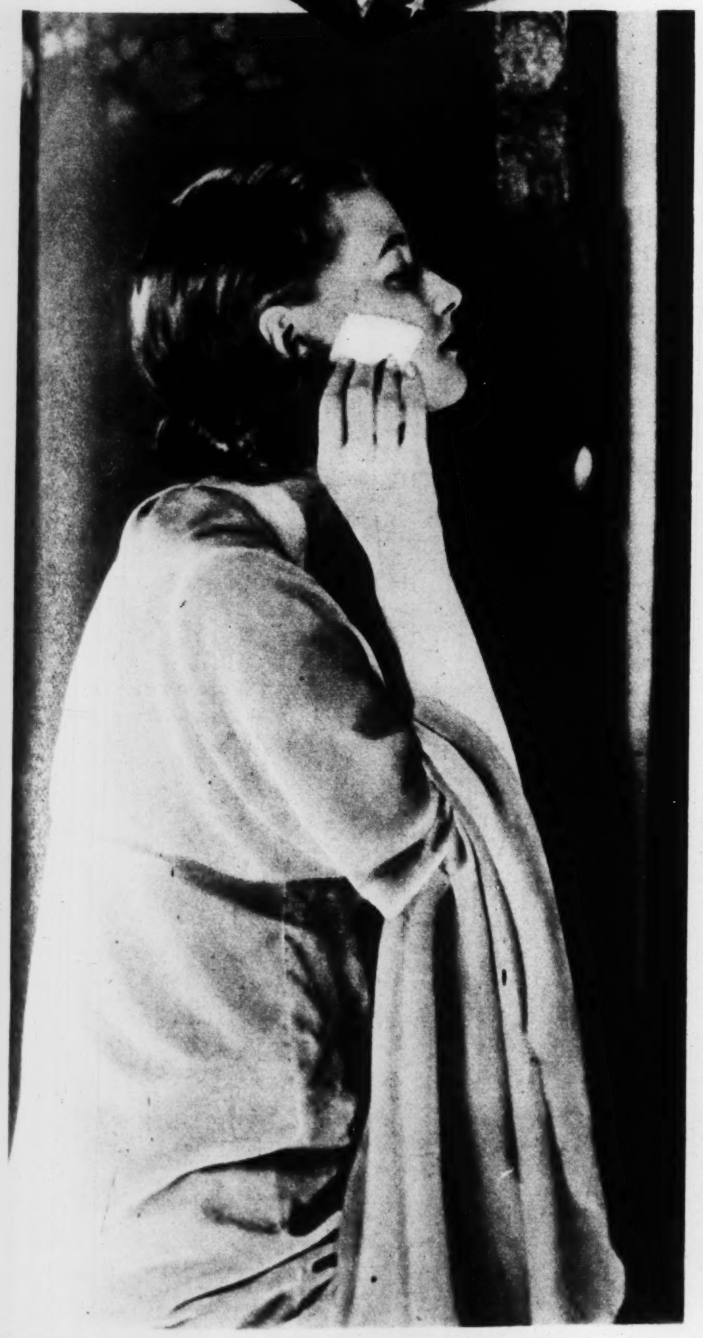
the latest cosmetic style note

COUETTES
LITTLE PADS OF COTTON
A BOUDOIR ACCESSORY
Johnson & Johnson



SEVENTY-FIVE smartly tailored squares of sterilized cotton all begging to be used for any sort of cosmetic duty. Beauty editors have been telling you for years to apply and remove liquids, powders and creams with cotton, to apply your skin tonic with cotton, to smooth the rouge line with cotton, to use cotton for the hot oil in a shampoo—and for dozens of other things. So we cut Couettes in just the proper shape and size suited to all these uses and packed them in a charming blue and silver box.

To introduce these very useful Couettes to you we are offering—at a very special price—this 50c box of Couettes with one box of Modess.

Modess is already accepted by women everywhere as the most comfortable, compl~~etely~~ protective and deodorized sanitary convenience. Just recently Modess Compact was perfected. So Modess is now packed in two ways—Modess Regular (standard thickness) for general use—Modess Compact (gently compressed) for travel, dress, and occasions where less bulk is required. Modess Compact has the same amount of softly comfortable, protective filler as Modess Regular, and comes in packages of 12, too.

Both Modess and Couettes are made by Johnson & Johnson, the world's leading manufacturer of surgical dressings, Red Cross absorbent cotton, etc.

To apply or remove any kind of cosmetic

LOTIONS AND ASTRINGENTS

Apply skin tonics and lotions with Couettes. No dripping through the fingers, no wasting of the precious liquid. Couettes are excellent for applying liquid powders and Suntan preparations.

POWDER

Always a fresh, clean Couette puff. Keep Couettes in the guest room, in your compact; carry them in your bag. No powder will spill if you separate the Couette and sandwich the powder between the layers.

FACIAL CREAMS

Moistened in water, Couettes provide the quickest, most efficient means of removing facial creams. The softly absorbent Couettes take both dirt and cream from the pores and save your towels.

Forbes
Culture Ripened
Coffee

Smooth Old Java flavor is not your only reason for wanting to drink Forbes Culture Ripened Coffee ..... For the culture ripening, in producing that famous flavor, also ripens away all trace of gallotannic acid ..... With the acid gone, this coffee gives you the "pick-up" you want without any disturbing after-effect ..... At noon, it gives that needed "lift" for afternoon work or play. At dinner, you need not hesitate to enjoy this rich flavored coffee and let it take the edge off the day's fatigue. With coffee so fully ripened, there is no aftermath of upset digestion or broken rest ..... And now, for the midnight bridge supper, you can serve a coffee that's full-flavored and enlivening, yet never disturbing to sleep—because it's ripe when roasted ..... Try Forbes Culture Ripened Coffee for complete coffee pleasure in both flavor and effect. The same coffee satisfaction that Granddad knew in the sail-ship days when "Old Java" coffee ripened at sea. At your grocer

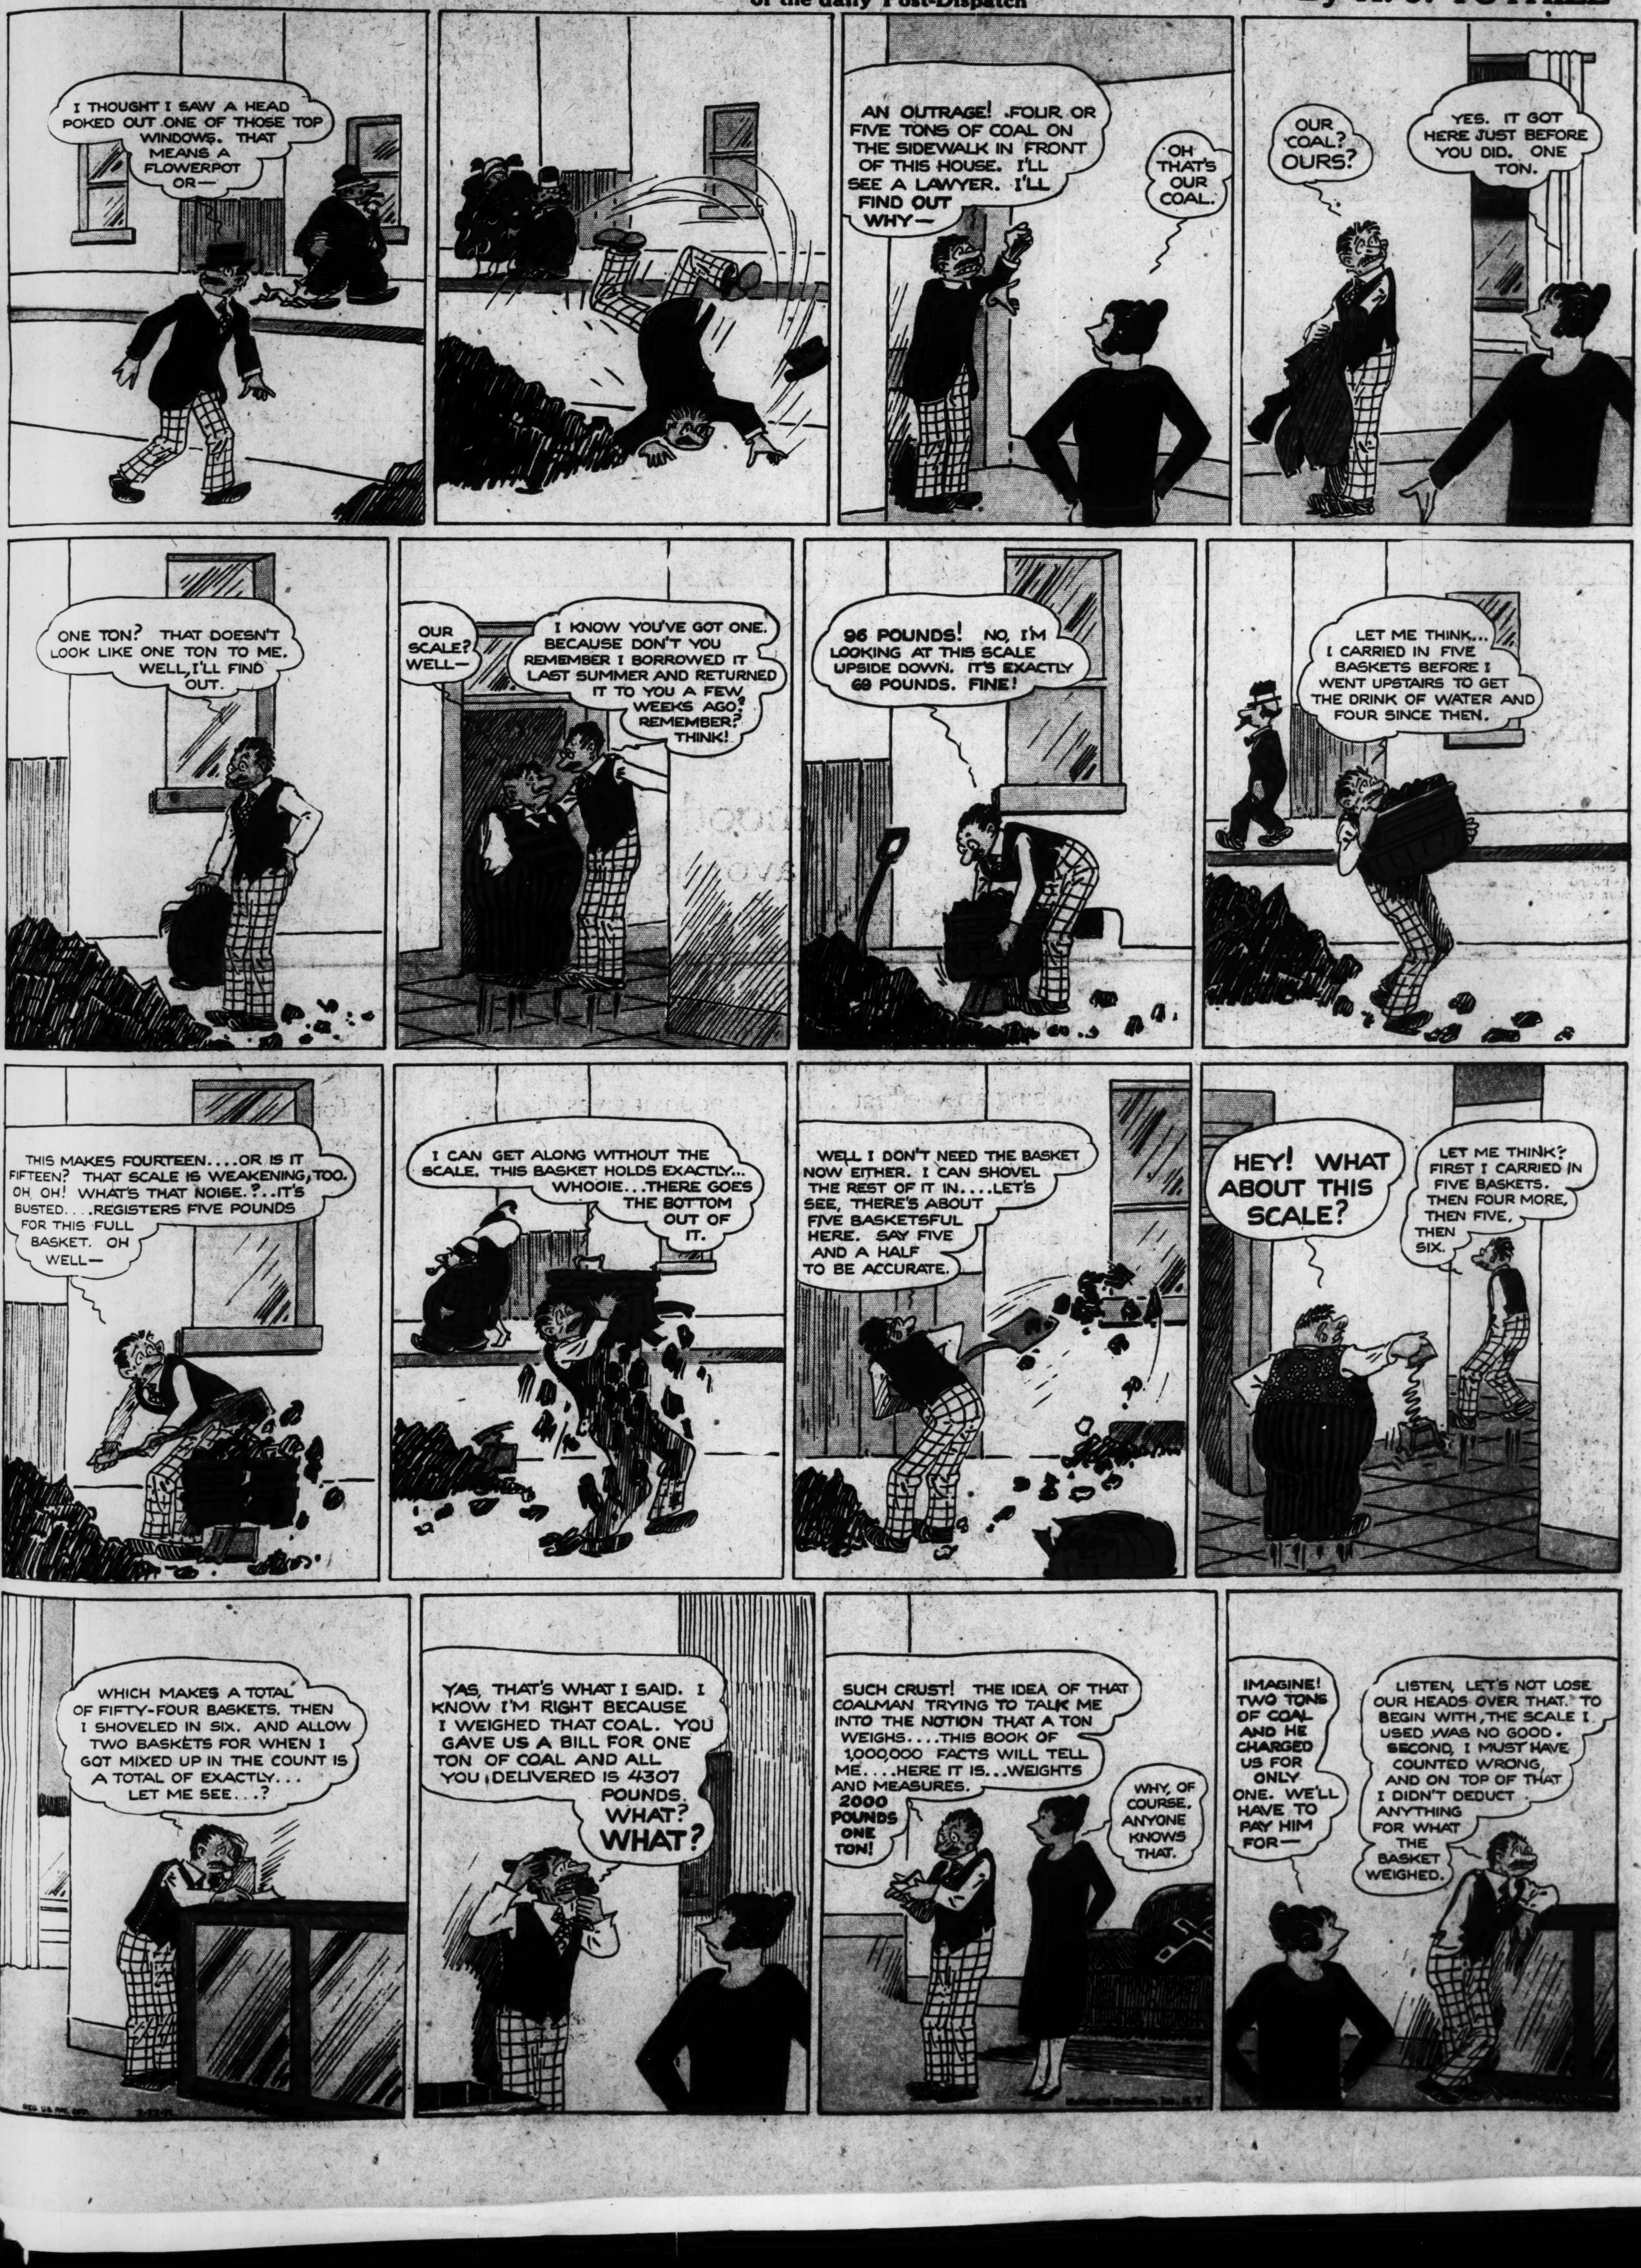
THE BUNGLE FAMILY

This comic appears every day in one of the TWO comic pages of the daily Post-Dispatch

By H. J. TUTHILL



I THOUGHT I SAW A HEAD POKED OUT ONE OF THOSE TOP WINDOWS. THAT MEANS A FLOWERPOT OR—
AN OUTRAGE! FOUR OR FIVE TONS OF COAL ON THE SIDEWALK IN FRONT OF THIS HOUSE. I'LL SEE A LAWYER. I'LL FIND OUT WHY—OH THAT'S OUR COAL.
OUR COAL? OURS?
YES. IT GOT HERE JUST BEFORE YOU DID. ONE TON.
ONE TON? THAT DOESN'T LOOK LIKE ONE TON TO ME. WELL, I'LL FIND OUT.
OUR SCALE? WELL—
I KNOW YOU'VE GOT ONE. BECAUSE DON'T YOU REMEMBER I BORROWED IT LAST SUMMER AND RETURNED IT TO YOU A FEW WEEKS AGO? REMEMBER? THINK!
96 POUNDS! NO, I'M LOOKING AT THIS SCALE UPSIDE DOWN. IT'S EXACTLY 69 POUNDS. FINE!
LET ME THINK... I CARRIED IN FIVE BASKETS BEFORE I WENT UPSTAIRS TO GET THE DRINK OF WATER AND FOUR SINCE THEN.
THIS MAKES FOURTEEN....OR IS IT FIFTEEN? THAT SCALE IS WEAKENING, TOO. OH, OH! WHAT'S THAT NOISE.?..IT'S BUSTED....REGISTERS FIVE POUNDS FOR THIS FULL BASKET. OH WELL—
I CAN GET ALONG WITHOUT THE SCALE. THIS BASKET HOLDS EXACTLY... WHOOIE...THERE GOES THE BOTTOM OUT OF IT.
WELL I DON'T NEED THE BASKET NOW EITHER. I CAN SHOVEL THE REST OF IT IN....LET'S SEE, THERE'S ABOUT FIVE BASKETSFUL HERE. SAY FIVE AND A HALF TO BE ACCURATE.
HEY! WHAT ABOUT THIS SCALE?
LET ME THINK? FIRST I CARRIED IN FIVE BASKETS. THEN FOUR MORE, THEN FIVE, THEN SIX.
WHICH MAKES A TOTAL OF FIFTY-FOUR BASKETS. THEN I SHOVELED IN SIX. AND ALLOW TWO BASKETS FOR WHEN I GOT MIXED UP IN THE COUNT IS A TOTAL OF EXACTLY... LET ME SEE...?
YAS, THAT'S WHAT I SAID. I KNOW I'M RIGHT BECAUSE I WEIGHED THAT COAL. YOU GAVE US A BILL FOR ONE TON OF COAL AND ALL YOU DELIVERED IS 4307 POUNDS. WHAT? WHAT?
SUCH CRUST! THE IDEA OF THAT COALMAN TRYING TO TALK ME INTO THE NOTION THAT A TON WEIGHS....THIS BOOK OF 1,000,000 FACTS WILL TELL ME....HERE IT IS...WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.
2000 POUNDS ONE TON!
WHY, OF COURSE. ANYONE KNOWS THAT.
IMAGINE! TWO TONS OF COAL AND HE CHARGED US FOR ONLY ONE. WE'LL HAVE TO PAY HIM FOR—LISTEN, LET'S NOT LOSE OUR HEADS OVER THAT. TO BEGIN WITH, THE SCALE I USED WAS NO GOOD. SECOND, I MUST HAVE COUNTED WRONG, AND ON TOP OF THAT I DIDN'T DEDUCT ANYTHING FOR WHAT THE BASKET WEIGHED.

NOW, GIRLS, IT'S OUR PATRIOTIC DUTY, TO MAKE THE BOYS LOOSEN UP -- THEY'VE BEEN GETTING AWAY TOO EASILY --- REMEMBER, IT'S FOR YOUR COUNTRY AND YOUR FLAG THAT YOU'RE DOING THIS GIVE US SOME NICE FRESH PEANUTS, JOE
SAY, LISTEN, BIG BOY, NO MORE PEANUTS FOR ME - I WANT A THREE-POUND BOX OF CHOCOLATES
IF YOU PELICANS THINK YOU'RE GOING TO HAVE A CHEAP DATE SITTING ON THE SOFA LISTENING TO THE RADIO, YOU'RE C-RAZY
GET YOUR HATS --- WE'RE GOING PLACES AND SEE THINGS
TWO IN THE BALCONY
SAY, NOTHING DOING! YOU'VE BEEN HAULING ME UP IN THE BALCONY FOR SO LONG I FEEL LIKE A MOUNTAIN GOAT -- STARTING RIGHT NOW WE SIT IN THE BEST SEATS IN THE HOUSE
THE STREET CAR STOPS OVER HERE, DEAR
TAKE THAT TAPE OFF YOUR POCKET-BOOK --- FROM NOW ON YOU'RE GOING TO BE A SPENDTHRIFT --- NO MORE STREET CARS --- TAXIES HEREAFTER
I JUST HAD A STEAK SO BIG THEY MUST'VE HAD TO CUT IT OFF THE COW SIDEWAYS
IT'S EASY TO RUN UP A BIG BILL HERE --- THEY EVEN CHARGE FOR SALT AND PEPPER
THE COUNTRY MAY BE SAVED, BUT I'M SURE A FINANCIAL WRECK
THEY'RE CARRYING THIS TOO FAR -- I'VE SPENT MY SALARY FOR A MONTH AHEAD
IT'S A RACKET
ALL I HAVE TO DO IS WASH MY HANDS AND I'M CLEAN
YOU'VE DONE SPLENDIDLY, GIRLS. I KNOW IT'S BEEN HARD WORK, BUT WE MUST CARRY ON! MAKE THE BOYS SPEND UNTIL IT HURTS -- REMEMBER, IT'S OUR PATRIOTIC DUTY --- WE'VE DONE A LOT ALREADY, BUT WE MUST KEEP RIGHT ON YEH -- YOU BABIES ARE A GREAT BUNCH OF BETSY ROSSES -- MAKING US DO ALL THE SPENDING
YOU'D GO INTO HYSTERICS IF ONE OF US ASKED YOU FOR A POSTAGE STAMP
HOW ABOUT YOU SPENDING SOMETHING?
OH --- OUR TIME --- IT ISN'T WORTH ANYTHING, HUH?

WHAT D'YA KNOW!
THANKS, ROD… I'M SURE SOMEONE SAW US AND WILL TELL BILL WE WERE OUT TOGETHER… HE'LL BE FURIOUSLY JEALOUS
WELL, I HOPE YOU'LL PATCH UP YOUR QUARREL WITH YOUR FIANCE, SYLVIA FAR BE IT FROM ME TO START ANYTHING, DORA, BUT I HAPPENED TO SEE YOUR BOY-FRIEND OUT WITH SYLVIA, TODAY
HE WAS??
AND, BILL, FROM BEHIND A LAMP-POST I SAW THEM… SYLVIA AND ROD! YES, SIR!
I'M GOIN' OVER TO DORA'S…. I'LL PULVERIZE THE LITTLE WEASEL
WHY CAN'T OTHER PEOPLE GET ALONG THE WAY DORA AND I DO? WAIT'LL I TELL HER ABOUT IT
I WAS SORE AT FIRST, BUT I SEE THROUGH SYLVIA'S GAME NOW… WE'VE HAD A QUARREL… SHE'S JUST TRYING TO MAKE ME JEALOUS
BILL, LET'S BEAT THEM AT THEIR OWN GAME
HEY, DORA! ARE YOU IN?
SH… THERE'S ROD NOW!
OKAY, DORA!
SMACK!
MY LIFE'S BLASTED, SYLVIA… THERE WAS YOUR BILL NECKING WITH MY DORA
THE INSECT! WAIT'LL I GET MY HAT ON… WE'LL GO RIGHT OVER HOW COULD YOU?
IT WAS ONLY TO MAKE YOU JEALOUS
DARLING! PRECIOUS! SWEETHEART! ANGEL! SUGAR!
POOR DORA… I'LL TRY TO CONSOLE HER… BUT I ONLY DID MY DUTY… I SAW IT ALL BEHIND THE LAMP POST GET OUTTA HERE! WE AIN'T SO DUMB!
